Credit Union Embezzler Pleads Guilty To Charge

By DAVE LEECO

Three years ago, a federal audit of the Winchester Municipal Credit Union's books turned up a few minor problems — an unclear ledger entry, a missing signature here and there.

Soon, it became apparent to the officers of the Credit Union the problems were anything but minor.

Last week, the former treasurer of the Credit Union pleaded guilty to three counts of embezzlement, ending a two-and-a-half-year investigation by the Credit Union, the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and the US Attorney's Office.

When the federal auditors first reported their list of problems to the Credit Union's Board of Directors in October 1981, recalled Credit Union officer Ken Duffy, "We assumed most of them were just errors, but errors we wanted to check.

"But after awhile, we realized that they weren't just errors," continued Duffy, who had just taken over the union's supervisory committee that August. "I started asking questions. And the more questions I asked, the more people panicked. The answers didn't fit."

Duffy's questions eventually uncovered $65,000 missing from the Credit Union's accounts — a discovery that led to a six-month investigation by accountants hired by the Credit Union, and then two-year investigation by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The investigations ended May 23, when former Credit Union Treasurer Ellen Casalinuovo, 38, of Myrtle terr., pleaded guilty to three counts of embezzlement before Federal District Court Judge Joseph Tauro.

Sentencing for Casalinuovo has been set for June 20. According to Asst. US Attorney Victor Wild, who prosecuted the case, the US Attorney's recommendation for sentencing is conditioned on Casalinuovo repaying $65,000 by the sentencing date.

The maximimum sentence for each count is five year's imprisonment and a $5,000 fine.

Casalinuovo was indicted on 15 counts of embezzlement by a federal grand jury on March 28.

The indictments charged that Casalinuovo, while treasurer of the Credit Union, created fraudulent loans in the Credit Union's books, then deposited the money in her personal account at the Winchester Savings Bank.

What happened to the money is still a mystery.

"I don't think anyone will ever know why, or what she did with it," said Duffy.

The money embezzled from the nearly 700 current and former town employees and teachers that make up the credit union is covered by both a bond and insurance with the National Credit Union Share Insurance Fund, a federal agency.

"Nobody lost anything — there was never any problem with the members, they've always been insured," noted Mike Houghton, the chairman of the Credit Union's Board of Directors. "There was only one person hurt by this. And everybody's feeling kind of sick over the whole thing."

Houghton, Duffy and the rest of the Credit Union officers have been living with the embezzlement case since the day the Town Manager Groux Quits After Nine Years

BY LIZ WILLEN

Town Mangager Thomas Groux on Monday night gave each selectmen a copy of a letter containing an unexpected announcement — his resignation.

Groux is stepping down after nine years as Town Manager to accept a position as dean of administrative services at Middlesex Community College. When he made the decision to accept the job last week, he tried to think of the best and fairest way to tell the selectmen.

"I couldn't exactly put on the docket, 'letter of resignation from Town Manager,' " Groux said in an interview on Tuesday. "But I wanted to tell them all at once, and telling them at the meeting seemed to be the only fair way to do it.

"I didn't mean to stun anyone," Groux continued, lighting up a cigar. "I don't see why this is such a big suprise. I simply have an opportunity to change careers, and I'm really looking forward to a new challenge."

Not that his nine years as Town Manager haven't been a challenge. Groux, who will begin his new position in mid-July, said his job has been "fascinating — there is tremendous variety and you are always dealing with a new problem."

Selectmen will have to deal with a new problem of their own in the next few weeks — how to replace Groux. Although Selectman Michael Saraco suggested that a special meeting be set up to decide how to handle Groux's announcement, no decisions have been made about finding a replacement for Groux.

In fact, selectmen were so suprised by the news that they didn't even bother to vote to accept Groux's resignation. They did, however, offer a few words of praise and thanks for Groux's service to to the town.

"You are quite a part of the history of this community," said Selectman Alan Macdonald. "I regret for the town that we must go through the search and change process, but we are grateful for your service."

"I am stunned," said Selectman Edward O'Connell, who hastened to add, "I personally and professionally wish you well in this career decision."

In his letter of resignation, Groux noted that "a great deal of change has taken place in Winchester . . . I am proud to have had an opportunity to be a part of that process."

Groux was the first Town Manager to serve under the Home Rule Charter, adopted in 1975. Winchester did not have a Town Manager before that.

Groux said he was not actively looking for a job when he received the offer from Middlesex Community College several months ago. In fact, he said he hadn't even updated his resume in years.

"When they approached me, I thought, well, I've got nothing to lose, it's worth exploring," he said. "Then I went for several interviews, and the more I heard about what the job entails, the more enticing it became."

Groux admitted that the salary was enticing as well, although he declined to divulge what he will be earning.

"That," he said with a smile, "is one of the nicest things. My salary, along with a lot of other things, is no longer public."

Groux now makes $46,600. When he first began the job in 1975, he earned $31,000.

"The public nature of the Town Manager's job is one of the things that makes it so tedious," Groux admitted, puffing thoughtfully on a cigar. "The charter mandates that the Town Manager live here, and it makes it very difficult to maintain a private life.

"I consider myself a social person, but I have tended to shy away from socializing in town," he continued. "Wherever I go, questions about town come up. My wife and I might be sipping cocktails somewhere, and someone will bring up potholes — or a dead tree — and I'll look

Examples Of Gaps In A School Geared To College-Bound

BY LIZ WILLEN

What Sally most remembers about her graduation from Winchester High School last year is the sound of voices shouting out, "Good luck in college!"

But Sally remembers feeling left out, because she knew she wasn't going to college. Instead, she was about to begin a full time job as a secretary.

The overwhelming majority (85 percent) of the 288 seniors who received their Winchester High School diplomas on Sunday will be continuing their education in college. However, there are at least 50 other students who will not be going to school next fall for the first time since kindergarten.

Some of them may already have jobs lined up, or they may be entering the armed services.

These students did not spend a lot of time filling out college applications, taking SATs, or discussing their class rank. Unlike the majority of their classmates, they were not preoccupied with "getting into college."

In fact, some of them had trouble making it through each day at Winchester High School.

Many of them thought about dropping out. This year, 12 did.

Last year, Kenny (not his real name) was having problems at home, and sitting in classroom with his college-bound classmates only made him feel bored and frustrated.

Learning facts and formulas seemed useless to Kenny who had no interest in going to college and, more importantly, was worried about his mother's drinking problem and his own inability to get along with his stepfamily.

Kenny was upset when he came to school each day, and soon discovered he had slipped behind in all of his classes.

"Before you know it, you just can't catch up," Kenny says, recalling the hole he says he had dug himself into. Shoving his hands into the pocket of his Army jacket, he takes a deep breath and begins to describe the day he was sent down to the vice principal's office.

At that point, Kenny recalls, he "couldn't have cared less about school."

"Go ahead, expel me!" he shouted to an administrator.

Kenny was expelled. He spent the next two months "getting cocked.

"I wanted to shut everything off — friends, family, school — everything," he remembers.

Somehow, Kenny managed to turn things around for himself. He is back in school now and plans to stay there. "I finally realized, if you don't get your diploma, you're nobody," he says.

Kenny has since made up a great deal of the work that he missed by attending the in-school suspension program supervised by John Pirani. He has stopped drinking and has received some counseling. He is determined to get his diploma and says he would like to join the Army after he graduates from high school next year.

Kenny feels a lot better about himself since he has been back in school catching up on his schoolwork. He is grateful to Pirani, because "he picked me back off my feet and showed me that he really cares about me. It makes me want to stay in school."

Still, Kenny says he will always feel on the outside of things because "people think I'm a rat — and teachers treat me differently because I won't be going to college. I think I'm getting a raw deal."

Carol has always hated school. So, at one point this year, she just stopped going.

"I just hung out and slept late, went to the beach, that kind of thing," she recalls. "I didn't come back to school for a whole month. Everyone kind of wondered what happened to me."

Carol (not her real name) pushes some hair out of her eyes, and bounces restlessly up and down in her chair at the high school resource room where she is trying to make up some of the work she missed this winter.

"The school called my parents every single day for a month, but my parents knew it was my problem," she recalls. "Besides, we have nine kids in my family and they had enough to worry about."

During the first week of the fourth quarter, Carol suddenly said to herself, "Hey, I've got to graduate." So she came to school and has since been trying to make up the work she missed.

Carol would like to study interior design or hairdressing. She is positive that she will not go on to college.

"There is nothing here for people like me," she says with disgust. "Winchester High School is totally academic and geared for the kids who will be going to college. They (the teachers and administrators) don't want to deal with people like me."

In a system where the overwhelming majority of Winchester's 1249 high school students go on to college, those who are having trouble staying in high school, or who have other plans besides college once they graduate, sometimes feel overlooked or ignored.

It's not, administrators say, that the schools don't care about the small segment of the population that isn't striving for admission to college. Administrators, guidance counselors and teachers interviewed all say that they care very much.

But in a district overflowing with high-achieving, college-bound students, the teachers, administrators and guidance counselors say they are under pressure to cater to the majority of students who are headed for higher education.

And the high school is expected to fulfill their needs — processing college applications, keeping the courses relevant and challenging for the college-bound student, and providing some of the special programs and courses that give Winchester High School its reputation as one of the finest in Massachusetts.

The students who aren't college-bound don't fall into any one particular category.

They may be taking business courses or working part-time and taking their courses in the CLIP (Career Life Information Program). Some, seven this year, attend the SEEM Campus program in Burlington, an alternative education opportunity for students with special behavioral and learning needs. Then there are the students who don't fit into the business program, CLIP or SEEM. Like Kenny and Carol.

However, because their number is low, the needs of students in the business, CLIP and SEEM programs, and the needs of the dropouts, are often obscured by those of the vast majority of college-bound students. This presents some difficult choices for administrators.

"We constantly think about having some kind of program directed to kids who might be potential drop-outs. Schools with bigger non-college populations do have

Local Artists' Works Featured At Winchester Art Assn. Gallery

The photographs and paintings of local artists Frances Bronzo, Gloria Giello and Paul Palumbo will be featured in the latest exhibit of the Winchester Art Assn. Gallery.

Bronzo, a member of the medical profession, has been actively interested in photography for some time. She has attended seminars and lectures and often experiments with different cameras, lenses and other equipment to produce photographs that are out of the ordinary. Close-ups of familiar flowers found in Winchester gardens hang alongside clear, colorful scenes of ponds in New Hampshire and oceanside scenes in Maine and Aruba. Bronzo is a member of the Boston Camera Club, Winchester Art Assn. and the Lexington Arts & Crafts Society.

Giello has been in the commercial art field since graduating from Vesper George School of Art. She also attended classes at the Museum of Fine Arts and is presently studying with George Shedd, watercolorist, in Lexington. Giello's work is realilstically portrayed in watercolor and acrylics. On view are florals and scenes of New England. She is a member of the Winchester Art Assn. and the painter's guild: Lexington Arts and Crafts Society.

Palumbo, a Wakefield resident, is a graduate of the New England School of Art and has taken post graduate courses at the School of the Museum of Fine Arts. Formerly an art director with a Boston advertising agency, Palumbo now free lances in commercial illustration and design. He is also a painter working in both oils and watercolors. His subject matter is varied and reflects his many interests. The paintings are positive statements, rendered with skill and a fine sense of color. Several drawings also appear in the show and prove his draftsman's expertise. Palumbo is a member of the Winchester Art Assn. and is studying watercolor with George Shedd.

"Three of Us" will be on display June 10 - 28. The gallery at 600 Main st. will be open Saturdays and Sundays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Evenings by appointment.

ANYBODY GOT AN ARK? — Last week's 8.9 inches of rain — a fifth of Winchester's annual rainfall — flooded Cross st. and closed the road.

Town Feels Effects Of Rain

Things weren't as bad in Winchester, Mass., as they were in Winchester, N.H., where floodwaters rose into people's homes and forced residents to take to canoes.

But the 8.92 inches of rain that fell in town last week — a fifth of the annual rainfall — did cause sewage overflows, flooded basements and a whole lot of depression among those who hadn't seen the sun for a week.

The worst flooding in town was on the north side, where Cross st. was closed because of flooding under the railroad bridge, and Davidson Park was underneath the overflowing Aberjona.

The flooding at Davidson Park caused sewage overflows into the Aberjona, overflows that will eventually contaminate Wedge Pond and the Mystic Lakes.

The sewage-contaminated water also flowed into several homes on the lower end of Forest st., forcing the homeowners to build sandbag barricades to stop the tide.

"The MDC manholes (at Davidson Park) were covered with water and bubbling up," noted Public Works Director Domenic Serratore. "We had a lot of problems with MDC surcharging."

Overflowing sewer manholes in five locations in town — Everell rd., Lakeview rd., Forest st., Wildwood st. and Squire rd. — forced DPW crews to pump sewage directly into storm drain lines which feed into the town's rivers.

The situation wasn't as bad as it had been in the past, when several sewage pumping stations were backed up with sewage and had to be pumped out, thanks to repairs to the system over the last year.

Sewage system repairs also alleviated the overflowing of the manhole on Cambridge st. next to the Winchester Boat Club.

"We experienced very little overflow on Cambridge st., just a trickle," said Serratore. "It shows how our sewer program has helped — it used to pour out of there for weeks at a time."

Besides pumping out manholes, DPW crews answered 25 to 30 calls from residents with sewage pouring into their basements.

Pac-Man To Come To Bowladrome

Video Game License Granted

Despite the objections of neighbors who live near the Winchester Bowladrome, the beeping and whirring of Pac-Man machines will soon be a familiar sound to bowlers.

Selectmen granted a license for three video games to Bowladrome owner Arthur Reinold who had requested a license for five games.

Two weeks ago, Reinold appeared before the selectmen to request the license. The selectmen, after listening to a barrage of protest from Reinold's neighbors on Swanton st., decided to do some investigating before granting the license.

After investigating Mighty Vending Co. which will be installing the games, and conferring with Police Chief John McHugh, selectmen decided to grant Reinold a license for three games instead of five.

"This man is trying to make a success of his business, and while five games may be too many, I support granting the license for three," said Selectman Edward O'Connell. "We (the selectmen) always have the right to revoke that license."

O'Connell also said that it was "unfair to hang Reinold for the sins of the past," a reference to the allegations made by irate neighbors of the bowling alley about problems with past owners.

The neighbors, however, were intent on expressing their dissatisfaction with the bowling alley again this week.

"Wait till you see all the hanging out that is going to go on once they have those games," said Mary Della Ciappa, who lives across from the bowling alley. "I mean, I've got to live near there and it is hell, believe me."

Della Ciappa, along with several other neigbors, described tales of woe that have included problems with traffic, littering, and noise.

But even Selectman Michael Saraco, who was against granting a license to Ruggles and Bowker Sports Shop last summer, insisted that "litter and parking problems do exist — what these people want is to have the bowling alley out of there."

Police Chief John McHugh agreed that the neighbors were "quite right in their allegations of the past — but since the Bowladrome reopened under Reinold, there hasn't been any trouble at all," he said.

"Let's grant the license and see what happens," said Selectman Michael Saraco.

And grant it they did, by a unanimous vote.

Discussion Of Transfer Fees Is Postponed

A roomful of commercial haulers appeared before the Board of Selectmen on Monday night to discuss rules and regulations at the Transfer Station.

However, after a lengthy discussion that centered on how much to charge for hauling brush, tires and refuse, selectmen decided not to take any action.

Selectman Michael Saraco said he wanted to eliminate charges for brush, and begin charging a fee for hauling tires.

Hauler John Airey reminded selectmen that "it would be quite expensive to charge for tires."

Selectmen plan to take some action on the fees next week or the week after, and the haulers will attend their third selectmen meeting this month.

A Taste Of The Town's Past History

A little less than 100 years ago a buggy ride through Winchester's streets would have taken you past tanneries, factories turning out felt, shoe machinery, and piano cases.

You'd see large lumber yards which supplied hemlock bark to the tanneries and mahogany for furniture and interiors of homes. As you passed by the large laundry establishment in the center of town by Mill Pond, your nose told you it was in full operation.

Much has changed.

What remains are the streets of Italianate and Queen Anne Style of houses, the workers' houses clustered near where factories once were located, and remnants of turn-of-the-century ethnic neighborhoods.

How the town changes in the future depends upon our ability to remember Winchester's past and to appreciate the beauty which remains. This is one of the reasons the Winchester Historical Society and the Winchester Historical Commission have joined together to plan a book on the architectural heritage of Winchester.

They seek to increase pride in the town and its variety of architectural styles, and at the same time, trace the development of its neighborhoods from parcels of farmland to its present-day place as a Boston suburb.

The book will contain old views of Winchester, old maps showing changes in the town's development, and walking maps for self-guided tours. There will be photos of about 100 houses and public buildings.

A special exhibit on Winchester's past is being displayed for Town Day. The committee invites you to stop by to see it and invite your suggestions and comments. For those who would like to make a tax-deductible donation to the project, checks can be made out to the Architectural Heritage Book Committee and mailed to the Archival Center, 15 High st.

THIS OLD HOUSE — The Greeley-Phippen House on Myrtle terr. will be one of the classic Winchester homes chronicled in a book on Winchester's architectural heritage. The book is being prepared by the Winchester Historical Society. (Photo courtesy of the Henry E. Simonds Archives)

High School Language Teacher Is Dismissed

In a closed session Tuesday night, the School Committee voted to dismiss a tenured high school language teacher.

The committee voted unanimously to dismiss Albert Trottier, a teacher in the Foreign Language Dept.

Trottier was not present during the 45-minute executive session, although he had received two hand-delivered notifications that the hearing would be held.

School Committee members noted that although they did not want to prevent the public from hearing their discussions, they felt it was in Trottier's best interest to hear the evidence against him in private.

The vote to go into executive session was unanimous.

Christian Scientists Gather For Annual Meeting

Members of First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Winchester gathered in Boston with Christian Scientists from all over the world for the annual meeting of their church on June 4.

Church officers spoke of the critical need for 'works over words' in the closing years of the 20th century.

Incoming chairman of The Christian Science Board of Directors, H. Dickinson Rathbun, invited church members to consider ways in which the deeper message of the Bible could be more widely felt. "Without any doubt," said Rathbun, the best "advertisement" is to "demonstrate in our lives the Christ" which Jesus so fully taught and lived.

The gathering focused on what Christian Scientists term their "pastor," the Bible and the Christian Science textbook. Speakers emphasized the role of this textbook — "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by the church's founder, Mary Baker Eddy — in "unlocking Bible treasures" in somewhat the same manner as a deeply inspired sermon. (As a church of laymen, with no clergy, Christian Scientists place special emphasis on the "pastoral" role of the Scriptural Word, which, they feel, offers daily guidance, comfort, and healing.)

The awakening interest in Biblical healing was also noted as a significant "sign of the times." Reports from the treasurer, clerk, and church committees were included in the meeting.

Church president, James K. Kyser, of Chapel Hill, N.C., handed over the gavel to incoming president Zadie Hatfield of Hingham. A native of England, Hatfield served with the Royal Air Force in Southeast Asia and the Middle East before emigrating to the United States to serve at the church's headquarters. She recently resigned as Trustee of The Christian Science Publishing Society to devote her full time to the public practice of Christian Science.

The Christian Science Church was founded in 1879.

Scout Camp Seeking Summer Campers

Applications are stil being accepted for Parker Mountain Scout Reservation in Center Barnstead, N.H., according to camp director Joseph Carlson, a district executive with the local Minuteman Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

Parker Mountain Scout Reservation's summer program is open to any registered Scout. There are six one-week sessions, starting July 8 through Aug. 18. Most boys attend camp with their local troops. However, boys also have the option of attending individually, as a member of the Reservation Troop.

There are six major program areas at camp, staffed by more than 30 adults and counselors of high school and college age. Each area offers instruction, merit badge classes and activities.

The areas are: waterfront, which includes swimming, rowing, lifesaving, canoeing and sailing; handicratts, including woodcarving, metalworking, basketry and leatherwork; Scoutcratt, with pioneering, camping, cooking, wilderness survival; a ropes course — Project Adventure activities to challenge a boy's strength, balance and agility; field sports, included are ritlery, archery, trap shooting and athletics; and nature —

Camp activities also include campfire entertainments and other activities.

There is a fee for attending camp, which includes meals in the central dining hall. Discounts are available to families with more than one Scout, attending with their own troop; fees are slightly higher for boys attending as a member of the Reservation Troop. There are a limited number of camperships available for families for whom the fee would provide a hardship.

Parents or Scouts seeking additional information about Parker Mountain's offerings or fees should contact Alice Hegarty at the Minuteman Council office in Stoneham.

Skillings Parking Plans To Be Re-examined

Plans to improve the parking lot on Skillings rd. have taken on a new dimension — although what that will mean is still unclear to the people behind those plans.

Economic Development Coordinator John Connery, along with Charles Tseckeres, an architect who is on the town beautification committee, presented selectmen with a plan to resurface the Skillings rd. lot, improve the drainage, and expand the number of parking spaces.

However, several senior citizens from the Jenks Center expressed some concern over the new plans. They told selectmen that they are worried about sidewalk space and a proposed island in the lot, which they would like to see taken away altogether.

"There are many seniors who need easy access to the Jenks because they have wheelchairs, crutches, walkers and canes," said Robert Mulford, Chairman of the Council on Aging. "We're not against beautification, but we are concerned about our access to the center."

After a lengthy debate, selectmen decided to wait another week before taking any action on the parking plan. Both Connery and Tseckeres will appear before the board again next week.

Summer Band Concert Rehearsals To Begin

As the school year winds down, the Winchester Recreation Dept. is, once again, ready to make the summer of '84 a most memorable one.

With children starting to get out of school, parents are looking for ways to excape the aggravating whines of children saying, "Mom, I'm bored," The Recreation Dept. wants to help parents resolve this problem.

Starting June 20 at 7 p.m. at the Winchester High School, Priscilla Miller will be conducting band rehearsals for the summer band concerts. These rehearsals are open to both parents and children who have a musical background in playing an instrument.

The music selection is from both the past and present. People of all ages are welcome to come and sit behind the Town Hall at the frontage of the Duck Pond and listen to the great sounds of music peformed by these talented musicians. These concerts make for a warm, comfortable atmosphere.

On July 11, the first concert will be held from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

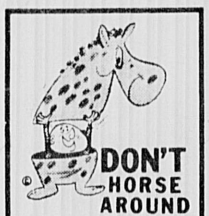

If you are interested in being a part of this family event and have an instrument background, contact the Winchester Recreation Dept. daily, Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

If you just wish to be a spectator and enjoy the music, feel free to attend the first concert on July 11. The concerts are provided to residents free of charge.

Around The World At The Lynch School

Students and their parents got to take a trip around the world last week at the Lynch School's International Day. Displays for International Day showed food and products from dozens of countries including Portugal, Ireland, Italy, Denmark and Sweden. Katacuko Sato of Parker rd. cooked up some Japanese delicacies for the fairgoers (above), while the display for Germany featured strudel and porcelain crafts.

Remembering In Different Ways

By TERRY MAROTTA

It was May 30th — the real Memorial Day — and I was remembering.

The skies were gloomy. Rain had been falling since Monday. An eclipse of eerie greenishness darkened the mid-day hours.

For me this was the time for remembering the dead, and I found my thoughts traveling back to other such Memorial Days when, as children, we made the yearly visit.

I recalled leafy afternoons in aging cemeteries: the crisp and vivid flowers; the rows of markers; the neat and final writing etched for all time in the enduring rock.

We danced among the gravestones, my sister and I, comparing geraniums and the colors of marble. We played games of hide-and-seek there, and ran squealing among the quiet avenues. We scarcely noticed, in our youthful ignorance, that our grownups had fallen silent. They stood, or kneeled by this marker or that. They looked off into the distant trees, or down at their hands. They reached out to touch a chiseled name.

They were remembering, and visiting in memory, those who had gone on ahead of them. They were reflecting on the passage of time, I suppose, the wounds that it heals and the ones that it doesn't.

People do this in different ways, and at different times.

I found myself doing it last Wednesday. I returned, in my mind, to that old cemetery on the other side of Boston where I had visited as a child.

My grandfather, whom I remember so vividly, is buried there with his family. I reflected again on the pathos of those names and dates: the wife he outlived by some 50 years, she who, scarcely 30, died and lies buried, as the stone tells it, with her infant daughter in her arms; the second wife he took, sister to the first, who raised up his four little children and gave him a fifth; who then died herself, though scarcely more than 40, and lies with them too.

I thought of him coming, not once but twice, to perform these untimely interments. I pictured him as I remember him, white-haired and kindly, remote by then from the realms of excessive emotion. I pictured him as he must have been then, looking off into those same trees, burdened by fresh grief, and wondering where to go from there.

I visited with him myself, I guess, then. I told him in my mind how I still miss him. Told him of my first born child, named for his young wife Carrie. Told him of my sister's first, named for his second wife Grace. Told him too of our newest baby, named Michael, for him, and born just weeks ago, 110 years after he was born on a farm in western Massachusetts.

It was a good visit, and May 30th was a good day to have it.

But May 30th was also a day for the living. It was precisely the day, five years ago, that my daughter Anne was born. The weather was much the same, even. Thunder claps applauded outside the hospital windows.

So I think of her today too, as I bake the cake and wrap the little presents. And I am struck by the way thoughts of the dead and thoughts of the living interweave themselves in the cloth of our lives.

I remember my grandfather and look backward, with him, to the world of the 19th century. I contemplate my children and look forward, with them, to the world of the 21st. Their worlds meet, it seems, in my joint contemplation of them. They meet themselves, almost.

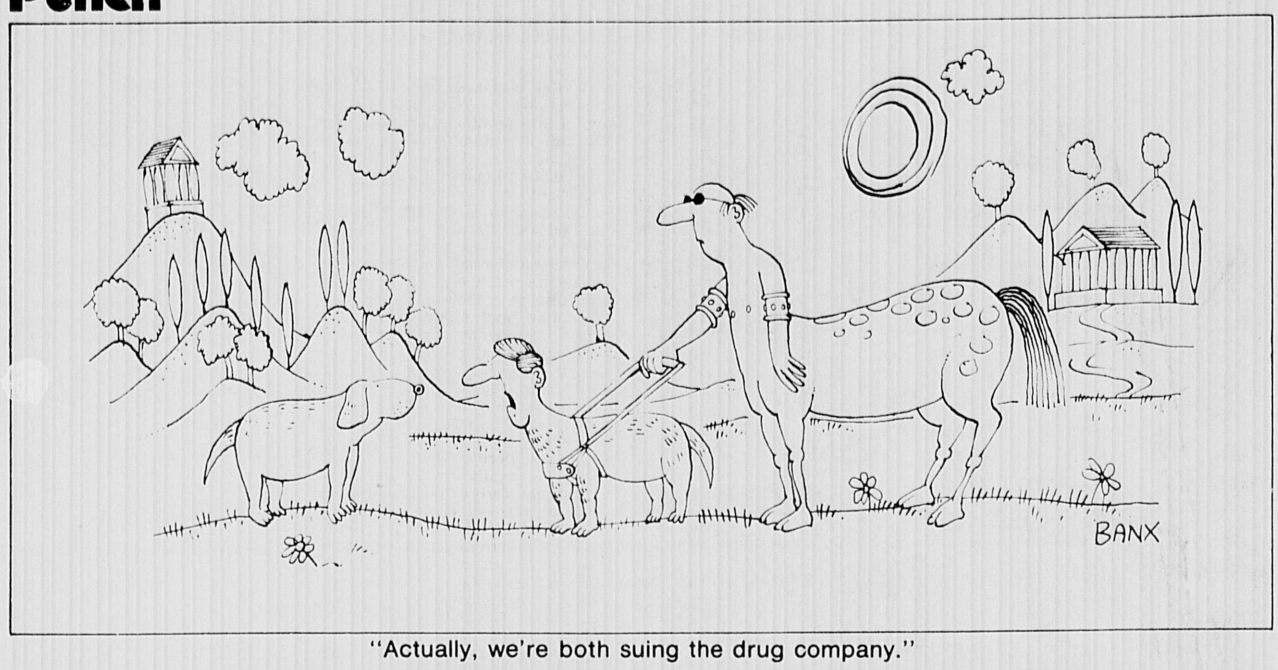

And they regard me perhaps, who has yet to learn about the sharpest kinds of loss, the one with the vision of those who have passed beyond the laws of time; and the others with the young and sightless sight of those for whom death is a fairy tale.

I am no longer the one who dances, laughing, among the gravestones. I am not yet the one who, weeping, touches the chiseled name. I am somewhere in between, and sensing, in the moment, those two conditions.

For it was May 30th. And I was remembering.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

This week's report records votes on roll calls from the week of May 28-June 1.

DRUGS (S 254) — Senate 19-19, defeated a bill denying bail to anyone charged with possession of illegal drugs with a street value of more than $25,000.

Supporters said many rich pushers get out on bail and skip off to another city or state to sell drugs.

Opponents, claiming the bill is unconstitutional, said there are no non-bailable crimes in the state and claimed judges need to have flexibility to allow or deny bail based on individual circumstances.

On May 9, the Senate tabled S 1101, a bill with the same language, on a roll call vote of 18-13.

Sen. Richard Kraus voted no.

TENANTS (S 718) — Senate 19-18, barely defeated a lengthy bill requiring "just cause" for termination of tenancies by a landlord. The bill prohibits a landlord from evicting a tenant without just cause and provides several instances of just cause including a tenant failing to pay the rent; continuing to disturb the peace; using the apartment for illegal activity; violating terms of the lease; refusing to renew a similar lease; refusing to allow the owner reasonable access; or refusing to pay a reasonable rent increase.

Supporters said the bill is fair to both groups and simply prohibits a landlord from evicting a tenant on a whim. Many admitted the bill was not perfect, but urged initial approval to keep it alive and work out the bugs.

Opponents said the bill is poorly drafted and takes away many rights of landlords. Some said it changes the recent condo conversion law and creates a vehicle of statewide rent control.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Kraus voted yes.

OPTOMETRISTS (H 1060) — Senate 24-14, tabled a bill allowing optometrists to use certain drugs and perform tests, previously reserved for opthalmologists, in diagnosing and examining a patient's eyes.

Supporters argued the bill would make the test available to more consumers at a reasonable cost. They said it contains many safeguards insuring that optometrists are trained to administer the tests and drugs.

Opponents said optometrists are not medical doctors and simply are not as trained and qualified as opthalmologists to perform the tests. They said the bill is another attempt to lower medical standards in the state.

A "Yea" vote is for tabling the bill. A "Nay" vote is against tabling.

Kraus voted no.

SECRET BALLOT — Senate 26-8, refused to suspend rules to allow consideration of an order requiring that the election of the Senate President and ratification of all majority and minority floor positions and committee chairpersons be by secret ballot.

Supporters urged immediate consideration and noted these proposals are not new and have been discussed for years. They said a secret ballot is democratic and would stop intimidation by the leadership.

Opponents said the Senate should wait for the comprehensive package being developed by the special Senate committee.

A "Yea" vote is for rule suspension to allow immediate consideration of the order. A "Nay" vote is against rule suspension.

Kraus voted no.

REPORT CRIMES (H 2966) — House 98-49, rejected a bill requiring the chief of police in every community to compile a list of the number of crimes committed in that community with a handgun and whether the handgun was legally or illegally obtained.

Supporters, noting the reports would go to the Dept. of Public Safety, said the information would be useful in getting a handle on the problem of crime and illegal handguns.

Opponents said many communities already compile the information voluntarily and claimed requiring it would actually be an unfunded state mandated program which is in violation of Proposition $2^1/_2$.

Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh voted no.

BAN HANDGUNS (H 2967) — House 109-41, rejected a bill banning the sale and rent of snub-nosed handguns with barrels of three inches or less and allowing their use only by police officers.

Supporters, noting hundreds are killed annually by these handguns, said 71 percent of all handguns used are snub-nosed and claimed they serve no purpose except for use in a crime.

Opponents said banning the guns will not reduce crime because criminals will simply obtain them illegally. They noted that many people use a snub-nosed gun to protect themselves.

Saltmarsh voted no.

LOCAL COMMUNITIES (H 4918) — House 120-27, rejected a bill allowing cities and towns to enact their own laws for prohibiting, regulating, or controling the possession of handguns.

Supporters, noting that 40 states have similar laws, said the proposal is not pro or anti gun but is simply a home rule bill which gives local communities the power to regulate handguns.

Opponents said regulations of handguns is a very important issue which requires a statewide standard. They said the state already has very stringent handgun standards and expressed concern that the bill should also allow a community to require everyone in that community to own a handgun.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill giving the power to cities and towns. A "Nay" vote is against the bill.

Saltmarsh voted no.

DIRECTORY ASSISTANCE (H 5893) — House 109-39, rejected an amendment to a bill allowing New England Telephone to charge for directory assistance calls made from business phones. The bill allows 10 free calls for each separate business line that a company has. The amendment would allow unlimited directory assistance calls from the company's first line.

Amendment supporters argued the amendment would exempt small one-phone businesses from any of the charges. They said the charges could seriously hurt small businesses who legitimately have to call for phone numbers several times.

Opponents said small one-phone businesses are usually in a localized area and don't have as much need for directory assistance. They claimed 10 free calls is generous enough and pointed out that the exemption would create a loophole by allowing big businesses to make all their directory assistance calls on the one free line and avoid all charges.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment exempting the first line. A "Nay" vote is against the amendment.

Saltmarsh voted no.

Police Responses To Gun Death Are Wrong

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The responses of Police Chief McHugh, Lt. Perritano, and Sgt. Manzie to the incident last month in which 17-year-old James Plunkett died from a wound accidentally inflicted by a loaded revolver left on his refrigerator is typical of the macho, cavalier attitude too many Americans have toward handguns.

Each argued that stricter handgun control laws would not prevent, this and similar incidents. Furthermore, they claim the only lesson to be learned is to exercise proper handgun care. Realistically the only way to avoid such tragedies in the future is a federal or state law banning private ownership of handguns.

Enough with the argument that we have a constitutional right to tote a handgun. The Second Amendment provides for the right of the people to keep and bear arms to provide for a well-regulated militia. The founding fathers gave us a flexible, adaptable constitution designed to be interpreted as the country changes.

The days of the Minuteman are over and authors of the Constitution would be appalled to see citizens of this, the strongest nation on earth, using the amendment to purchase pistols and revolvers.

The sickening result of easy access to handguns in this country are approximately 2,000 dead each year with thousands of others wounded, maimed, and paralyzed. Statistics compiled by the Nationaal Safety Council show that the large majority of these incidents involve a person with a legally owned handgun shooting a family member, friend, or himself.

Chief McHugh's insightful analysis that "people kill people" may be true, but if a weapon such as a handgun which kills so easily is not there, chances are no one will die. He is also unfortunately correct when he states that "guns don't think." They are patient, merciless, and never discriminate among targets. A handgun owners weapon will always be there. During a heated drunken argument, or as in the case of James Plunkett, when it is not locked up and out of sight.

Chief McHugh and others of the Winchester Police Dept. are sorely wrong, gun control laws will make a big difference in lives and misery spared.

Hopefully the tragedy of James Plunkett will do more than teach us proper gun care, it will prompt handgun owners to properly dispose of these murderous weapons for good.

Sincerely,
E. A. Quinn
Sheffield rd.

(Editorial Note: With 60 million handguns in circulation in the United States and nearly 250 million guns of all types, confiscation or total banning is unrealistic and unworkable, thus the article properly focused on the safety concerns of public officials and the responsibilities of gun owners. A proposed ban was defeated by Massachusetts votes in 1976 by 3 to 1 and by a similar margin in California in 1982. The statistics should be viewed in perspective. While the National Safety Council lists 1,900 firearms fatalities annually, its figures also show that more than four times as many people — over 8,000 — die from "falls in the home," in the bathtub or down the stairs. Statistically firearms are very low on the scale of accidental deaths nationally and extremely low in Massachusetts. As the article pointed out, this state, has quite restrictive gun control laws, among the toughest in the nation. The Massachusetts Dept. of Public Safety testified before the legislature this year that of the state's 1.9 million licensed gun owners, accidental injury and criminal misuse is practically unrecorded. The real problem is that you cannot legislate common sense, as Police Chief McHugh and his officers pointed out last week.)

A Memorial Day Parade Thank-You

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Through your newspaper, I would like to extend my thanks to Mahoney's Rocky Ledge Farm for their participation in our Memorial Day Parade on May 28.

Their float was most appreciated and very patriotic.

I am sure it's appearance in our parade gladden the hearts of both the young and the old alike.

I would also like to extend a word of thanks to Bonnell Motors (Ford dealer) for the beautiful Mustang Convertible furnished to the Veterans Service Dept. on May 28 for the transportation of two World War I veterans in our parade.

I am very grateful to Ralph Bonnell for his kindness, he is truly a good neighbor.

Sincerely,
Howard E. Chase
Director of Veteran Services

Story Missed Some Candidates

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

As readers of The Winchester Star know, this paper had an excellent news story by Liz Willen (May 31) about the Shamie-Richardson-Jefferson presentation at the recent Republican Candidate's Rally in Winchester. However, the affair included six other candidates who, as usually is the case, waited through the long evening to be seen and heard by the audience!

These candidates and the various offices they are seeking in their various districts, were: S. Lester Ralph of Reading, the only Republican running for Markey's 7th Middlesex Congressional seat; Joseph Russo of Woburn and Raymond Birt of Arlington, both running for state representative in different districts; Nick Polio of Sudbury, for county commissioner; and Lyman Judd of Arlington, whose name will not appear on the ballot but who will be campaigning as a "write in" or "sticker" candidate for state senate. The moderator for the evening, Sherman W. Saltmarsh Jr. is also running for reelection as state representative.

Mildred Jefferson's late arrival was unfortunate, but her warm articulate message was well received. Those who have met her over the past few years would probably agree that the Republican Party of Massachusetts has been enriched by her loyalty and particpation.

Scouts Plan Memorial Fund For Former Leader

Dr. Edward S. Reynolds

CAMPERS — To Dr. Edward S. Reynolds, former scoutmaster of Winchester Troop 507, scouting meant camping. He took the troop out at least once a month.

Whether pitching a tent or guiding the uninitiated through a Polar Bear weekend, Dr. Edward S. Reynolds Jr., former Winchester resident and scoutmaster of Winchester Troop 507, made it look easy and served as an inspiration to countless boys.

Dr. Reynolds died last Nov. 12 at his home in Galveston, Texas, and in recognition of his devotion to youths, and scouting, a committee composed of former members of Troop 507 has announced the completion of plans for a memorial to Dr. Reynolds.

The memorial, in the form of a permanent fund to which townspeople are invited to contribute, will provide opportunities for Winchester Boy and Girl Scouts to participate in scouting events in other parts of the country or the world.

Scouting, and especially camping, were very important to Dr. Reynolds who contributed in major ways to many lives with his enthusiasm, natural leadership, skill in the outdoors and sense of humor.

Dr. Reynolds, who died at age 54, was an unusually gifted man. In addition to his demanding medical work as a pathologist, he put high priority on his work with the Scouts. Frequently he would leave the hospital in the early evening, skipping dinner in order to meet with his Scouts. During his leadership he set high goals for Troop 507 and inspired those around him with his infectious enthusiasm.

His success as a scoutmaster includes motivating not only the Scouts but also their parents. This ability to motivate the parents in support of the troop served to make Troop 507 outstanding and treasured by all those who had the good fortune to be associated under his leadership.

At the same time, the genial scoutmaster was a careful and gifted researcher, with a lifelong interest in medicine.

At the time of his death Dr. Reynolds was serving as chairman of the Dept. of Pathology at the University of Texas Medical Branch in Galveston. During the years of 1961 to 1976, Dr. Reynolds was a member of the staff of the Pathology Dept. at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital and an associate professor of pathology at Harvard Medical School. His lifelong interest was in basic research, specifically in the molecular mechanisms of cell injury. He published 90 articles, reviews and book chapters.

Between 1966 and 1976, he was a recipient of a research career development award from the National Institute of Health. At the University of Texas Medical Branch, (UTMB) he was particularly interested in the training of young scientists. For the last four years he was director of a program at UTMB to provide medical students with research experience.

Since September 1983, Dr. Reynolds had been on a sabbatical leave to study nuclear magnetic resonance imaging in the laboratory of Dr. Robert Schulman of Yale University. Just prior to his death he had returned to Galveston from Yale to give the Paul Brinley Memorial Pathology Lecture and to be with his family.

Dr. Reynolds was president of the Houston Society of Clinical Pathologists and a member of other scientific societies including the American Assn. of Pharmacology and Experimental Therapeutics. He was co-editor of the Journal of Texas Medicine and member of the editorial board of five journals.

Dr. Reynolds was an active and supporting member of the Unitarian Church during his residence in Winchester.

'Dr. Edward Reynolds, who died at age 54, was an unusually gifted man...he put high priority on his work with the scouts.'

Dr. Reynolds is survived by his wife Elizabeth, an associate professor of education at the University of Houston, two sons, Peter, a Dallas attorney; and William, an engineering student at Texas A & M and two daughters; Jean Dunham of Melrose, and Margaret Winters of Minn. As a family, they went on many camping trips. Margaret will continue the medical tradition of the family when she matriculates as a medical student at the University of Texas, Medical Branch, Galveston this fall.

Dr. Reynolds earned his bachelor's degree from Williams College in 1950 and his M.D. from Washington University in 1954. He was an intern and resident at Peter Bent Brigham Hospital from 1954 to 1959. After two years of military service at the Armed Forces Institute of Pathology in Washington, D.C., he returned to Boston to Peter Bent Brigham Hospital.

He was truly dedicated to the service of his fellow man. In recognition of his commitment to young people, a committee has been formed to develop a memorial to his scouting memory. The committee plans to raise a permanent fund, the income of which will be used to send deserving Winchester Boy or Girl Scouts to major scouting/camping events such as Philmont in New Mexico, a World Jamboree or other appropriate scouting endeavor each year. A target has been set for a $10,000 goal, the minimum adequate to meet this objective.

The awards will be administered initially by a group composed of former members of the Committee of Troop 507 which has arranged to have the administration of the fund handled through the Permanent Charity Fund of Boston. All contributions are tax deductible. Leadership grants are being solicited from several Winchester organizations selected for their support of youth and community activities.

Former members of the 507 Troop Committee and Scouts involved in the initial planning and setting up this effort are: Harry Boodakian, chairman; Jack Farrell, Al Fernald, Fred Greene, Bud Knopf, Dan Holmes and John Saylor.

Request for contributions have been mailed earlier this week to community leaders, former scouts, troop committeemen, members of the medical community and church members. Anyone who has not yet received such a letter and wishes to contribute, is requested to send a check payable to the Edward S. Reynolds Jr. Memorial Fund Committee, c/o John Saylor, Arthur Andersen & Co., 100 Federal st., Boston, 02106. All contributions are welcome.

Winston Churchill once said, "We make a living by what we get, but we make a life by what we give."

Robert A. Storer, D.D., now minister emeritis of th Winchester Unitarian Society, who was minister during the years that the Reynolds family was resident in Winchester, said, "I recall what a concerned man he was. He had four chi! 'ren of his own but involved himself in youtn work in the community."

"A busy doctor, he had time for the church and the community," said Storer. "He raised his children in faithfulness to duty and to each other. He was a most sincere man, tended to his responsibilities, cherished honor above indulgence and service above gain. His warm, gracious personality was evident in his roles as father, husband, physician, churchman, community leader and friend. He has lived out life's pattern and God the master weaver has put away the loom and called it good. Bless you, Ted."

Winchester High School Graduation Ceremony

YAHOO — Graduates throw their mortarboards in the air to celebrate completing four years at Winchester High. (Photo by Marc McGeehan)

A Silver Tear Appearing Now

(Editor's note: Winchester High School sophomore Bonnie Jean Casey submitted this article as a tribute to the seniors who graduated Sunday.)

By BONNIE-JEANNE CASEY

Wow! It's graduation time and for you seniors it's a time for change. Things are happening quickly and you may not know where you're going or what exactly you'll do when you get there. But more frightening may be your uncertainty about where you have been and what you have done.

I am still a sophomore, but a few very special friends of mine were robed and seated facing the bleachers of Manchester Field this Sunday. For them and any senior who feels distressed because you feel as if you haven't left your "mark" at WHS here is how you have left a mark on me, and (undoubtedly on) many more like me.

Yes, you have taken the tests, passed in the papers, survived the report cards, and completed the applications. But there are also some intangible accomplishments. You have felt the pressure of deadlines hanging over your head, you have experienced the excitement of being challenged academically and athletically, and you have enjoyed the satisfaction of developing strong friendships. You have changed, but in doing so you have helped me to change and grow.

First, in sports. Far from the aches and pains any athletic event is sure to induce upon our bodies lies a special connection between people known as teamship. You have proven to me that hard work and continual repetition of the basics, not only in soccer but in softball as well, can develop into something as beautiful as a butterfly known as SUCCESS.

From you, my teammates, I have learned now to cooperate better with people and that sometimes you just have to be crazy! I'll remember the doughnuts we shared, the queerfish we laughed at, and the closeness I felt. Another closeness I have felt has been between two people — sisters to me. The closer of the two has taught me to take the chance if I see it and to think with my head not my heart. From the other, I have been exposed to a new religion,! and taught to be punctual with due dates.

I will remember the smiles, the dimples, the friendship pins, the sharing of clothes, and the common denominator between these two people - an appealing goofiness!

I have had some very special times with all of these people. I hope they have felt the same way and I hope they now can walk away with a feeling of accomplishment and importance. I will not forget.

So, in conclusion, I wish you all to sail on in pursuit of your dreams. Remember us, your high school friends who will be toasting to you with red wine and waiting your return with open arms. Even though

"So many people have come and gone
Their faces fade as the years go by Yet I'll still recall as I wander on
As clear as the sun in the Summer sky
It's more than a feeling" — Boston

1984 Class President's Speech

Honored guests, parents, faculty and friends, I would like to welcome you to the Class of 1984 graduation ceremonies on behalf of my classmates.

Looking back four years ago, our McCall-Lynch rivalry was short-lived as we became a united class entering as the first freshman class in the new high school. We were full of awe and wonder at the size of the school and of the upperclassmen, but somehow we made the adjustment.

Over these last four years, we have grown together as a class as well as individuals. We have been guided by outstanding faculty and administrators who encouraged us and applauded our efforts. We thank them for this encouragement, for helping us grow, shaping our ideas, attitudes and for preparing us for the academic world, but more importantly for the real world.

To the coaches who coached us,

To the teachers who taught us,

To the faculty who advised our many clubs and organizations,

To the counselors who guided us,

To the administrators who led us, our thanks and appreciation, and

To our parents — thank you for loving and supporting us; it has meant everything!

Class President Laurie Glynn

Today, as we step up another rung on the ladder of life, we have mixed feelings — sadness at leaving Winchester High School and our friends, but joy and happiness realizing our accomplishments and anticipation of the challenges in our future.

To my classmates — whether you go on to college, business or trade school, out to the working world, or enter the military service — think positively. Out of everything bad happens something good. As far as you seek you can go; as much as you dream you can be.

In closing, I would like to share this quote from Emerson:

"To laugh often and much; to win the respect of intelligent people and the affection of children; to earn the appreciation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends; to appreciate beauty; to find the best in others; to leave the world a bit better whether a healthy child, a garden patch, or a redeemed social condition; to know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived. This is to have succeeded."

Thank you.

WHAT'S GROWING ON....
Farm: The rain has finally ended and it's time to get back to farming. Fortunately our drainage is good and the crops survived. One major problem with much water is that water-soluable nutrients such as nitrogen can get depleted from the soil. Fortunately, we compost heavily, which not only adds structure to the soil, but slowly releases nutrients.
This week we are harvesting the first lettuce, radishes and beet greens from the farm in Lexington. The strawberries in New Hampshire are blooming now and should be ready in about two weeks.
Lawn and Garden: Chinch bug activity is now beginning in the lawn so it's time for the first application of insecticide. Continue with a weed control program as well — either in broadcast or spotweed form.
Be on the lookout for signs of damage in the garden due to the heavy rains we've experienced. Among them are root maggots and fungus diseases. Both are treatable if detected early.
Though some harvesting may be taking place presently in your gardens, do not hesitate to continue putting out seeds and setting plants for a succession of harvest. Extra fertilization may also be necessary due to heavy leaching activity.
Japanese beetles are again on the rampage. We have a variety of sprays and traps to help you in combatting them.

Scholarship Foundation Receives Gift

The Winchester Scholarship Foundation has received a generous gift from the EnKa Society which will help the foundation achieve its objective of helping deserving students from Winchester continue their education.

Louise O'Donnell, chairperson of the Gifts Committee, noted that EnKa has been supporting the Scholarship Foundation for many years.

EnKa's unrestricted donation of $4000 will be used to help students bridge the gap between what parents can afford to contribute towards their son or daughter's education and other sources of financial aid.

The Scholarship Committee of the foundation works through the College Scholarship Service in Princeton, N.J. which determines financial need, and all information is kept strictly confidential. The committee establishes common standards and provides coordination for other clubs and organizations giving funds within the town.

The amount of aid the Winchester Scholarship Foundation can provide is largely dependent on contributions such as the one from EnKa and foundation President David Donahue expressed his appreciation to the organization for its support.

Paul Caros Has Been Mending Winchester Shoes For 58 Years

Photos & Story By Amy Sweeney

Paul Caros' face is a familiar one in Winchester. For the past 58 years he has been mending shoes in his Main st. Winchester Shoe Hospital. The tall, white-haired, 83-year-old still works a full week.

"On Mondays when the shop is closed, he doesn't know what to do with himself," says his daughter-in-law Marilyn. "If he is not around, he thinks everything is going to fall apart."

Fieleke Gives Senior Piano Recital

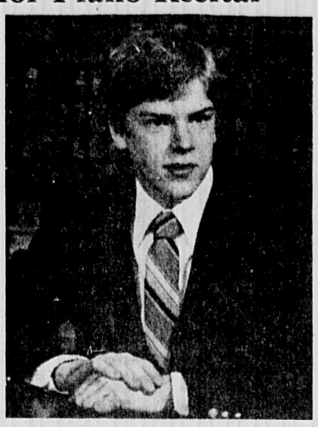

Eric Fieleke will present his senior piano recital in the Concert Hall at the Longy School of Music, One Follen st., Cambridge, on Saturday, June 9 at 4 p.m.

Featured will be piano music of Beethoven, Liszt and Ravel, and cello-piano duos by Bach and Prokovief, performed with cellist Martin Kodis of Newton. The public is cordially invited to this free concert.

Eric is a 1984 graduate of Winchester High School. He is a piano student of A. Ramon Rivera at the Music School at Rivers, and a member of the Young Performers of Longy, a group of talented young musicians from throughout New England.

Eric recently won first place in the scholarship competition sponsored by the Beethoven Society of Melrose. He was also grand prize winner in the 1984 statewide scholarship competition sponsored by the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs.

In recent months he has performed in Mundy Hall, Sarasota, Fla., the Worchester Art Museum, the Harvard Club of Boston, Dana Hall School in Wellesley, the North Reading Public Library, and the Contemporary Music Seminar in Weston.

Eric Fieleke

Eric will attend the Oberlin Conservatory of Music in September, majoring in piano performance.

Sophomore Is Anselm Student President

A Winchester student who is a sophomore at St. Anselm College, John Polcari, has been elected president of the student body at the college. Rarely, if ever, has a sophomore been elected student body president in the 95-year history of the school.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerard Polcari of 112 Middlesex st. His brother Gerard preceded John in student politics at St. Anselm having been the president of the class of 1981.

John received a Winchester Scholarship Foundation award upon graduation from Winchester High in 1982. Entering St. Anselm, he was elected to the student senate and president of the class of 1986.

In addition to his studies and his work in student government, John served as a campus candidate coordinator during the recent New Hampshire Primary election. He helped to coordinate, and served as an aide, for all of the original eight Democratic candidates upon their appearances at St. Alselm.

Sturbridge Chair

J. P. Barger of Central Green was recently elected Chairman of the Board of Trustees for Old Sturbridge Village, the recreated rural New England town of the 1830s.

Barger, president of Dynatech Corp. in Burlington, has been a member of the Board of Trustees of Old Sturbridge Inc. since 1978.

Driscoll Graduates

Michael T. Driscoll of Everett ave. recently graduated from Bridgton Academy in North Bridgton, Maine. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Driscoll.

Posthumous Award

The late Samuel R. Gargano, M.D. of Winchester has received special posthumous recognition from this year's graduating students at Tufts University School of Medicine, where, until his sudden death Jan. 2, he served as a clinical professor of surgery. He was also chairman of the department of surgery at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, the Chelsea Soldier's Home, and Youville Hospital in Cambridge.

The "Special Faculty Recognition Award" was established this year to "commend one faculty member who has demonstrated an exceptional dedication to teaching, a commitment to academic scholarship, and a concern for the general well-being of medical students." Dr. Gargano was chosen as the first award recipient "because of his numerous academic achievements, his unique leadership ability, his unselfish dedication and boundless enthusiasm for teaching."

Tufts' medical Class of '84 said, "To us he represented many fine qualities; he was a dedicated and compassionate surgeon whose role as a clinical professor was unsurpassed, for he spoke with words of wisdom backed by years of experience and an enthusiastic love for teaching. He truly took a genuine interest in not only our academic and surgical training but also in us as individuals — his caring, concern and friendship were an inspiration to all who knew him."

Merit Certificate

Marilyn Vancini of Harvard st. was awarded a Certificate of Merit for her project which was entered in the Mass. General Hospital Teaching Fair held last week at MGH.

Vancini, who works in the neurology unit, received the certificate for her creation and design of a new means in primary nursing patient teaching.

There were approximately 70 entries in the fair, and Vancini's entry was awarded second place. The Quality Assurance Committee at MGH is reviewing this teaching tool for implementation in primary nursing at Mass. Geneal Hospital.

Vancini, who is the mother of five children, received her RN in 1981 from Northeastern University.

Sales Award

Louis M. Ricci of Highland ave. has been awarded the "League Attaining Million Dollar Premium" ("LAMP") award by State Mutual Life Assurance Company of America at the company's recent Educational Conference in Bermuda.

Ricci, group sales representative for State Mutual's Boston Group Office, received the award for sales excellence and new annual group premium production of over $1,000,000 in a single year.

Fire School

Chief Robert McElhinney of the Winchester Fire Dept. has announced the recent graduation of Brian R. McNutt, from the Massachusetts Firefighting Academy's seven-week Recruit Firefighting Program.

This program, which is offered tuition free to municipal firefighters in the commonwealth, is designed to provide new firefighters with the basic skills necessary to insure their effective performance in their jobs.

The graduation exercises held at the Massachusetts Firefighting Academy's headquarters in Sudbury on May 4 marked the conclusion of an intensive and in-depth seven-week program for all students.

While the students' primary concerns were learning the basic firefighting skills during this time, they were also introduced to some more advanced topics which will be important as their career progress — such as public fire education training, hazardous materials, and stress management.

Students receive classroom training in all areas; and then, in the basic firefighting skills areas such as ladders, hose, and protective breathing apparatus, reinforce the classroom training by performing practical field evolutions — first under non-fire conditions and then during controlled fire conditions. By graduation, students have had practical, hands-on experience with live fires in buildings, vehicles, flammable liquids and have successfully fought these fires as effectively and safely as possible.

Sports Awards

At a recent school meeting, Belmont Hill School Headmaster Christopher Wadsworth announced the awards for the spring season. Among those honored were the following from Winchester:

Varsity letters in Crew: Joseph C. Abate, son of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Abate, Mortimer J. Buckley III, son of Dr. and Mrs. Mortimer J. Buckley, Thomas K. Families Of ABC Grads Gather

People literally came from all over the country to attend Sunday's graduation exercises for The Winchester High Class of '84.

Among those were the families of the three ABC (A Better Chance) seniors, Ron Conolly, from Los Angeles, Calif.; Brian Perry from Columbus, Ohio; and Jesse Fox from Nashville, Tenn.

The three gathered in Winchester as sophomores to become part of the A Better Chance Program, now in its' 13th year of providing an educational alternative for promising minority students.

The graduates have lived at 2 Dix st. with seven other students and a resident director, Mary Jo Nealon.

"I have had experiences that will be with me forever. I thank the ABC program, my host family, the Arcaris, and the town of Winchester for opening their hearts and arms to me," said Ron Conolly.

Ron tried his hand at football, lacrosse and print production while at the high school and was active on the school newspaper, "The Red and Black." He will be returning to California to pursue his educational goals and all his friends in Winchester wish him well.

"With all the irregularities that have come up in my years of being here, they have been a good experience for life and for my future," reflects Jesse Fox.

Jo Ann and Alan Schoenegge have been Jesse's host family during his three-year stay and were very proud when he attained high honor roll this year.

Jesse has been on the track team, the High Adventure Club and this year joined the wrestling team, which he really enjoyed. He will be entering the Marine Corps in Januray and all who knew him have high hopes for his success.

Brian Perry is an avid tennis player and contributed to the team during his high school career. He worked as a volunteer at the Jenks Center, served as house leader and held down a part-time job to save money for college.

Brian will be attending Duke University in the Fall. Dr. and Mrs. Gregory Schipani, his host family, along with all those connected with the program, wish him every success.

Brian chose to thank the program in a poetic style:

"I'll miss this place believe it or not,
For ABC is a once in a lifetime shot.
My host family, my friends -
Because of them, I'd go through it again.
Three years ago, I had a dream,
An impossible one — it surely seemed.
A chance for an education — a chance to go to college
ABC and all involved — I thank you for that."

Cloister Garden Concerts To Begin

At 8:30 p.m. on June 14, as dusk fades to darkness, 50 classically-trained young voices will fill the Cloister Garden of the Parish of the Epiphany at 70 Church st., and the curtain will go up on the 1984 Cloister Garden Concert Series as it simultaneously comes down on the ninth concert season for the Treble Chorus of New England.

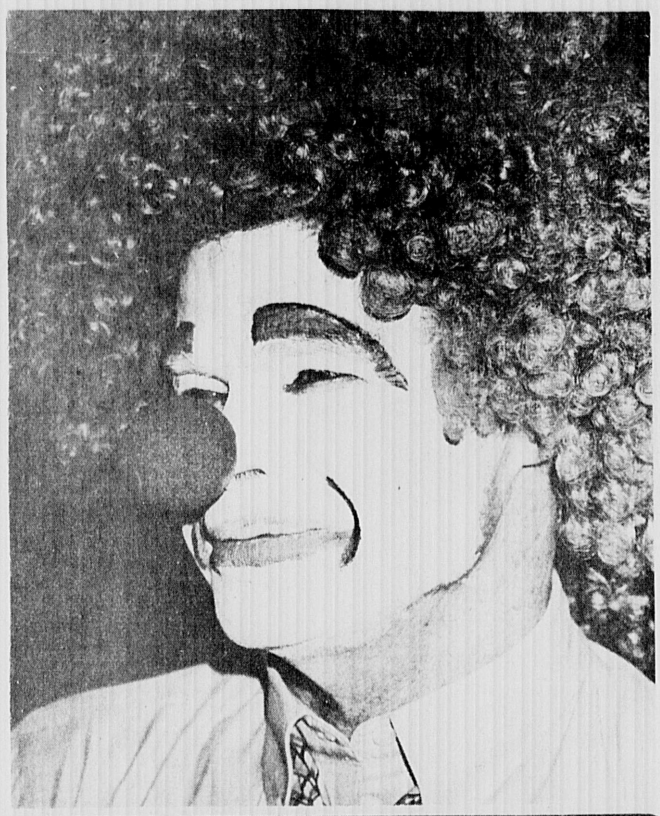

The Treble Chorus, a choir of girls and boys from 7 to 17 years of age drawn from 10 communities in the Greater Boston area including Winchester, has given over 60 performances in New England since it was founded by its director, Marie Stultz.

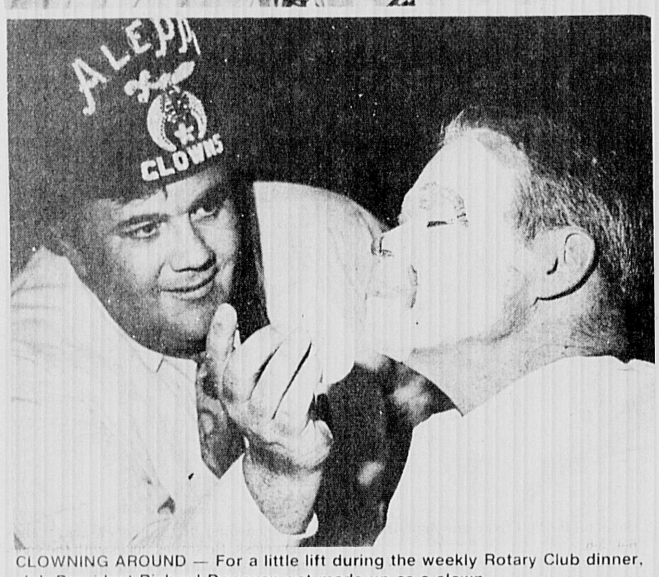

The chorus recently gave a live performance on "Morning Pro Musica," the Robert J. Lurtsema show on WGBH, and last week collaborated with the Boston Musica Viva and the Center for Advanced Visual Studies at MIT on the premiere performance in the United States of Paul Earls' contemporary opera, "Icarus."

For the Cloister Garden concert, the Treble Chorus will offer an evening of light serious music and nostalgic classics from the 30s and 40s. Among the selections will be a Gilbert and Sullivan ensemble, some Renaissance madrigals, Britten's "Friday Afternoons," Schubert's "An Die Musik," and Mendelssohn's "Evening Song."

Series subscriptions are still available. Sponsors who underwrite the entire series will receive eight tickets, usable at the Treble Chorus concert or any of the other three concerts to follow. Tickets to individual performances may be purchased in advance or at the door on the evening of the concert.

Sachem Tennis Team In Tournament Semifinals

By BILL LITTELL

Week 1 of the Eastern Mass tournament is over and the Sachem tennis team is still very much alive.

They reached this point by defeating Weston between rain showers, and Framingham North under a blistering sun.

Although Winchester held the 4th seed, they were forced to play a first round match against Weston last Wednesday while several other seeds obtained byes. It made no difference, though, as the boys rolled over this once-powerful team, 5-0 (Weston once sported such players as Mike Leach ¢ 1982 NCAA Champion and now a professional on the men's circuit.)

This squad, however, exhibited no such stars. Instead, Weston was defeated in quick fashion, like most of Winchester's opponents this year.

At 1st Singles Paul Sughrue beat Steve Pollack, 6-3, 6-1. The match was closer than the score indicates, though, as Pollack sported a fine forehand, and a flashy backhand.

Shawn Herlihy had a slightly more difficult time at 2nd Singles. He beat Arthur Anastos, 6-2, 7-6 (7-5).

Herlihy explained the difference between sets: "He just started getting it in in the second set. Before, he was hitting them out."

Rounding out the singles play was Gavin Barton, who defeated Adam Parker, 6-3, 6-3.

Anyone who has seen Barton play knows that he leans away from the net when hitting ¢ a rather unorthodox style. Parker, however, played the same way. "He was the only guy I've seen that leans as far back as I do," remarked Barton.

The Doubles teams had similarly easy matches, as the All-Scholastic duo of Mark Herlihy and Joe Palumbo romped over Matt Paris and Rich Caruso, 6-1, 6-2, while Greg Johnson and Hank Lynch raced by Peter Agnello and Junak Chung, 6-3, 6-1.

Six days and several inches of water later, the boys went up against Framingham North ¢ the team that finished their season last year by defeating them in the semis of the EMass tourney.

Although the Sachems weren't blatant about looking for revenge, the 3-2 victory was still sweet.

On one of the hotter days this season, the teams split the Dubs matchups, while Winchester took two of the three singles matches.

As always, the 1st Doubles tandem of Herlihy and Palumbo served up a win, beating Mike O'Leary and Lou Movitz, 6-4, 6-2.

"I was a little nervous going into the match," said Herlihy. "We were picked to win and that puts a little added presssure on us. We should've won, but always being the favorite becomes a little tiresome."

Palumbo expressed another sentiment: "They used the Australian Formation a lot and that made us think a little bit. That was in the back of our minds."

At 2nd Doubles, Johnson and Lynch did not fare so well, as they dropped a 3 set decision to Pat Curry and Jon Mills, 3-6, 6-4, 3-6.

Johnson, however, was slightly sick. Before the match, his head was thumping ("Take 3") and his eyes were watering. After an asprin and some water, he felt better and was able to play. But according to him, it did affect his play a little bit.

"I was a step or two slower than normal," said Johnson. "I wasn't at the top of my game."

Lynch thought the rain-enforced layoff hurt the team. "The five days off left us dead. It was like someone asked us, 'Tennis?' and we said 'What's that?'"

At 1st Singles, Sughrue asked the same question, as he was beaten by Bryan Duffy, 2-6, 3-6.

"It's hard playing someone that good," commented Sughrue. "I'd hit shots that someone like Bill Littell would net, and he'd hit them back for winners."

In clinching the match, Shawn Herlihy had perhaps his toughest match of the year at 2nd Singles. He squeaked by Ross Ginsburg 7-6 (8-6), 6-4.

According to brother Mark, "He's nerveless. He smiles, jokes with the spectators, and wins the close matches."

Providing the other 'W' was Barton, who defeated Dave Miller, 6-3, 6-4.

The team now heads into a semifinal match against the winner of Xaverian-Newton North. Going into this match, hopes are high that the team will come through with a win and advance to the tourney finals. If they do, they will take part in the State tournament next week, regardless of the outcome in the finals.

By publishing time, the boys will either be in the tournament finals, or turning in their uniforms.

Tennis Star Herlihy Is Tops All Year

Perfection.

It's a word that can be applied to precious few in sports, especially at the high school level.

But there is one person to whom that label could be tagged. Although he would deny it, that person is Mark Herlihy.

In three years as a 1st Doubles ace for the Winchester Sachems, his record is 60-0. Sixty times he has walked off the court a winner. Sixty handshakes have been given in victory, none in defeat. An unblemished record. John McEnroe can not boast such a record.

As a sophomore, he and John Fuchs didn't lose a set, winning the North Sectional tournament, and losing in the finals of the State touney.

Last year, Herlihy teamed up with Paul Sughrue. They won both the North Sectional and the State tournament.

This season, he and Joe Palumbo have combined to advance this far into the season without a loss. They have already captured the North title, and will vie for the state crown in a few weeks.

But Herlihy's athletic prowess does not exhibit itself only on the tennis court.

Playing a sport every season since entering high school, Herlihy has amassed quite a record. He has played soccer four years at the center-forward position, and been a league all-star for the past two.

In winter track, he has been an all-star for the last three years, running the mile and the 1000 (yards). He fell only 1.7 seconds short of the school record in the 1000, a record that has stood for 11 years. He was also tri-MVP of the team last year, along with Bill Derry and Barry Sirchis. This year he was co-MVP with Derry.

Apart from his individual achievements, Herlihy is also a "team" player. He has been tri-captain in soccer, co-captain in track, and captain of the tennis team for the past two years. He is a team leader on every squad he plays on.

Herlihy will be attending Tufts University next fall, on a partial scholarship, where he will continue to refine his formidable athletic skills.

But when he graduated from Winchester High School, Herlihy left behind a reputation as one of the best all-around athletes to ever grace the tennis courts, set foot on the soccer fields and tread on the WHS track.

Baseball Team Ends Up Reversing Poor Start

If what happened to the Sachem baseball team this spring was reversed, Coach Bill Chase would have been very worried.

As it is, he is pleased — after all, his young and inexperienced team turned around a season that threatened to be a disaster. The Sachems began the season 0-7, and for a while, it looked like they would meet the predictions of the other coaches in the league.

According to those predictions, the Sachems should be in the basement right now. Instead, they hope to finish the season with a respectable .500 finish, 8-9 in league play.

"In May, we started winning, but before that, we just weren't getting any breaks," said Chase. "We've done a lot better than the other coaches thought we would. Let me put it this way — I'm happy it wasn't the other way around. It's great to see the improvement."

Chase has another reason to be pleased — he will only be losing four seniors from this year's team. Tri-captains Mike Della Salla (who was an all-league starting shortstop), Bill Harris and Steve Cullen have all graduated, along with Mike Mistretta.

"We're really going to miss those seniors," said Chase. Despite the fact that they have already graduated and are working full-time this summer, the seniors have continued to play for the Sachems. Last week's rain forced the season to go on an extra week, and Chase praised his seniors for "hanging in there."

Despite the loss of four seniors, Chase has good reason to be optimistic about next year's Sachems. Several underclassmen have shown "tremendous improvement" according to Chase.

"Brian Carroll, who is one of the few juniors to make the all-star team, has shown me that he can play almost any position," Chase said. "He can pitch, he can play the infield, and on top of all that, he led the team in batting with a .404 average."

Junior Scott Binding batted an impressive .395, and a sophomore, Garreth Kenton, leads the Sachems in home-runs.

"The highlight of the season has been watching the underclassmen mature," Chase noted. He praised sophomore pitcher Tim Budreweicz, who held Woburn to five hits and got four strike-outs on Tuesday, and had "an excellent season."

"We've also had some consistent relief pitching," Chase said. "Steve Koffman has pitched well when we've needed him, along with Budreweicz. It should help us a lot for next year." Steve Cullen was the big hitter against Woburn, with a bases loaded double in the sixth inning. The Sachems had their last game against Reading on Wednesday, to end their season.

"Win or lose, it's been a good finish," said a satisfied Chase. "We've corrected our mistakes and we've learned from them. It's encouraging."

Lacrosse Squad Splits To Finish 8-7

The Sachem lacrosse team finished the season in a fashion typical of the year — they split their final two, showing promise in one and blowing a first-quarter lead in the second.

The Sachems split just about every game this season, ending up with an 8-7 record. Which wasn't too bad, considering the Sachems found themselves in a new league this year, one made up of all the best area lacrosse teams.

The Sachems did just fine against one of their old Middlesex League opponents in the final week of the season, defeating Lexington 6-5 in a real squeaker.

As they had all season, the Sachems saw the game slipping away from them in the second half.

The Sachems had gone up 5-3 at the half, putting on a three-goal spurt in the second quarter to break a 2-2 first-quarter tie.

But the Sachems lost their momentum in the second half, and Lexington tied it up 5-5.

Robbie Fiorillo, Ed Chidsey and Pat Murray each had a goal in the Lexington contest, with Ed Brickley scoring a pair.

Unfortunately, the Sachems forgot how to come back in the second half in their final game against Billerica.

Against the Billerica team, a perennial powerhouse, the Sachems came out steaming. They were leading 5-3 at the half, and the defense was doing a good job shutting Billerica down.

But the Sachems' foes began to penetrate the D after the half, scoring six goals in the third period.

Meanwhile, the Sachems forgot how to put the ball in the net, mustering only one goal in the second half.

The final score was 10-6.

The real bright spot of the Billerica game was the performance of attacker Peter Oliver who, unexpectedly, hadn't been getting the ball or putting it in the net this season.

Oliver came up with five goals against Billerica, including four in the first half. Pat Murray had the sixth Sachem goal.

Brian Fiorenza, 2½, of Pickering st. had to be the only person at the end of last week who loved it when it rained. But Brian is a fisherman, and the rain Saturday was perfect for the Kiwanis' annual Fishing Derby. (Staff photo by Amy Sweeney)

State House Cuts Taxes, Raises Aid

According to Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh, the $8.1 billion dollar FY '85 budget passed in the House on May 17 was $22.9 million dollars less than the Governor's proposed budget for the Commonwealth. This was accomplished despite a record 18-day, 163-hour and 5-minute debate during which time 270 out of 411 admendments to the original House budget were adopted.

"The most important improvements in the House budget," said Saltmarsh," are the increase in local aid and several tax relief measures." Using the Republican "Better Budget" figure, based on a $35 per student reimbursement formula, the local aid account was increased by $36.6 million. Overall, the House supported a total of $195.6 million in local aid to cities and towns.

Another form of local aid which Saltmarsh actively supported was the removal of the cap on the amount of lottery monies to be distributed to the communities.

Winchester's share of lottery reimbursement for FY '85 is $170,565. With the cap removed and based on a projected statewide increase of $15 million Winchester would realize another $27,840.

"The lottery was designed to generate revenues for the cities and towns and I feel they should share in the increased success of the system," said Whip.

Led by the Republicans, and supported by a majority of the House, two important tax cuts were adopted. Homeowners will be able to deduct up to $2500 in mortgage interest, similar to the current tax benefit afforded to renters in the state. "Based on just over 500,000 qualifying residences for this deduction, the amendment will provide $30 million in tax relief and make the state tax law more equitable," commented Saltmarsh.

"The other tax break will benefit the Senior Citizens in the Commonwealth who are trying to live on retirement savings and whose tax burden is among the highest in the nation," said Whip. Currently, a 10% tax is imposed on unearned income, twice the rate of the tax on wages and salary income. The amendment, overwhelmingly approved by the House, will allow deductions for taxpayers over 65 years of age. The amount exempt from taxes will be phased in over a three year period, starting at $3300 for a single person and $3690 for a couple in 1985 to $9900 for a single, $11,070 for a couple by 1987. "The estimate in savings for the elderly over the three year phase-in is $77 million," commented Whip.

Obituaries

Albert J. Olivadoti

The right-hand man of Winchester's Water Dept. supervisors, Albert J. "Babe" Olivadoti, died June 2 at Winchester Hospital after a brief illness.

The Richardson st. resident, well-known about town, was 64.

Mr. Olivadoti was the assistant superintendent of the town's Water Dept. and worked for the town for 27 years.

Mr. Olivadoti knew every pipe, valve and manhole in the town's water and sewer systems. As the department's field supervisor, he was in charge of the day-to-day functions of the Water Dept., organizing work schedules and supervising construction.

"We are certainly going to miss him," said Public Works Director Dom Serratore. "He was very knowledgeable about the system and he was very helpful. He was the type of person who would help everyone."

Mr. Olivadoti, a US Marine Corps gunnery sergeant for 13 years and a World War II veteran, was active in both local veterans' organizations as a member of the American Legion Post 97 and the Aberjona Post Veterans of Foreign Wars 3719.

For 14 years, he was also very active in Winchester's Little League baseball.

A native of Somerville, Mr. Olivadoti was a resident of Winchester for 60 years.

He is survived by his wife, Penny A. (Howell) Olivadoti; two sons, John J. Olivadoti and James W. Olivadoti, both of Winchester; and a daughter, Penny M. Capachietti of Wakefield.

He is also survived by three brothers, Joseph J. Olivadoti, Frank Olivadoti and Domenic Olivadoti, all of Winchester.

Funeral services were held from the Lane Funeral Home on June 5, followed by a funeral mass in the Immaculate Conception Church celebrated by the Rev. George Dufour.

Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery. Lane Funeral Home was in charge of arrangements.

Beverly A. Hinds

Former Winchester resident Beverly Ann Hinds, 37, of Stoneham died May 31 at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Brighton, after a lengthy illness.

Miss Hinds, a native of Cambridge, lived in Winchester for 34 years, attended Winchester schools and graduated from Winchester High School with the class of 1964.

She was a former member of Winhester's Immaculate Conception Church.

Lincoln School Students Create Robots Out Of Boxes, Cans And Magic Markers

R2D2 move over — the Winchester robots have arrived.

In October, the fourth grade classes at the Lincoln School started a drawing project. Their assignment: to create a robot that did a specific job.

The job could be anything purposeful from doing reading, writing and arithmetic to protecting the country from aliens or simply performing a household chore.

The fourth graders took their drawings and started transforming them into sculptures. Boxes, cans and old Magic Markers were collected and the construction began.

When the objects resembled the original drawings of the robots, two layers of papier mache were applied to the structures.

Paint and other odd objects were then added to bring the robots to completion.

The robots were from 1 to 3 feet high. The project was the longest art project any of the students had ever worked on and one of the most fascinating, exciting and challenging.

The last detail was to name each robot. Names ranged from "Dusty" to "Buff the Reader" and "Flea-Body Guard."

federal auditors made their report in October 1981.

That federal audit by the National Credit Union Administration — which is supposed to be done every year — had been delayed.

The 18-month period between audits overlapped the period the grand jury indictment charges that Casalinuovo embezzled the funds — Nov. 13, 1979, to Feb. 8, 1982.

The delay in audits also came at a time when the Credit Union was changing its bookkeeping system, following the retirement of Janet Manzie, the treasurer during the Credit Union's first 25 years.

"Things were moving out of the kitchen (in Manzie's home) and into a part-time office," recalled Duffy. "We were going onto a computer rather than a hand ledger."

At that time, there was little review of the books.

The supervisory committee, which now conducts its own audits, wasn't established until May 1981, and didn't get going until the following August.

Without consulting with the directors, the Credit Union treasurer could make payments and approve loans. A credit committee to review loans wasn't set up until after the embezzlement was uncovered.

"There were review procedures, and they were followed up to a point," said Duffy. "But since most of the officers were volunteers, we didn't fill in all the gaps. And there were gaps.

"The officers didn't know how to read a credit report, or do credit checks," added Duffy. "They weren't that involved in the day-to-day running of the union."

Duffy took the job as head of the supervisory committee in August. A few weeks later, he was handed the auditors' report showing the "errors" in the bookkeeping.

"They gave a list of problems to the board of directors, and I took the time to go look them up," said Duffy. "When I checked, other things began to turn up. I asked questions, and I didn't like the answers I got."

The investigation broadened. The supervisory committee began to make random checks of loans and called in dozens of Credit Union members to check their accounts.

"I'd made checks of loans, mention it to someone on the board, and they'd say 'We don't have one out on that," said Duffy.

An independent auditor, Len Frigon, was called in. Frigon, of Ludlow, had spent 20 years working with credit unions, and had set up the University of Massachusetts at Amherst's union.

"The whole thing was uncovered by an internal audit," noted Credit Union Chairman Houghton. "And it was rectified internally."

The supervisory committee, Duffy and Frigon completed their report in April 1982. On that day, the FBI was called in. And Casalinuovo was fired.

FBI special agent Carol Tuminelly began working on the case, aided by Winchester Chief John McHugh and Lt. Joseph Perritano.

"She double checked everything, cross referenced, took evidence," said Duffy. "She even found items that we had overlooked."

The FBI stayed on the case for two years. They brought it to the US Attorney's office this winter. The grand jury indictment was returned March 28, and the case will end on June 20.

For the officers of the Credit Union, that day can't come too soon.

"This is something we're not used to dealing with," commented Houghton. "It's something we've lived with for awhile, a deep, dark secret we weren't allowed to say anything about while we were waiting for the other shoe to drop.

"Something like this shakes a small town where everybody knows everybody," he added. "I just hope it gets over. I just hope it's over quick."

Embezzlement Spurs Credit Union Change

If the embezzlement charges against its former treasurer have rocked the Winchester Municipal Credit Union, they have also made the union sounder, officers say.

Since the embezzlement was discovered, the accounting and review procedures, the way loans are given out, and the structure of the union leadership have been entirely revamped.

"The way the Credit Union works has been completely changed," noted Ken Duffy, who as head of the union's supervisory committee uncovered the embezzlement. "This could never happen again."

An entire committee has been set up to ensure that what happened in the recent embezzlement case — where the treasurer created fraudulent loans and deposited the money in her own account — won't happen again.

Now, a credit committee reviews and approves each loan.

The supervisory committee, which had just been established when the first audit showing problems in the Credit Union came out, is also stronger.

The committee now audits and verifies accounts yearly. Plus, members will walk in, grab Credit Union files at random, and spot-check accounts.

Officers of the Credit Union have all been trained in how to review accounts during sessions set up through the Massachusetts Credit Union Assn.

An independent auditor, Len Frigon, who worked to uncover the embezzlement, also established a new, modernized bookkeeping system for the Credit Union.

"I don't have enough praise for Len — he helped us reconstruct the Credit Union," said Duffy. "He did more than any auditor — he's been in credit unions for 20 years, and he really cares about the credit union system."

Now, the Credit Union officers say, the organization is stronger than ever.

"Over the last couple of years, we've had no problems," said Mike Houghton, chairman of the Credit Union's Board of Directors. "We haven't reduced dividends, we're still providing all the benefits — returns on savings, low-interest loans, paid life insurance."

The Credit Union is currently paying 6 percent interest on savings, and is offering unsecured loans at interest rates 1 to 3 percent lower than bank rates, according to Duffy.

The union's assets stand at three-quarters of a million dollars, and union directors hope to expand the Credit Union, offering its services to other organizations in town besides town employees, signing up members though local businesses or groups like the Knights of Columbus.

"We have great backing from the members," said Houghton. "My job now is to heal the wounds and make things as positive as I can. We have to be concerned with what transpires now, and in the future."

business-oriented programs that expose students to the business world," says Vice Principal Thomas Budrewicz. "But our numbers are so small, and just one program couldn't satisfy the needs of these kids — you can't have something for all of them."

Soon, there may be even less offered to those students who are not part of the mainstream. Declining enrollment is hitting the business courses hard. And many admistrators fear the CLIP program may soon be dropped.

"We will need some real viable alternatives in the years to come," Principal Vincent Larocco explains. "Enrollments are going down in the non-college bound courses, kids aren't choosing CLIP and there are less kids in courses like industrial arts, home economics and business."

Larocco says he is not sure why students aren't choosing these courses. "Maybe it is psychological, or perhaps it is because of parental pressure," he offers. "But we are very concerned that the high standards of the high school will create a situation where the kids can't succeed.

"Where will all the non-college bound kids go?" Larocco wonders. "What will happen if we don't have room for these kids? We will definitely need some alternatives."

"This is a very frustrating situation for educators," notes John Pirani, who is in charge of AID (alternatives for individual development), an in-school suspension program that allows students who have been suspended to catch up on their work under his supervision.

"Guidance is under tremendous pressure to produce Ivy Leaguers, and the community doesn't know enough about the 'other kids' to demand what we need for them," he continues. "In this community, we don't want to recognize their problems because it is easier to deny that they exist.

"We have emotionally disturbed kids here, kids with learning disabilities and kids who can't hack it in the classroom," Pirani points out. "These problems are not like the measles. You simply can't send the kids to the resource room and watch the problem go away."

"There are very few options now because of state and federal cutbacks," agrees Lorna Phillips, a social worker and adjustment counselor who used to do follow-up work on every student who had dropped out of Winchester High School. Now, her hours have been cut and she no longer does the follow-up.

"When we see kids cutting classes year after year, we have to look and try to provide adequate programs that are relevant and appealing for them," Phillips says. "Kids who need skills must be recognized.

"You will always have people who drop out," she continues. "And we do have a responsibility to address the needs of a population who does not fit into the traditional academic mode. We do not have enough options for them, and this is something we (administrators) have been discussing for the past two years.

"I'd like to see every student here feel that there is something for him or her," Phillips says. "I may be idealistic, though."

According to Special Education Director Frank Bianco, Winchester High School may be pilot testing some alternative programs under a grant in the near future. However, Bianco feels it is difficult to develop substantially separate programs from the traditional academic courses.

"The problem is, if you take certain students out and isolate them, they get labeled," he points out. "It is a challenge to get them to fit neatly in the system, and the question of what the alternatives should be is very complex."

But Bianco agrees that "feasible and realistic alternatives" need to be developed. "We need more dialogue between teachers, administrators and students," he says.

Most administrators agree that there is a need for alternatives, but are reluctant to point to a specific program or solution that they believe will solve the problems of the non-college-bound student.

"The schools are being looked at as a social service agency, and we simply can't do it all," says Paula D'Aurio, who is the Special Education chairman and works with potential drop-outs at both the junior high and high school level.

"We have a committee that is looking into this problem, and we agree that there is a need for alternative programs, but before we can go any further we need to know what will happen with the CLIP program," she explains.

"There are many students who feel alienated, and for them going to school with so many high achievers is a real struggle," D'Aurio said. "They don't fit in and they stand out like a sore thumb here. But their needs are more than academic. They have a host of other needs as well."

D'Aurio believes that an alternative, self-contained classroom where kids have a home base, and can get some academic counseling is needed.

"Some more alternatives are definitely needed," D'Aurio adds. "But the question is, what can we do to help the students who need to feel some success?"

"We're tacking on a few courses here and there, but not full programs," says Budreweicz. "We can always do more, but it gets very expensive. We just can't have something for all of them. It's frustrating."

CLIP, Sole Program For Non-College-Bound, In Danger

BY LIZ WILLEN

A program that keeps students in school is in serious danger of being dropped.

Since CLIP (Career Life Information Program) began as the only alternative program for students who are not going on to college in 1976, many of its graduates have said over and over again that they would have left school if weren't for CLIP.

Now administrators are worried that the CLIP program will die because not enough students are signing up for it.

The CLIP program peaked in the late 70s, when there were four full-time CLIP teachers and as many as 78 students. This year, there were only 28 students in the program, including five who graduated on Sunday.

The students who are a part of CLIP learn "things we need to know in life," according to one student. They have a home base classroom in the high school where they feel comfortable with their teachers (David Miller and Peggy Sullivan) and each other.

"It's like a family," explains the same student, who asked not to be identified. "I never felt like I was a part of the regular high school, but here I feel at home."

CLIP students take their academic classes (the minimum of classes required for a high school diploma) together every morning, before leaving school early to work part-time.

Most of the CLIP students do not plan to attend college after they graduate, but they still must fulfill all the academic requirements of the high school. And, they are taught many practical skills and subjects, such as money management, law and government, family health and career education.

CLIP graduate Deborah Cagan is positive she would have dropped out of Winchester High School if it weren't for CLIP.

"I've said it a thousand times and it's true — I would have quit school," Cagan says. The warm, bubbly 1982 CLIP graduate remembers when she hated waking up in the morning because it meant going to school.

When she decided to join the CLIP program, her entire high school experience turned around. "I can't tell you how much I loved school," she says with enthusiasm. "I had a ball. My grades went up, and I even got a scholarship (to Elizabeth Grady School of Esthetics in Boston). And I learned things I need to know about for the rest of my life."

Cogan knew that she didn't want to go to college, but beyond that, she had very little idea of what she wanted to do after graduation.

"CLIP helped me when I was confused," she says earnestly. "I got some guidance, I made some great friends, and I got a good job after graduation. I think I did better than a lot of kids in regular classes.

"I know a lot of kids still in the program that are worried about what would happen to them if CLIP were dropped," Cogan adds. "They all think they would quit school if wasn't for CLIP. The School Committee should talk to some of the kids in the program — they aren't all trouble makers. There are a lot of great kids in the program and it's something that the high school really needs."

CLIP teacher David Miller feels that a lot of students would attempt to make it in the regular program if CLIP were dropped, but "they wouldn't be that successful."

"If the program goes, I don't know where they will place these kids," Miller says, shaking his head. "They would lose this feeling of home base. That's the biggest thing for many of these students — they feel really comfortable here. We all get very close."

One of the biggest obstacles that CLIP faces, according to teacher Peggy Sullivan, is that some parents prefer to have their children in school all day. Because the CLIP program ends before noon (so that most of the students can go to work) they are uncomfortable with it.

According to High School Principal Vincent Larocco, preventing CLIP from becoming "phased out" is going to mean convincing the public — especially parents — that programs like CLIP are "viable and necessary."

What many parents don't realize, administrators say, is that CLIP students can and do go on to college, and they can still sign up for the college-bound courses if they are in the program. Also, students can switch out of CLIP and back into the regular program if they want.

The program is highly individualized as well, and students can work on the areas where they most need help. Aside from getting credit for English, math and social studies, the students work on long-range individual goals and plans with Miller and Sullivan.

The School Committee and the administration have all been supportive of CLIP, Miller says. They realize that the program has been highly successful and they would hate to lose an alternative to the traditional college-bound offerings at the high school.

However, they also realize that the program cannot be maintained if there are not enough students who elect it.

"In a system like Somerville, there would be a long waiting list for a program like this," Miller says. "But in Winchester, this program will die if we don't have enough bodies to fill it."

Chase Elected

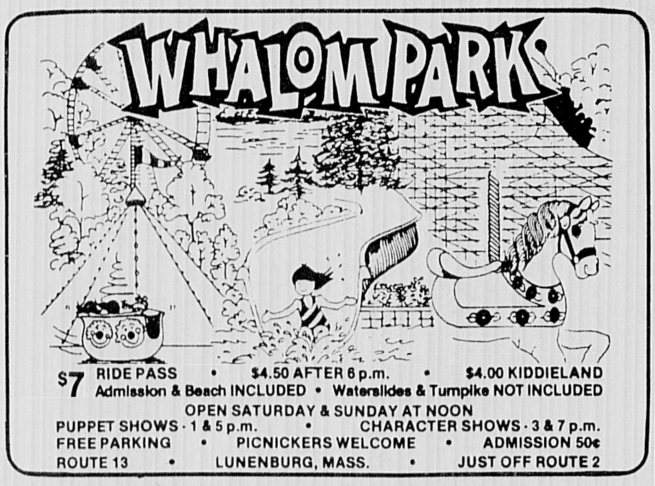

Winchester's Director of Veteran Services, Howard E. Chase, will be next year's president of the Middlesex County Veteran Agent's Assn. (MCVAA), an organization of Veteran Service Agents of the Commonwealth who serve Middlesex Counties.

Chase won a recent election and is scheduled to take over the leadership of the organization for two years on September 1. Chase is the first Winchester Agent to hold that office since 1946.

Mr. Chase joined the MCVAA in 1976 and decided to go up the ranks from Sargent-at-Arms to the Presidency.

It's Town Day '84

Contests

In this corner — the Board of Selectmen. And in the opposite corner — the Finance Committee.

The premier athletic event of this year's Town Day, in a schedule loaded with competition, will be the Tug-Of-War between the two town government boards.

Naturally, the selectmen and the FinCom can't agree on how to set up the event, just as they can't agree on budget items at Town Meeting.

Selectmen want to divide the teams by numbers — five selectmen against five FinCom members. The Finance Committee, taking note of the size of some of the selectmen, want to do it by weight.

Whichever way the teams go at each other, they will do it at 2:15 at the Wadleigh School lot (the park across Washington st. from Town Hall and the Library).

The Tug-Of-War will be the finale of the day's athletic events, which will include basketball shooting, base running, dashes, three-legged races, sack races and a pie-eating contest.

The athletics will begin at 9 a.m. with the Recreation Dept.'s Fun Run, followed by the 10k Road Race at 9:45.

Both races will start and end at the Lincoln School. Applications for the races are available at the Rec Dept. in McCall Jr. High. The registration fees is $4 for the Fun Run. Pre-registration is $5 for the 10K race, and $6 the day of the race.

The route for the Fun Run will be from the Lincoln School up Main st. to Symmes Corner, then onto Bacon st., Fletcher st., Palmer st., Lake st., Skillings rd., Washington st. and Main st. back to the school.

The route for the 10K will begin at the Lincoln School, go up Main st. to Cross st., onto Washington st. to Main st. heading to Symmes Corner, then on Bacon st., Fletcher st., Palmer st., Lake st., Skillings rd. to Washington st. and back to the school.

The rest of the athletic contests will begin at 12:30 p.m. on the Wadleigh School lot.

Hoop shooters can show off their prowess from 12:30 to 1:30; while base runners can demonstrate their speed from 1:15 to 2:15.

Start To End

Town Day will start off with a flair and end with flares, as two special events are planned to begin and end the annual Center festival.

To get Town Day off to a funny start, the Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a cartoon film festival Friday afternoon.

And to end Town Day on Saturday, fireworks will light up the sky over Manchester Field.

The cartoon festival will feature all the favorite cartoon characters — Bugs Bunny, Woody Woodpecker and Porky Pig — as well as a film of "Star Trek" bloopers.

Bugs Bunny will appear in the classic "Corny Concerto," while fellow Warner Brothers star Porky Pig will be in "Ali Babba Bound." Woody Woodpecker will appear in two films, "Termites from Mars" and "Boxcar Bandits." A couple of lesser known cartoon characters, Oswald Rabbit and Chilly Willy, will be in "Egg Cracker Suite" and "Swiss Misfits."

The films will run from 3:30 to 5 p.m. on Friday, and admission is $1. A Cabbage Patch doll will be given away to one lucky ticketholder, and refreshments will be served.

The fireworks, the traditional ending to Town Day, will start banging away at 9:15 p.m. at Manchester Field. Mystic Valley pkwy. will be closed off during the fireworks.

Entertainment

All the Center's a stage, and all the residents the audience, as Town Day gets under way Saturday.

On stages in the Center, behind the Library and in the Town Hall auditorium, there will be performances of dance, music, mimes, puppets, and even a dog obedience demonstration scheduled.

Musical performances will be going almost constantly on Town Day, with music for every taste.

There will be two rock bands performing — the Solution will be playing from 10 to 11:30 a.m. in the Center, while Trial and Error will be on the same Center stage from 2:30 to 4 p.m.

For those who love to stomp to country, Redneck Revival, one of the favorites of last year's Town Day, will be strumming and fiddling behind the Library from 1 to 3 p.m.

Folk music will be highlighted at 1 p.m., as Winchester High teacher and musician Gerry Skinder will be playing guitar and singing on the Center stage.

And lovers of that old-time music can here the lilting strains of the Apollo Club of Boston, the oldest men's chorus in the country, singing during the all-you-can-eat Western barbeque from 5:30 to 7 p.m. at the Town Hall.

Finally, the Big Band sound will return to town as the kickoff to the evening's fireworks display.

The McCall Jr. High Jazz Band will be playing swing tunes such as "Tuxedo Junction" at 7 p.m. behind the Library, followed by the reknown Winchester High School Marching Band, directed by the equally reknown Priscilla Miller, at 8:15 p.m.

There will be a couple of dance performances showing off two of the latest dance crazes.

At 2 p.m. in the Center, a trio of breakdancers will be breaking, spinning and moonwalking.

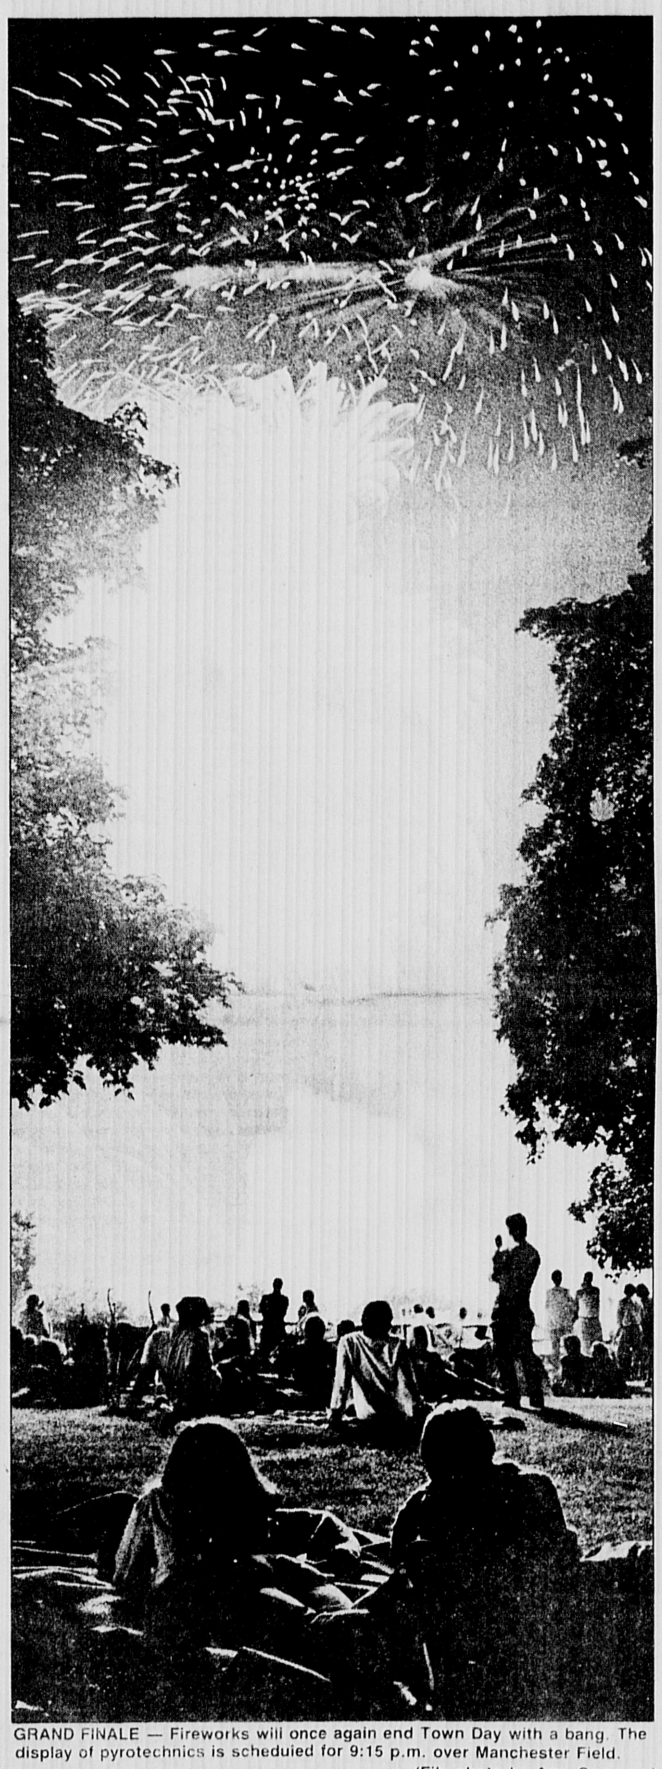

And at 3 p.m., Town Day visitors can dance their way into shape during a Jazzercize demonstration behind the Library.

Three puppet shows are scheduled — the Cranberry Puppets will be in the Town Hall auditorium at 11 a.m., while the Odyssey Puppets will be performing at 12:30 p.m. in the Center and at 2:30 p.m. in the Town Hall auditorium.

Mime Melody Arterberry will be silently showing off in the Town Hall auditorium at 3 p.m.

And finally, a pack of Winchester dogs will be performing, showing off the skills they learned in the Recreation Dept.'s Dog Obedience class.

The dogs will be demonstrating their talents at 12:30 p.m. on Mt. Vernon st.

Food, Food

Free pancakes for breakfast, an all-you-can-eat Western barbeque for dinner, and everything from egg rolls to to Italian sausages for lunch.

The menu for Town Day goes on and on. Don't bother eating before, because there is going to be enough food to satisfy even the deepest bottomless pit.

To see those who can really eat, Town Day visitors can watch the judges sample the pride and joys of the town's best bakers in the Town Day Bake Contest at 11 a.m., or they can watch eaters try to stuff down as much pie as possible in the Blueberry Pie Eating Contest at 2:45 p.m.

To start off the eating, there are the free pancakes, which will be handed out from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. across Mt. Vernon st. from the Fire Station. The Winchester Savings Bank is doling out the hotcakes.

And the final meal will be the Western barbeque, featuring a choice of ribs or chicken, along with corn on the cob, cole slaw, potato salad, watermelon slices and coffee, iced tea, punch or lemonade.

The barbeque will be from 5:30 to 7 p.m. behind Town Hall. In case of rain, the barbeque will still go on inside.

Tickets should be purchased in advance — many were turned away from last year's barbeque because they didn't have tickets. They are available at Henderson Stationers.

In between breakfast and dinner, there will be delectables offered up by food vendors in booths all over the Center.

There will be fried miniature egg rolls from Robert Fitzgerald, slush cones from the Junior Mixed Lodge, hot dogs and coffee from the Sons of Italy, Italian sausages from the J & A Food Store, and fried dough from Joe Cantino.

A number of local stores will also be purveying food. La Patisserie, Baskin-Robbins, Main st. Pizza, Roberts Candy, Jeanne Tahnk's Gourmet Kitchen, Purity Supreme and Brigham's will all have booths.

Craft Displays

From wooden toys to Zugglesnooks, from handcrafted jewelry to doll house miniatures, Town Day will feature a potpourri of crafts.

Christa Bennett, who organized the crafts demonstration, will be throwing pots on a wheel downtown as she demonstrates her talents at making vases, cups and dishes out of clay.

Those every-popular stuffed word-eaters, the Zugglesnooks, will be brought downtown by their creator, resident Nadine Suhrbier.

Handcrafted jewelry will be displayed by Linda Atwood, while Ingrid Jochimsen will have a display of hand-made wooden toys.

For exacting detail, nothing can top the intricate miniatures made by Susan Dalton for her Tiny Places dollhouses.

There will be a couple of unusual items — Lucille's Knits will offer personalized hats, and the "Shady Lady," Diane Maher, will offer a collection of pierced lamp shades.

Baby items made by Janet Crocker and landscape design lay-outs by Susan Saarinen will round out the crafts.

For The Kids

They can get balloons from McDonald's Hamburgler, watch two puppet shows and a mime, get their faces painted, take a boat ride on the Duck Pond, taste the sweets at the Bake Contest (if it doesn't spoil their dinner), show off their skills in the CSA Spelling Bee, or compete in the afternoon's athletic events.

There will a couple of serious displays geared toward children — the Board of Health is putting on a demonstration of car safety, while the Winchester Police Dept. and the Hackett-Mercurio Insurance Agency will be running their Ident-A-Kid program.

Actually, the events for children start the day before Town Day, as the Chamber of Commerce puts on its Cartoon Film Festival at McCall Jr. High beginning at 3:30. Admission is $1.

The first event for the youngsters is the Community School Assn. Spelling Bee, which will be held from 10 a.m. to noon behind the Library (appropriately enough).

Face painting will also begin at 10 a.m., running through 2 p.m. in the Center.

For the kids with a sweet tooth, the Town Day Bake Contest booth on Mt. Vernon st. will be open from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. If they want to know what the tastiest morsels are, the judging is at 11.

There will be three puppet shows from two troupes — the Cranberry Puppets will perform at 11 a.m. in the Town Hall Auditorium, while Cecil and Sebastian, the Odyssey Puppets, will be on stage in the Center at 12:30 and in the Town Hall Auditorium at 2:30 p.m.

Immediately following the Odyssey Puppets' second show, Mime Melody Arterberry will give her show at 3 p.m., also in the Town Hall Auditorium.

Athletic events will be held most of the afternoon at the Wadleigh Field, across Washington st. from Town Hall and the Library entrance.

The contestants will be divided by age groups, so kids can compete against children their own age.

Starting at 12:30 with basketball shooting and dashes, the athletic events will include three-legged races at 1 p.m., base running at 1:15, and sack races at 1:30.

There will also be a pie-eating contest at 2:45 p.m.

All competitions will be in age groups: ages 3 to 4; 5 to 7; 8 to 10; 11 to 13; and 14 and older.

There will be two big events for the kids, running all day — the appearance of the Hamburgler, who will be stealing around the downtown all day, and rides on the Duck Pond, which will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

And of course, there will be fireworks, something every kid loves, at 10 p.m..

Saturday's Town Day Events Offer Variety

Health Board To Promote Child Safety Car Seats

Heightened awareness of child safety seats has encouraged parents nationwide to purchase these safety devices for their little ones, so the tots can buckle up while riding in the family car.

The Winchester Board of Health is getting active in child safety by sponsoring a Town Day Booth on child safety seats, giving away one seat on Town Day, and compiling a list of suggestions for parents.

The board noted that in choosing a child safety seat, parents should consider the following:

• Look for a seat that meets federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard 213, which indicates that the seat has been crash tested. Seats manufactured after Jan. 1, 1981, must meet this standard.

• The best car seat is one in which a child is most comfortable. Children travel better behaved in safety seats because they can see out the windows and feel more secure.

• Make sure the safety seat you choose is appropriate for your car. The safest place for all safety seats is in the back seat of the car. If you can't install the seat according to the manufacturer's instructions, return it and get a different model.

• Child safety seats are available at a wide range of prices. Shop around to get the best buy. If you can't afford a seat, there may be a rental program in your community.

• After you have obtained a safety seat, make sure to use it according to the manufacturer's instructions. The seat should be properly anchored so it will remain in place in an accident or sudden stop.

The Board of Health reminds parents that different child safety seats are appropriate for children at different ages. Be aware of the following recommendations:

Birth to 12 months

Starting with the first ride home from the hospital, infants need protection that a parent's arms can't give. Infant carriers are available which allow the child to ride backwards in a semi-reclined position. The position allows the baby's strong back to absorb the force of a a crash or sudden stop.

12 months to 4 years (or 40 lbs.)

When your child is able to sit up without support, it is ready for a toddler seat, which faces forward and is anchored by the vehicle's seat belt. A five-point harness spreads the force of a crash over the child's shoulders and hips.

Booster seats are also available for children ages 3 to 6 who outgrow other systems.

School Aged Children

Once your child has outgrown the safety seat, use the cars safety belt. Children are safer in the back seat, and in the middle of the seat rather than the sides.

What do the men and women listed above have in common? They live in Winchester? They are Friends of the Winchester Library? What is known is that, under the leadership of Barbara Yamane, they worked for weeks preparing books, magazines and records for the Annual Friends of the Winchester Library Gala Book Sale to be held on Town Day, June 9, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the parking lot between the Town Hall and the Library.

Come and look for the item that may change your life. The (almost) "Complete Works of Mark Twain," bought some years ago, changed the entire direction of interest and instructions of a local teacher of humanities. Several volumes of the inspiring American Guide Series published by the WPA in the 1930s still serve their purchaser well on her trips through New England and New York. A National Geographic magazine with its map could inform and chart your vacation to the Maritimes come this July.

Classics for the fireside, fluff for the hammock-months, bound periodicals for the vintage scholar and Barrons for the recent college-bound, how to cook inside and how to cook out, work for the hands, incitement to the mind — all between the covers of the book. Buy one (or two or five) on Saturday.

Fi-records, lo and hi, hard-rock, soft-rock, heavy-metal, soft-pedal, lullabies and looney tunes, Mozart and Moog. A sound for every ear. Come by and buy.

Cars Banned From Center

People, not cars, will inhabit downtown Winchester Saturday during the Town Day celebration.

The Center streets will be closed to traffic beginning around 6 a.m., as the event's organizers prepare the downtown for the festivities.

Main st., from the rotary to the Mystic Valley pkwy., will be closed. So will Mt. Vernon st. from the rotary to Washington st., Thompson st. and Converse pl.

A section of the Mystic Valley pkwy. will also be shut off during the fireworks display, which begins at 9:15 p.m.

Traffic barriers will be removed after the fireworks.

Children Can Be Fingerprinted

The Winchester Police Dept. and the Winchester Police Explorer Scouts, in conjunction with the Hackett-Mercurio Insurance Agency, will be offering the I-Dent-A-Kid Fingerprinting Program during Town Day, June 9.

Personnel will be available from 10 a.m. to conduct the fingerprinting at the Winchester Office of Hackett Mercurio, 23 Thompson st.

The program will be open to all — children of all ages to senior citizens, residents or non-residents.

Blackpowder Shooters

IF YOU think putting holes in paper is about as exciting as watching the traffic lights change, consider team shooting at breakable targets against a stopwatch. The 10th Massachusetts Battery is looking for more people. We are part of the North-South Skirmish Association, a 4,000 member competitive shooting organization where the shortest elapsed time wins. Units take their names in honor of actual Civil War regiments and members shoot original or reproduction weapons of the 1861-65 period. The 10th Battery competes with .58 cal. rifled muskets, caplock breechloading carbines, and an 1,800 lb. full size 3-inch rifled muzzleloading cannon. Yes, there's some paper punching too for those interested, but the real excitement is in the rapid fire team events where you shoot at flower pots, hanging water-filled coffee cups, ceramic tiles and 32 clay pigeons on a 4x8 cardboard backer at 50 yds. We welcome all shooters regardless of experience. Our team members live all over — from Maine to Rhode Island to New York — but more are from eastern Massachusetts. Call Ron Borjeson at 1-835-3102 for further information.

CONDO ASSOCIATION BYLAWS

When you buy a condominium, you will have to abide by the rules of the association. These rules will be spelled out in a document called Association Bylaws.

In effect, it sets out the rules for your condo association internal government. It will specify how many owners are needed to form a quorum and conduct business, the use of proxies, the duties and powers of the officers and directors.

Specific clauses will authorize the board to establish an operating budget, including reserves for general operations, replacement of commonly owned facilities and maintenance of common areas. Professional management may also be authorized. Changes in the declaration may require approval of all owners, but bylaws can generally be amended by a vote of 75% or even less.

Often, the success of owning a condominium lies in the ability and wisdom of the condominium governing officers. Read condominium bylaws carefully as well as checking out the track record of the condo association.

Two Hospital Gifts

The Friends of Winchester Hospital have completed their three-year pledge to the Gift of Health campaign of Winchester Hospital. Presenting a $4,000 check to Hospital President Jack Hunter is Friends' President Kathleen Neuner. Also attending were (from l) Marilyn Georgis, chairman of the Friends' 1984 Champagne Brunch, Dr. Gustav Kaufmann, general chairman of the Gift of Health campaign, and Kay Viglione, chairman of the 1984 "Friendly Table" at the annual holiday fair. The gift represents proceeds of the brunch and the Friendly Table.

Winton Club members Carolyn Gunby, Ann McGovern and Gloria Swanson present a check for $20,000 to Winchester Hospital President Jack Hunter. The women headed up the three major groups in the Winton Club — Gunby was chairman of the 1984 Cabaret, McGovern is the outgoing president of the club, and Swanson is immediate past chairman of the Winton Shop.

Coppi Wins Trip

French Students Excell

Winchester High School senior Maddalena Coppi has been awarded a $1,200 trip to France by the Eastern Massachusetts Chapter of the American Assn. of Teachers of French.

Last March, more than 67,000 students nationwide took part in the annual French contest given by that organization. The test of listening comprehension, grammar, reading ability, and knowledge of civilization and literature is available at several levels, appropriate for elementary age students through high school seniors.

In this region the test is administered on a Saturday morning. This means that those taking part must give up a weekend morning and find transportation to a nearby school serving as a test center. This year approximately 30 WHS students took the test at Jonas Clarke Junior High School in Lexington.

The tests are extremely difficult. Of the 80 questions, even the top national winners sometimes only get 70 correct.

At the annual prize distribution of the Eastern Massachusetts chapter, several Winchester students were honored. Freshmen Andreas Coppi and Loreto Serrano both placed among the top 10 students at their level in eastern Massachusetts. Senior Barbara Ahearn placed fifth in all of New England on the level V test, and Coppi placed first in the eastern Massachusetts and New England and second in the entire United States. All four are students of Leslie Hastings.

A trip to France is awarded annually by the eastern Massachusetts chapter to the top student in French V. Coppi's plans are incomplete, but she hopes to spend a week sightseeing in Paris and two to three weeks living with a family. At the end of the summer she will be entering MIT.

Winchester High School winners in the French Contest were (front, l to r) Loreto Serrano, Andreas Coppi, (back) Barbara Ahearn and Maddalena Coppi.

Doing well on French contests seems to run in the Coppi family. Older brother Paolo, now a Harvard student, also placed second nationally in the same contest when he was a WHS senior. Younger brother Andreas has done very well on his first attempt and will be continuing to try over the next three years.

On the evening of the prize distribution at Newton North High School Andreas had a chance to practice for the future, as he accepted the plaque, book, certificate, and check in his sister's name. Maddalena was here in Winchester playing the violin with the WHS orchestra.

Continuing as officers were First Vice President Chris Rust, Secretary Rosemaire Cammarata, Membership Directors Alice Madio and Susan Cutler, Publications Director Pat Wells, Public Relations Director Jane Spencer, Nominating Director Fran McClintock, Social Secretary Ellie DuToit, Mailing Director Anna Baylies; WIC Rep. Judie Virnelli.

Agenda items were the presidents' annual message given by McCann-Estridge and Small, the Nominating Committee report given by McClintock, the election of officers, the treasurer's and auditor's reports given by Marlene Rathmann.

The proposed budget, by-laws changes, and a list of local programs were presented and adopted.

Majorie McCann-Estridge and Betty Small thanked many individuals for making 1983-84 a successful year for the Winchester League.

Estridge commented on gaining 18 new members this year, a number of whom jumped right in to work on a study unit. Others, she noted, joined during or after some of the League's units, attracted by the League's interest in areas they were concerned with.

around and think about going home."

Groux smiled, a smile that often looks more like a grimace. "It's discouraging," he admits. "This is a great town, but I'm not judged as Tom Groux. I'm judged as the Town Manager."

Groux candidly described some of the pitfalls his four children, all of whom are attending or have graduated from Winchester schools, have encountered as a result of having the Town Manager as a father.

"My oldest son wanted a summer job in Winchester — for either the Recreation Dept. or the DPW," Groux recalled. "But I said, no way — none of my kids can work for the town.

"Once," Groux continued, "My oldest daughter was driving around in a mini-bus that the town used to provide. Well, the driver, whom I'd never even met, was complaining to someone about the Town Manager, her dad. She had to bite her tongue and listen. She came home in tears."

Groux's oldest daughter, Beth, a junior at the University of Massachussetts in Amherst, was present at the selectmen's meeting when Groux made his annoucement Monday night.

"She told me, 'Dad, I want to be there,'" Groux said, with a genuine smile this time. "This is the biggest career decision I've ever had to make, and my family has been really supportive."

Groux has earned a reputation as quiet, concerned and conciliatory. At selectmen's meetings, he speaks slowly and precisely, deferring policy-making decisions to selectmen. He is a conservative dresser, preferring dark suits that are a sharp contrast to his salt and pepper hair.

A glance at old photographs from Groux's earlier days as Town Manager prove that his hair has grown considerably saltier.

However, Groux only laughed at the suggestion that his nine years as Town Manager have increased the amount of gray in his hair. "My father was all white at the age of 30," he said. "It's genetic."

Groux said he is looking forward to his new position, especially "the completely different atmosophere" he believes he will encounter in an academic setting.

"I think it will be less pressured," he said, noting that he works about 60 hours a week as Town Manager. "It will be nice not to have to be responsive to elected officials. I think I'll feel more relaxed."

Some days he sits at the old sewing machine taking shoe after shoe and mending the leather. Other days he shuffles back and forth tearing old soles off with his worn hands and gluing new soles on. The hum of machinery is constant, and has caused the old cobbler to lose some of his hearing.

Caros' career in the shoe business began in Brockton in 1917. He left his native Greece because of World War I and came to the United States seeking a better life. After nine years of hard work, he was able to own his own shop.

Things were a bit livelier in The Winchester Shoe Hospital in the old days. Four shoe-shine chairs lined the wall of the little store where men, women and children came to get their shoes shined. "Kids used to be crazy about getting their shoes shines," Caros said.

There were boys learning the trade and the shop's friendly atmosphere attracted people to come in to chat.

As business prospered, Caros decided it was time to get married. A match was made in Greece by his family with a family from the next village. In 1930, Caros flew to Greece to meet and marry his bride. They have three children who are now all married and living in the area.

Caros' son, John, took over the business in 1967. John's wife Marilyn helps out a few days a week so the two cobblers can work without being interrupted.

In the last 50 years, the shoe industry has changed dramatically and Caros' shop reflects some of those changes. The shoe-shine chairs are gone — it is the day of the sneaker and they do not need polishing or repairing. And the business is not solely shoe repairs anymore. Clogs and ballet slippers are sold now to pick up the slack.

But the repair business itself, the heart of the Caros' shop, is done exactly the way it was when Caros opened in 1926. And one other thing remains the same. Every day, Paul Caros walks into the store, picks up a worn-out shoe, and begins to work.

Teens Pound Pavement For Summer Work

BY LIZ WILLEN

When Brigham's owner John Morello put a "Help Wanted" sign in front of his shop on Main st. last month, he had over 150 applications within four days.

The problem was, he had only six positions to fill.

At other downtown shops, merchants said they don't even bother hiring high school students over the summer.

"We would love to hire high school students if we could — but we just don't need them," said Judy Macone, the owner of Robert's Chocolate.

"We don't even have students bother to fill out an application," echoed Sydna Anderson, who manages Winchester Drug. "We have some high school students who work here during the school year, and we tend to keep them on. We just don't need anyone else."

There are other alternatives for finding summer jobs aside from pounding the brick pavements of Winchester. Some students find work through classified sections of local newspapers. Others are willing to venture into Boston, or to the Burlington Mall, to find work. Others, like Middlebury College student Frank Muggia, who got a job in a Malden news shop for two summers, are lucky enough to have "connections."

But there is another way for students to find a job — the Job Bank. The Job Bank matches employers with students who are looking for work.

The Job Bank began two years ago at the Jenks Center. Last summer, Karen Buckley took it over in the basement of Town Hall. This year, the Job Bank is located in the Recreation Dept.'s Youth Center.

The Job Bank placed 83 out of 89 students, ages 12 to 18, in summer jobs last year. This year, according to coordinator Buckley, the Job Bank hopes to place even more students.

"We hope that more businesses and merchants will call us if they have an opening," said Buckley. "Even though last year was our first year, it was really successful."

There are lots of jobs right now, Buckley says. However, not enough students have contacted her to fill all of the jobs that she has lined up and waiting.

Those jobs include housekeeping, gardening, landscaping, babysitting, and construction. According to Buckley, the Chamber of Commerce may also become involved with the Job Bank this year.

Employer Miriam Berry will be using the Job Bank for the second summer in a row to get students to run errands and do housekeeping for her. "It has been satisfactory and I will turn to it again," she said.

Many other employers will be using the Job Bank once again this summer, Buckley said, noting that, in some instances, students have worked all year for employers they were introduced to last summer.

Of course, some students have been lucky enough to find jobs without the Job Bank. Two of the biggest employers of students in town are the Recreation Dept. and the Dept. of Public Works. The DPW

Pleas For Relief From Sewer Spills, Floods

By DAVE LEECO

Although there has been more than a week of sunshine between the big May rainstorm and today, the flooding and sewage overflow problems caused by the deluge are just starting to swamp town officials.

Complaining of sewage in basements on Brookside ave. and Forest st., pollution in Wedge Pond and flooding along the Aberjona above the high school field, residents stormed both the Board of Selectmen and Board of Health meetings Monday night.

Upstairs at the selectmen's meeting, George Murphy of Brookside ave. told of "property damage and health hazards" due to flooding and sewage overflows at Davidson Park on Cross st.

Downstairs at the Board of Health meeting, Vine st. resident Hans Doenges told how he had to warn two girls about swimming in Wedge Pond after a sewage overflow in Horn Pond Brook polluted the pond. "I had to tell them what they were swimming in," he said.

Upstairs, Town Manager Thomas Groux noted that the flooding problem, at least, could be taken care of soon. Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia, Groux noted, was just completing a plan for dredging the Aberjona with state funds.

But downstairs, the MDC's assistant waste water managment supervisor was telling the Board of Health that the sewage problems won't be taken care of until the state forces communities to repair problems in their sewer system.

The worst problems stemming from the storm came because of both flooding and sewage overflows.

In Davidson Park, three MDC sewer manholes overflowed. The rising Aberjona carried that sewage into the basements of homes on Brookside ave. and the lower end of Forest st.

"The stench along Davidson Park was something to behold," said Murphy, whose home at 55 Brookside ave. suffered a flooded, sewage-filled basement. "We request immediate action because of the health hazard and the cost to us — our houses are worth nothing if this situation continues."

The storm also caused flooding problems further down the Aberjona, along Tremont st.

Homes in that area, just before the Aberjona flows into three pipes under the high school field, are often under water in heavy rain storms.

This year, flooding was averted only because the DPW kept men cleaning out the entrances to the pipes 24 hours a day, according to one resident. And the river still rose over the banking, washing away some of the embankment.

Murphy noted to the selectmen that blockages in the Aberjona downstream from Davidson Park were causing part of the problem in his neighborhood.

"Between Cross and Swanton sts., the banks have collapsed due to muskrats, there are sandbars in the river the ducks can walk across," he said. "The pipes under the ballfield are filled to capacity. All that's abetting the flooding at Davidson Park. The river needs to be dredged."

The river may be dredged soon, according to Groux, with state funds.

Mixed Doubles Tourney Is June 27-30

A Lipton Iced Tea Mixed Doubles qualifying tournament has been scheduled for June 27 to 30 at the Winchester Indoor Lawn Tennis Center. "Players should participate in this nationwide, amateur tournament, and compete for a trip to the National Finals," Lloyd Thomas said. Details for interested mixed doubles teams are available by contacting Thomas at the Tennis Center.

Amateurs of all abilities may compete in the Lipton Iced Tea Mixed Doubles Championship, National Tennis Week's popular nationwide tournament. The winners of each qualifying tournament proceed to one of the 128 Sectional events in July and August, from which the winning team advances to one of 32, one-day regional playoffs in August. The regional winners, each with a guest, receive an all-expense-paid trip to the National Finals.

The grower of the heaviest squampkin will receive a $100 Mahoney's gift certificate. Second prize is a $75 gift certificate and third prize is a $50 certificate.

The contest is open to amateur growers only. Seedlings may be planted now and are for sale at Mahoney's.

National Instruction Day Clinics will be offered by members of the United States Professional Tennis Assn., the United States Professional Tennis Registry, and other qualified tennis professionals at clubs and public facilities.

Skillings Lot To Get Facelift

The Skillings rd. parking lot across from Town Hall will get center islands, new trees and bushes, and 18 more spaces, despite the vehement opposition of a group of seniors.

Selectmen voted 3-2 Monday night to support the Center Design Review Committee's proposal to landscape what is now a flat stretch of macadam, broken up only by lights on poles.

The vote almost went the other way. Alan Macdonald, the swing vote, was nearly convinced by the angry senior citizens.

Those seniors had complained the three islands planned for the middle of the lot would make snow plowing difficult, that fallen leaves from trees would make the ground slippery for seniors and that a parking lot should be a lot, not a park.

Those complaints continued even though Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia noted that plowing would be easier under the plan, Design Committee member Charles Tseckares pointed out that the leaves from the honey locusts would literally pulverize, and Economic Development Coordinator John Connery said the seniors were getting what they most wanted — a sidewalk from Mt. Vernon st. to the Jenks Center.

And those complaints almost convinced Macdonald.

"It's a shame, because (the lot) is the first thing that hits your eye when you come in to that side of town, and it's an unattractive spot," said Macdonald just as selectmen were getting ready to vote. "I don't disagree with the plan, but with all the public comment negative . . . ."

But fortunately for the plan, some positive comments came quickly after Macdonald's comment.

"I'd like to speak for it," said Larry Hutchins, a member of the Jenks Board of Trustees. "We've gone through the plan thoroughly, made several suggestions to John (Connery) — I was the one that made the suggestion about the sidewalk.

"People have called me and said they wished we would do the beautification," said Hutchins. "We've put loads of money into beautifying the senior center, and now we have to look out on all that tar."

Tseckares noted that the original idea behind the beautification, in fact, was "to help beautify the Jenks Center."

"We wanted to finish the beautification they have never been able to do because of that huge hunk of macadam," said Tseckares.

That changed Macdonald's mind, and he voted with selectmen Edward O'Connell and Wade Welch for the project. Selectmen Mark Lombardi and Michael Saraco were opposed.

The beautification plan will place two parallel islands in the middle of the lot, with trees or bushes on each. The eight wooden light poles will be replaced with 10 bronzed aluminum poles, placed on the islands and the edges of the lot. Granite curbing will be set around the islands and along the edges of the lot.

The money for the project, which will start later this summer, will come from a $370,000 state grant, which is also going toward repaving and extending the lot across from the Post Office.

Search Committee To Replace Town Manager Will Be Established

It's official — Town Manager Thomas Groux will be retiring as of July 6.

Selectmen voted Monday night to accept Groux's resignation, and also decided to establish a search committee to look for his replacement.

However, the real decision will be made next Monday, when selectmen will decide on the make-up of the search committee, and on a temporary replacement for Groux.

For Sachem Woods Condos

Planning Board Hears Proposed Changes

BY LIZ WILLEN

The Planning Board got its first glimpse of proposed changes in the Sachem Woods development on Monday night when Boston-based developer Jan Chabot came before them to discuss his ideas for revisions in the proposed luxury condominiums.

Chabot, who hopes to purchase the project from the Whitten family, gave both the Planning Board and the neighbors crowded into the basement of Town Hall a lengthy explanation of some of the changes he would make if the Zoning Board of Appeal approves them at a special hearing June 20.

The Planning Board did not take a vote on the proposed changes — members will decide next Monday on their recommendation to the Board of Appeal.

Neighbors who live near the proposed condominium complex first heard about the changes at a special meeting held at the Vinson-Owen school three weeks ago. Many of them were shocked and outraged at changes that they felt violated the spirit of the covenant that won Town Meeting approval for the project.

Town Meeting gave Winchester developer George Whitten the go-ahead on the Sachem Woods Condominiums 18 months ago after he presented members with a slide show depicting luxurious brick condominiums.

Although area neighbors were against rezoning from single-family homes to allow the development, they said they felt they had no choice but to accept the plans once they were approved by Town Meeting.

Three weeks ago, the Whittens announced substantial changes in the plan, including a change in the developer. If Chabot purchases the development, the units will be less expensive than their original $225,000 price. Other changes include the choice of material — from brick and glass to wood-framed colonial-style building.

The new plans, neighbors say, violate the spirit of Town Meeting. But it will be up to the Board of Appeal to decide if the changes are substantial enough to violate the covenant.

The changes in plans, Robinson Whitten told the Planning Board Monday night, came about because he and his family wanted to get out of the project.

"When we first began this project, there was a great deal of interest in it," he said. "Now, the Whitten attitude is, this is a damn hard way to make money."

Whitten said he felt the spirit of the original plans would be carried through once Boston Condominium Homes (BCH), Chabot's company, took over.

"We are attuned to the concerns of the neighbors," he said. "BCH will carry through with the major plans. The site development is the greatest variable, and it is a hard site to develop."

Chabot defended the new plan to develop the site, saying that the suggestions of BCH were based on "a thorough preponderance of marketing requirements — from a marketing viewpoint, we felt the other plans were unacceptable."

Chabot said the total number of units would still be 108. "We are winding up with something similar, if not the same," he said. He explained that although some of the building materials would be different, "we don't feel its a planning issue."

But to neighbors who were closely watching the presentation, the issue of those changes is still a very legitimate concern.

In fact, they said the plans had changed since the meeting at the Vinson-Owen School.

"It's not what we saw," whispered Surrey rd. resident Ann Matarese to another neighbor sitting nearby. "The plans are not what we first saw."

Chabot said he was requesting the right to "go ahead with phase I and II of the plans as a financial consideration."

"We feel if one developer does this as soon as possible, it will be better, and will save some aggravation for the neighborhood," he said.

Planning Board member Marion Crandall replied that combining construction phases I and II might involve Town Meeting, not the Board of Appeal.

"I see a division in phasing and jurisdiction that is beyond the Board of Appeals," Crandall said. "I don't think the covenant can easily be changed."

"We did heed the covenant, but you may be right," Chabot replied. "We do believe that the agreement in the covenant is not specific, but we will be getting some legal advice."

Chabot said that he would be asking that a special permit be granted to permit phases I and II to be developed simultaneously.

"You would have to convince us that town is just as well off if you do phases I and II together — and that you won't start something and not finish it," said Planning Board member Clarence Borggaard.

"If I don't finish it, my bank will," Chabot assured them.

"The bottom line is, we don't want a lot of undeveloped land with houses on it," added Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia.

Italian Fiesta Will Be Aug. 3

A Sizzling Success

CLOSEUP ON THE FIREWORKS — The Town Day fireworks were just as impressive being shot off from Manchester Field as they were in the air.

MUSIC — Seven different bands performed during Town Day, including the country-western group Redneck Revival

ON DISPLAY — Many downtown merchants displayed their wares on Town Day, but Shear Creations on Thompson st. had a twist — the store displayed its hair-cutting skills. Karen Peterson gets her hair cut by Steve Carhevale.

CENTER DEDICATION — During the noon-time dedication of the Winchester Center, Town Manager Thomas Groux handed out shovels to all the merchants so they could clear snow from the new brick sidewalks. A copy of the town by-law requiring business owners to shovel was wrapped around the handle.

KEEPING COOL — Town Day was a scorcher, but Steven Deering, 4, managed to cool off from a fire hose set up for the young athletes participating in contests at the Wadleigh School field.

Meals On Wheels Drivers Thanked

Honored At Jenks Center

Fifty volunteer drivers for Winchester Meals on Wheels were recently feted at an Appreciation Coffee at the Jenks Senior Center in Winchester. Hosting the event was the Advisory Committee of Winchester Meals on Wheels.

Marcella Smith, chairman of the Advisory Committee, expressed the committee's thanks to the many drivers present, and introduced several guests. Among the guests were Robert Mulford, chairman of the Winchester Council on Aging, and Pauline McGuighan, president of the Winchester Seniors' Assoc. Both agencies are sponsors of Winchester Meals on Wheels.

Smith also expressed the committee's appreciation to the several Winchester organizations whose financial contributions make Meals on Wheels possible — the EnKa Society, the Rotary Club, Church Women United, and many Winchester churches as well as several individual donors.

Formally introduced at the coffee was the recently appointed Winchester Meals on Wheels Coordinator, Marilyn Georgis, who urged drivers to sign up for the many vacancies in the summer driving schedule. Stressing the continuing need for drivers, especially acute in the summer, Georgie urged the group to help recruit new drivers, and to phone her at 729-4646 with their names.

Founded in 1978, Winchester Meals on Wheels now serves over 30 Winchester residents who are esentially home-bound. Providing nutritious, well-balanced meals at cost five days a week, the program allows convalescent patients to leave the hospital sooner and allows Senior Citizens to remain in their own homes. Meals are prepared and packed in the Winchester Hospital kitchen by the hospital's food service staff and delivered by volunteer drivers.

The Advisory Committee of Winchester Meals on Wheels consists of representatives of the Winchester Hospital's Social Service Volunteer Department and Food Service Dept. of the Winchester Seniors' Assoc., the EnKa Society, Church Women United and of the volunteer drivers of Meals on Wheels. Serving with Chairman Smith is Vice-Chairman Phyllis Hollinshead, Secretary Marie Johnson, and Treasurer Carolyn Dettinger.

An Appreciation Coffee was held recently to thank the drivers who make the town's Meals-On-Wheels program work by taking a day a month to deliver food to Winchester's homebound. Several of the drivers felt so appreciated that they signed up for a summer hitch (above). The coffee gave the drivers a chance to meet members of the Meals-On-Wheels Advisory Committee, including (right) Marcella Smith, chairman of the committee, and Phyllis Hollinshead, vice chairman.

Bring A Friend Along On An Adventure Connection Trip

The Winchester Recreation Dept.'s "Adventure Connection" Program is looking for lots of involvement in its diversified eight-week program. To prompt this involvement, the Recreation Dept. is, once again, offering a "Bring A Friend" contest for the Adventure Connection Program.

Any junior high or high school student who signs up a friend for an overnight, either canoeing on the Saco River July 2 to 4 or hiking Mr. Washington July 30 to Aug. 1, will be credited $5 to his overnight fee.

In addition, that person who signs up the most friends is enabled to go on an overnight trip for half price. There will also be a contest for each of the six week-long sessions. The student who signs up the most people for a given week wins a free session of his/her choice. In case of a tie, the price per session will be split.

Start recruiting your friends now and bring them down to the Recreation Dept. for an exciting summer. Any questions, contact the Recreation Dept.

Eighth Graders Graduate From Bartlett School June 20

Bartlett School eighth grade graduation exercises were held June 12 in the auditorium of the school at 40 Samoset rd. After the flag salute and "America the Beautiful", principal Norine T. Casey addressed the graduates and their guests.

Maral Demirjian introduced the class program which consisted of an excerpt from the play "Inherit the Wind" directed by Jacquelyn Skolnick and musical numbers directed by Karen Mahoney.

The valedictory address was given by David Donahoe and class prophecies by Guy Lake and Doreen Reid. After Casey presented the diplomas, graduates and their guests adjourned for a social hour with refreshments and a chance to view the art work on display in the auditorium.

Graduating from Winchester was Guy Lake, son of Elizabeth Lake, of Copley st., who will attend Winchester High School next year.

READING ON THE AIR — Swanton st. resident George Govostes and Winchester Women's Club Jrs. President Mitzi Herlihy listen to the broadcast of the day's Boston Globe over a special transmitter which picks up broadcasts for the seeing-impaired.

Govostes Gets Gift Of Sight

Seeing-Impaired Hear News

George Govostes, a visually-handicapped resident of Swanton st., can "read" Dickens, Carl Sandburg, The Boston Globe and The Boston Herald thanks to a gift by the Winchester Women's Club Jrs.

Mitzi Herlihy, president of the club, recently presented Govostes with a Talking Information Center receiver which picks up daily broadcasts from the Marshfield organization.

Talking Information Center is a non-profit, non-commercial radio reading service for the reading-impaired of Massachusetts.

The center provides daily readings of newspapers, books, magazines, shopping guides, calenders of community events, educational material and health messages.

"This is another way that handicapped people can be independent," said Govostes, who commented that he especially enjoys keeping up with the daily news through the broadcasts.

The programs are broadcast over the sub-carriers of F.M. radio stations, and can be heard only with the use of a special radio receiver available for the legally blind, print disabled, physically handicapped and the elderly.

Herlihy noted that although there was a waiting list for the receivers, the Women's Club Jrs. would be happy to work to provide one to any Winchester resident who needs one. Those interested should contact Herlihy.

The Winchester Women's Club Jrs. also recently made a donation to Winchester High School's Drug and Alcohol Education Program. WHS's Ted Benton accepted the gift for the program.

Leonard Pond Beach To Open

Leonard's Pond off Cross st. will be opening for the 1984 summer season on June 23 at 9 a.m. Beach hours for the season, June 23 through Sept. 3 (Labor Day) will be from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Extensive rehabilitative work has been done to improve the clarity of the water and the overall conditions of the swimming area. Under the direction of the DPW, Leonard's has been dredged and resanded. The bath house has also been repaired to correct damages incurred during the fire last August.

Registration for the Swimming Instruction Program will be at Leonard's Pond Monday, June 25, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. for Session I. Registration for Session II will be July 16 from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. Actual instruction will begin on the day following registration.

Daily lesson schedule is as follows: 9 - 10 a.m. Advanced Swimmers (focus on all competitive strokes); 10 - 10:40 a.m. Advanced Beginner, Intermediate Swimmer; 10:40 - 11:20 a.m. Beginner, Advanced Beginner; 11:20 - 11:40 a.m. Non swimmers; 11:40 - noon Non swimmers; 12:10 - 12:50 p.m. Beginners, Advanced Beginners.

A registration fee of $10 for each 3-week session is required. A second child from the same family will be assessed a $5 fee. Additional children from the same family will not be assessed any additional fee.

Scholarship Donations Sought

The Winchester Scholarship Foundation, which recently awarded scholarship aid to 33 Winchester High School graduates, is still collecting donations.

The foundation has yet to make its awards for continuing aid to those in their second and third year of post-high school education, and this year is also accepting applications from students pursuing a medical career, thanks to a local doctor who endowed a special scholarship for this purpose.

To date 284 individuals and organizations in the town have given to the organization, which helps students bridge the gap between what their parents can afford to contribute to their education and other forms of aid and work/study programs.

Gifts range in size from $5 contributions to the $4,000 gift from the EnKa Society.

"Every dollar helps," says David Donahue, president, "And with tuition costs rising every year, we need to give students more so they can make ends meet."

Recently the Winchester High School Class of 1953 gave $500. According to Paul Mahoney, the gift is a memorial to those members of the class who have passed on. Helping deserving Winchester students is certainly a fitting way to remember those who were once at the high school.

Plunkett Scholarship Established

A memorial scholarship fund has been set up for James Plunkett, a Winchester High School student who died on May 21 in an accidental shooting.

According to art teacher Janet Eldridge, Plunkett was a creative and talented art student, especially in the area of cartooning.

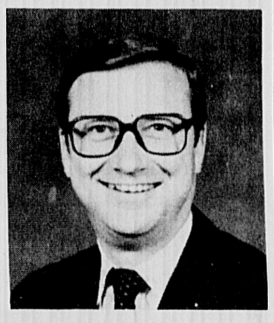

The scholarship was recently established with a $1000 gift from Plunkett's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schultz of Winchester.

Donations will be sought to bring the fund up to about $2,500 so that the fund can be self-sustaining.

The scholarship fund will help a deserving art student further his or her education. Donations should be sent in care of art teacher Janet Eldridge at Winchester High School.

A Basement To End All Basements

By TERRY MAROTTA

People with neat basements make me nervous.

If I'm just getting friendly with someone, and things develop to the point where I go down their basement, I always feel a certain anxiety.

If it turns out that they have one of those Home Craftsman basements, I start worrying. I feel unworthy and ashamed. I'm convinced that these people, with their corkboards and tools hanging just so, with their nails and screws methodically jarred and labelled, would never want someone like me for a friend. Why?

You should see our basement. It looks like the inside of a lunatic's mind.

I apologize to meter readers and repairmen before showing them down to it. I do my best to prevent my friends from ever seeing it.

Occasionally, well-meaning guests will offer to run down and fetch another armful of firewood from it. They reach for the door. I throw myself against it, screeching "Stop!" You don't want to go Down There!" They must picture rooms swirling with demons and poltergeists, cobwebbed with sticky dust and creaking with doors that swing forbiddingly and unexpectedly out at you, revealing yet more dank and fetid rooms within.

In fact, it's pretty much like that.

It's old and musty smelling, of course, with sweaty walls of ancient stone. They look as though you might find cave paintings on them.

But the thing that makes it really bad is the junk that resides in it. We keep stuff down there that they wouldn't take at the dump, stuff the trashmen would laugh at and drive past.

The thing is, it isn't just our junk; it's the junk of all these other people too. Whenever we've moved into a house or apartment, we've inherited a tally of trash that the previous occupants deemed unworthy of moving. So do we throw the stuff away, like normal people would do? Heck, no. It's all down cellar: the gleanings from six separate domiciles.

We have jars and bottles belonging to faceless strangers; a footlocker dating back to the Great War; and half an old bed, the footboard, specifically, bowed out by some tall person's tootsies over the years and scritched over, in delicate and intricate patterns, by his toenails.

Can you imagine?

On top of this accumulation, we've laid down our own layer of useless truck. We have not one, but three broken fish tanks, lying about among the power tools. A tiny leering mermaid reclines on the hacksaw. Half-a-dozen used plastic shower curtains huddle together on the floor, smelling of Zest and mildew, saved gradually, over time, with the idea that they'd make dandy dropcloths.

There's a giant vat in the corner under the decapitated hairdryer. I used it once to make wine. We stomped 150 pounds of grapes in it, strained the mush lovingly, watched it grow frothy and promising with fermentation, and then put it into bottles with fancy airlocks for aging — until, one by one, they all exploded, showering that particular basement with an Esplanade-worth of fireworks.

There's a full nursery of broken baby equipment; six crippled bicycles; 22 half-empty paint cans, all solidified; and brushes in a state of rigor mortis that no amount of turpentine will release them from.

A plumber's snake sits atop a stereo speaker that will speak, alas, nevermore. A pair of painters overalls sprawls like a happy and sleeping drunk on the woodpile. And over it all lies a fine dust, and the larger flakes of paint that have cast themselves sorrowfully from the peeling walls, as if life in this place were too great a spur to suicide for them to resist.

The digs at Pompeii have nothing on my basement. The ruins of Carthage offer less rich a history.

The place is an Atlantis, is what it is: an entire lost continent that collapsed of its own weight and settled to our house's ocean floor.

Do you doubt me? Come on over then. You can meet the mermaid.

Letters To the Editor

A Great Big Thank-You To Those Who Made Town Day A Success

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Town Day was revived in 1982 through the initiative of Bruce Brown and the Winchester Jaycees, with a lot of help from the Chamber of Commerce. The sole purpose was, and will continue to be, to foster a sense of community spirit, pride and participation. As Town Day grows from year to year, it is clear that our purpose is being realized.

The Town Day Committee includes a small nucleus of 12 to 18 people and we are now running a budget of close to $8,000. This year, we had more events, more booths, and more entertainment than ever before. Most of the entertainment was donated by local groups and individuals, and all the money to provide the fireworks display was contributed by local merchants and organizations.

There is no way we can properly thank everyone who was involved. We would like, however, to single some groups who are the key to our success each year.

Various town officials and departments provide a great deal of support: Tom Gr[illegible] (who will be dearly missed next ye[illegible] the Board of Selectmen, the DPW, To[illegible]l personnel, the Police and Fire De[illegible]nd John Connery.

[illegible] of the events are supported by organizations in town who contribute hours of their own time: The Winchester Boat Club, The Tennis Assn., the Rotary Club, the Knights of Columbus, the Lions Club, Winchester Interact, and especially the Chamber of Commerce.

The Town Day finale wouldn't be the same without the Junior High School Jazz Band under the direction of David Kontoff and the selections played by the High School Band under the direction of Priscilla Miller. Each year, the High School Band provides a perfect introduction to the fireworks in spite of having lost a quarter of their members to graduation a week earlier.

Finally, we have to thank all the merchants, professionals and organizations who participate in the Sidewalk Bazaar and contribute to the fireworks display. In particular, we would like to single out Henderson's Stationers and Winchester Ltd. Jewelers, who contribute in many ways beyond what we could ever expect.

We hope everyone who attended enjoyed the festivities, and thanks to all those who helped clean up litter and return chairs to the Town Hall. We'll see you all next year.

A Last Salute To 'Babe' Olivadoti

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

On Tuesday of this past week, the sun was shining brightly, and the bells began to ring, and the long procession of automobiles moved closer and closer to the Immaculate Conception church. The time was here, the final opportunity to pay your respects to "Babe" Olivadoti.

Babe was a lifelong resident of Winchester, an excellent family man, a very hard worker, a person that liked to hear a joke, and most of all, a leader. He was a leader as a drill instructor in the Marines. He was a Little League manager for a number of years. He was a Town Meeting member, and he took this job to represent his section of the town. He was also a leader at work, he liked to take responsibility, and when he accepted a job, he always finished it to perfection.

The priest spoke about how Babe was willing to receive love, and how he gave love back to others in all areas of his life. The best examples of love were the wide diversity of people in the church offering their respects to Babe. His family, his coworkers, his neighbors, his friends, his relatives, fellow Marines, his in-laws from North Carolina, the Chief of Police, the Chief of the Fire Dept., the Aberjona VFW group, and many others blended together as a splendid example of the people he touched in his life.

Babe was a giant of a man because he was always willing to take the time to help others when they needed it. He was the person who would teach you skills, talents and abilities without any hesitation or potential reward.

Babe was one of the finest men I have ever known in my life. His memories will live on forever and ever in the theatre of your mind. Thanks Babe for touching our lives.

Sincerely,
William J. Bond

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Having been among the first to doubt that the business center would ever receive a much-needed face-lift, let us now be among the first to congratulate the hard-working team that has managed to restore a touch of class to this area.

What has been accomplished so far, with a minimum of disruption and chaos (given the nature of the undertaking), gives bright promise to the completed restoration. It is really lovely!

May the townspeople now take pride in their downtown, one of the most unique and charming around — and hopefully teach their young to respect the time, money and effort that made it all possible. Congratulations!

Protect The Town Forest!

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The Brooks-Parkhurst Town Forest is much more than trees. It is a fascinating community of plants and animals. The Great Spirit is constantly allowing new inhabitants to find their special niches within the 28 acres of woodland and meadow.

On the stony, acid summit of the forest, there are three flowering plants growing that I have not seen growing on any other conservation land in Winchester. There are reclusive plants along what I call the Fern Path, and also sprinkled around other shady, moist areas, that I have not seen elsewhere in Winchester — nor during my lifetime in the woods of New Jersey and New Hampshire.

I'm sure that many Winchester residents would visit the forest and discover a lovely recreational area, if The Winchester Star would stop inferring that there is widespread dumping, or that it is "neglected, or that "new life" is desperately needed. It is my belief that what is most needed is a good map showing the whole 28 acres with the paths as they exist today (there has been little change in two decades).

By concentrating on the inevitable problems of forest management, The Star may have influenced one of the forest abutters to value the forest less. He dumped several mounds of grass along the cart path recently. He did not do this in previous years. I believe we should take stock of what we have and take care of it. Care includes education!

Since reading about the Douglas Fir and some other trees in books at the Univesity of Mass. Field Station, I have come to the conclusion that the Douglas Fir does not deserve any more protection than the older trees already found in the forest. One big enemy, the fir bark beetle, may not find its way here; but other problems can occur. The Douglas Fir is subject to heart rots and a fungus disease, Rhabdocline Needle Cast. Also, until further education, I'm wondering if some day Spruce Bud Worms might decide that Douglas Firs are just as acceptable as Hemlocks.

In order to protect the diversity we already have, I am seeking permission to remove a few Douglas Firs from three locations. One group of firs is blocking the Fern Path. I doubt they will like this wet area anyway.

A second location is on the summit (at the colossal elevation of 138 feet). The firs may flourish in the well drained sunny location; but large firs will spoil the unique habitat we have now. This area is surrounded by paths on three sides. Our grandchildren will probably not appreciate either the dying lower limbs or the clean up problems caused by wind-thrown tall trees.

Thus far in my incomplete tour of the Town Forest, I have seen only six young beech trees. Since the Beech Bark Disease is more prevalent in northern New England right now, I would like to preserve what we have by removing firs that might compete with two beeches in an interior section.

Sincerely yours,
Evelyn Trageser

A Graduation Thank-You

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Many of us wondered, because of the weather problems and rain, if Manchester Field could be made ready for our outdoor graduation ceremonies Sunday.

Thanks to the diligent work of the Parks Dept. and Richard Tofuri all was made ready so our very special day would be just that, very special.

Thanks from the Class of '84.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

This week's report records votes on key roll calls from the week of June 4-8.

DRUG DEALERS (S 255) — Senate 27-9 gave initial approval to a bill imposing a mandatory 25-year jail sentence for drug dealers convicted of distributing drugs with a street value of more than $25,000.

Supporters said it was time to get tough with major pushers and argued the sentence is fair and just for someone who destroys kids' lives.

Opponents said Massachusetts already has some of the toughest drug laws in the nation and claimed the bill goes too far and even has constitutional problems.

Sen. Richard Kraus voted no.

DEDUCT MORTGAGE (S 2165) — Senate 23-13, rejected an amendment allowing homeowners to deduct 50 percent of their mortgage interest payments, up to $2500, on their state income tax returns.

Supporters, noting the amendment would only cost $24 million, said 25 states and the federal government allow this deduction. They said it would help current and future homeowners.

Opponents said the deductions would cost much more than $24 million and argued it is an unfair tax cut that helps only homeowners while millions of others also need tax relief.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment allowing the mortgage interest deduction. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Kraus voted no.

RELATIVES (S 2165) — Senate 34-1, approved an amendment giving an additional $3000 exemption to taxpayers who provide more than one-half of the support for an elderly relative over 70 years of age. Under the bill, the relative must live with the taxpayer for at least six months a year and the taxpayer's adjusted gross income cannot exceed $40,000.

Supporters said the amendment was long overdue and would help the taxpayer who pays thousands to help a relative.

Opponents offered no arguments against the amendment.

Kraus voted yes.

DRINKING AGE (H 5952) — House 100-46, rejected an amendment to a bill hiking the state's drinking age from 20 to 21. The amendment would make the hike effective only when the age is increased to 21 in Connecticut, Maine, New Hampshire, New York, Rhode Island, and Vermont.

Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh voted no.

The Danger Of Drugs, Alcohol

Robot Speaks To Kids

By KAREN BRADBURY

Blue lights blink, bleeps and clicks sound and the robot "K2-4" comes to life to tell Winchester elementary school children that knowledge is the key to avoiding problems with drugs and alcohol.

Winchester Police Officer Kevin Mawn and the latest addition to the force, "K2-4," have toured the Winchester elementary schools presenting a program to fourth, fifth and sixth graders to heighten the children's awareness about chemical abuse.

"The majority are aware of what marijuana and alcohol are," said Mawn.

"The program doesn't try to drive into kids that drugs are bad," said Mawn. "It's their decision and the program just tries to make them aware."

Although the targeted age group seems young, Mawn said there is no question in his mind that some children that age have already experimented with drugs or alcohol.

The importance of knowing enough about drugs and alcohol to make an intelligent decision about their use was stressed during the program.

The children learned from this game that drugs are most often first offered by friends, and the first drug to be used is usually alcohol. The danger of driving while under the influence of alcohol or marijuana was made clear, as well as the adverse effect misused drugs can have on health.

The last questions of the game established that children should not use drugs even if it's "just for fun" and they should go to the police if they want help for a friend with a drug problem.

"I think you never can be hurt by having more education about something that's potentially a problem," said Dick Young, principal of Muraco Elementary School.

Paula Caffrey, principal of Lincoln Elementary School believes children should be exposed to information about chemical abuse at a young age so they can understand the dangers.

"The program will serve to make the children more aware of some of the temptations that are out there that they should stay away from," said Caffrey.

The program began with the children bringing "K2-4" out of "deactivation" by greeting him loudly at the count of three. Officer Mawn played the role of programmer and gave the robot permission to relay certain "programs" to the children.

Early in the program, Officer Mawn was presented as a friend, someone who could help, and the children were told to have pride in themselves and to respect themselves and their friends. Only then did the program move on to offer some basic knowledge about drugs and alcohol.

The robot invited a few of the children to the front of the room to speak with him while the rest of the children watched, rapt with fascination. Using humor and games, the robot kept their attention better than any human speaker could.

"Kids will pay more attention to the robot than other people," said Steven Lucero, a fourth grader at Lincoln Elementary School who was one of the children chosen to speak with the robot.

"Because they think it's neat," piped in another Lincoln fourth grader.

Children at the Muraco School called the robot "awesome" while their principal described it as "a very impressive teaching tool."

"It keeps their attention and gets them involved," said Mawn.

The robot is operated by remote control by an "animator" out of sight from the children. The robot is able to move around on wheels and move its arms up and down. Lights in its white sphere of a head flash as it "speaks." Actually it is the animator speaking from his hiding place through a speaker inside the robot. A microphone hidden in the robot allows the animator to hear what the children say.

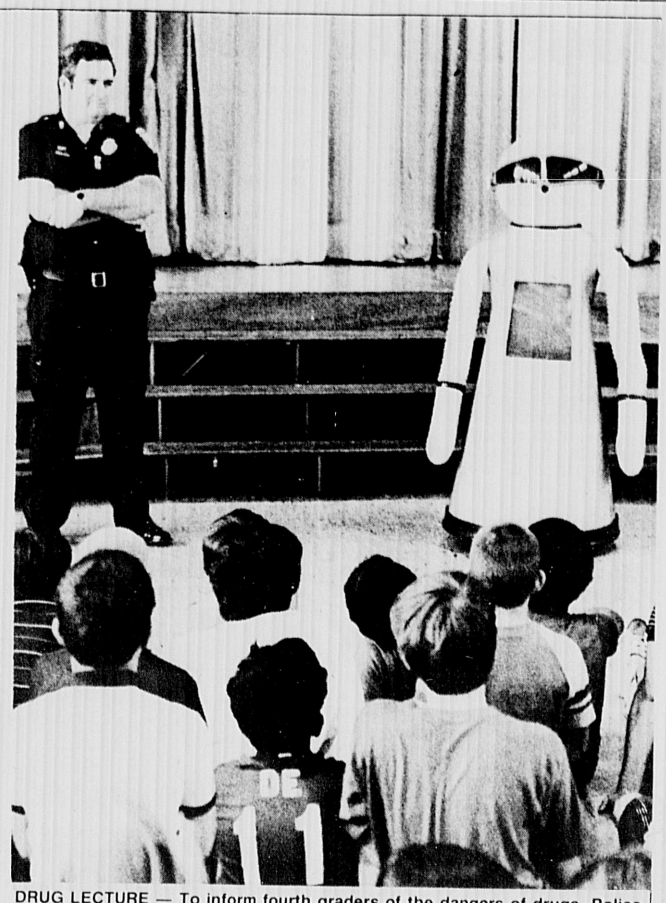

"I use their names, I comment on what they are wearing — that blows them away every time," said David Alemian, "K2-4's" animator.

Mawn said most of the children think there is actually a man hiding inside the robot.

This robot's educational performance costs the Winchester school system nothing. A federal grant provides all the funds necessary to implement this program.

The idea for this anti-drug and alcohol program was developed by a safety officer on the Hudson police force. His idea was endorsed by First Lady Nancy Reagan as well as top state officials. This program, initiated in Hudson, has now spread to other cities in Massachusetts.

The robot is a product of Safety Products Publications in Hackensack, N.J. The drug and alcohol program is fairly new, but the robot has been used in similar programs to educate students about safety, said Alemian.

Instructor Chosen For Art Guild

The Winchester Studio Guild has selected a new instructor for the 1984-1985 Session of Art Classes which will begin on Oct. 4.

Pat Walker, who has taught the members of the Studio Guild for the past three years, has resigned to be able to spend more time painting in her own studio.

The new instructor is Rhoda Rosenberg of Malden. Rosenberg is a graduate of Temple University, Philadelphia, Pa., from which she received a degree in fine arts. Following this, she studied at Tufts University/School of the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, and received a degree in printmaking.

In 1965 Rosenberg was awarded the William Emlen Cressen European Scholarship. She received scholarships after that from both Temple University and Tufts University School of the Museum of Fine Arts. In the competition sponsored by the Massachusetts Council on the Arts in 1977, "Art of the State," she was a finalist in the printmaking/drawing category.

Roseberg has had several one-woman shows and has exhibited in numerous group shows.

The Winchester Studio Guild, which was founded by Dorothy Howard nearly 50 years ago, will for the first time in its history offer an evening class one evening a week if there is sufficient interest in the community.

For information about membership in the Studio Guild, and other questions, please call Bob Gallant, 19 Laurel Hill In.

Friends Of Hospital Hold Meeting

The 34th Annual Meeting of the Friends of Winchester Hospital was held recently at the Crawford Memorial United Methodist Church in Winchester.

The business session, led by Kathleen Neuner, president of Friends, included a reading of the highlights of the past year by Lydia Vernaglia, recording secretary, a financial status report by Dr. Edna Parks, treasurer, and the presentation of the nominations for the new Executive Board by Mary Wilson, nominating committee chairwoman.

Following the business agenda was a delicious petite buffet luncheon organized by Hospitality Chairwoman Regina Karnilla and her committee. The honored coffee and tea pourers at the luncheon table were Florence Smith, recognized for 1000 hours of service with Friends, and Peg Pullo, for 500 hours of service.

Following the luncheon Vice President Ann Merry welcomed and introduced the featured speaker, the Hon. John A. Volpe. Volpe, who served as governor of Massachusetts from 1961-1963 and from 1965-1969 and lived in Winchester for a number of years, is executive director of the National Commission Against Drunk Driving. This commission is the successor organization of President Reagan's Commission on Drunk Driving, of which Volpe was chairman as well.

Volpe addressed his audience of more than 100 people, which included concerned young people from Winchester High School, on the national tragedy of drunk driving.

Volpe stressed the need for nationwide efforts in both public and private sectors to combat drunk driving, citing that 50 percent of all automobile accidents are alcohol related, and more specifically that out of 140 people who are killed in car crashes everyday, 70 of these deaths are alcohol related.

Volpe advocates the adoption of a nationwide legal drinking age of 21, and recommended that concerned citizens should call or write their legislators on this issue.

Other issues he identified as means to control drunk driving included the adoption of mandatory sentences reinforced by treatment programs, with special centers for dealing with young drunk drivers, safety check points along highways for breath testing, and the expansion of citizen action groups with emphasis on education.

Volpe concluded by saying that changes in the law are not enough, but that there must be a commitment from people that drinking and driving are a socially unacceptable combination, and that prevention is the only long-term hope.

Robert Fayne Returns To ABC House

A surprise visitor to Winchester ABC's recent annual meeting was Robert Fayne, a 1975 graduate of the program.

Fayne traveled from New York, where he is working as an investment counsellor for Kidder Peabody, and spoke to the group about what ABC (A Better Chance) has meant to him.

He described coming here as a 16-year old from Memphis, Tenn., missing home and his mother and having to cope with the many adjustments involved in coming to Winchester.

"In Memphis I was a good student without trying very hard," he said, "but the vigorous educational climate here in Winchester provided me with a sense of how valuable education is."

In Memphis it was "not fashionable to be a good student" he said.

Fayne went on to Carlton College in Minnesota, worked in New York, and last year graduated from the master's of business administration program at Harvard Business School.

"Winchester was wonderful for me" he said.

Fayne spoke of his commitment to give something back to society, and currently serves on the board of the National Urban League.

ABC ALUMNUS — ABC graduate Robert Fayne, who returned to Winchester to talk to current residents of the Dix st. house, talks with his former Winchester High School principal and vice principal, Vincent Larocco and Vandy French.

Winchester Players Meet June 16

The Winchester Players invite interested Winchester residents to the open annual meeting of the Players, on June 16 at 7:30 p.m. in Metcalf Hall at the Unitarian Church, 478 Main st.

After a brief business meeting and election of officers, an original musical "Cleo And The Ghost," by Winchester resident Doug Davidson, will be presented. The setting of the play is the castle of Bonnie Doone in the Scottish Highlands in 1912. A genuine ghost lives in the castle, along with his young dancing teachers, Cleo and Samantha.

As the play opens, they are awaiting the arrival of the new Laird of the castle, Col. Malcolm MacDougall, and his son Robert. The Colonel is troubled to learn that there is a large mortgage on the castle, and the family treasure is nowhere to be found.

Seating for the meeting is cabaret-style, with refreshments provided by the Players. The Winchester Players hope residents and those interested in meeting the Players will join in for an interesting and entertaining meeting.

Freeman Appointed Treasurer

By JANE SPENCER

Winchester resident Lisa Freeman has been recently appointed treasurer of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters. Having a strong background in finance and government, she is well qualified for this position.

A graduate of Smith College, Freeman majored in government and minored in math. She has been an active member of Winchester's league since 1955, and is a former president.

Other past work experience for Freeman has been at MIT, supervisor of data reduction at the Institute's Naval Supersonic Lab. She has also held various positions in accounting for a variety of local firms.

Freeman's other activities and interests include the Smith Club and Winchester trails. During her free time she and the family enjoy skiing and sailing.

Freeman's new position as treasurer entails collecting and distributing of monies with her main objective to have the income exceed the expenses. The financial background of the League has changed. At one time, the League of Women Voters of Massachusetts was supported entirely by local assessments. Currently the League is 50 percent funded by local league assessments and the balance of the income raised from other sources i.e., an annual drive, grants, publications and the Scharfman Fund, (the tax deductible Voter Service fund) which has a separate Board of Directors. The 21st Century Fund Drive raised money to modernizing the LWV office equipment. As part of this drive, Wang has given the League a data process system which will aid in better and faster service to the local leagues.

Winchester's Lisa Freeman, treasurer of the state League of Women Voters.

I asked Lisa what are some of the problems the league is faced with presently. She said that with most volunteer organizations, the League has to do the same, if not more work with a diminishing pool of volunteers, because we are forced to trim what we do and spend hours fund-raising.

"No league member wants to trim our activities," she said. All of us would rather spend our time on the primary purpose of furthering our legislative positions.

We also discussed goals, short-term and some long-term goals of the League. Freeman told me that the league is concluding a year of action on natural resources including regional informational meetings on LLW (low level radiation waste). Local leagues participated in a water survey and/or household hazardous waste collection. For long-term goals, the League has a vast agenda.

Local leagues watch what's happening in their community and work to maintain a high level of citizen participation in public policy decisions. The Massachusetts League does the same thing at the state level. Of special interest this year are: Support of pro-choice positions on abortion - adequate funding of Massachusetts services (budget) — county charter reform - coastal zone management - passage and ratification of the federal ERA, and House rules reform.

Across the USA the spotlight is on education. In Massachusetts the Joint Legislative Committee on Education has filed an omnibus bill based on the issues addressed in the Committee's 1983 report. The League will focus its attention on those sections of the legislation on which it has positions. Highlights of H5000, an act providing for the improvement and modernization of public elementary and secondary education.

"As the decisions and problems become more and more complex, the League becomes increasingly valuable to educate members and all citizens on complicated issued," Freeman noted.

★Girls

One of the biggest grudge matches of the day was played against Concord-Carlisle's 1st Doubles team.

Elio and McCall blasted Megan O'Sullivan and Jill Slansky who had been seeded first in the EMass Individual Tournament and yet fell to Winchester's 2nd Doubles team by the overwhelming scores of 6-0, 6-1.

parts 6-2, 6-1; while Furey and Ricciardelli did the same by 6-1, 6-0.

The Sachemettes had now fought their way into the finals of the Eastern Mass Tournament, eager to take on the long awaited opponent of Concord-Carlisle. Concord-Carlisle, who some critics felt would overcome the power of Winchester to take the EMass crown, did just the opposite on that fateful rainy day.

Winchester, although uncertain of themseslves, went into the match at Newton North with incredible spirit. This spirit carried them through to a 3-1 victory. Because of the unpredictable weather, Intravaia, at 2nd Singles was unable to finish her match, stopping in the 3rd set.

The lightning halted the match with the scores at 4-6, 6-4, 4-3(40-30) in favor of Intravaia.

Although this was unfortunate, the girls had already captured their three matches to take the EMass crown again.

McCall had a tough loss to the strong Justine Higgins of Concord. These girls battled it out for three hours retiring with Concord's only victory of 4-6, 6-0,6-2. With more ease, Mazzucotelli at 3rd Singles handed in scores of 6-1, 6-0.

The ever-reliable 2nd Doubles team of Ricciardelli and Furey finished off the match with the score 6-3, 6-1.

This spirit and enthusiasm characterized the entire attitude of the Sachemette team, and allowed them to retain the EMass crown. Although it was the players on the court who actually won the match, it was the coach, the alternates (Lulu Kermond and Kathy Gray) and the families who enabaled the players to achieve their goals.

It was these people who were the unsung heroes of the match and they never receive the credit for it. To them, especially Kermond and Gray, who steadfastly supported the team during the match, practiced with the team, and helped psyche them up for the "big one!"; we wish to express not only our unending appreciation and gratitude but also our deepest and sincerest love.

★Water

"Ironically the Friday before the rain Jake Ciarcia (the town engineer) and I talked about finishing up a report addressing the flooding on Tremont st.," said Groux. "Some of those problems, and the problems you talked about tonight, may be addressed when the state undertakes some dredging and improves the area near the high school drainage pipes."

The report was delayed, Groux noted, "because after the week of rain, Jake said he would have to add to his report." The report should be in selectmen's hands in about three weeks, he added.

But flooding was only half of the problem. The sewage spills were the other half.

Besides the spills at Davidson Park, overflows occurred from an MDC manhole near Salem st. on Horn Pond Brook — another annual problem.

That manhole, as well as a nearby town manhole, both poured sewage into Horn Pond Brook, polluting Wedge Pond downstream. Town Meeting member Michael Connolly and Doenges reported to the Board of Health.

But according to Joe Viteri of the MDC, the sewage problem is a difficult one to correct.

Winchester has four major sewer lines going through it, he explained, carrying sewage from Woburn, Burlington, Wilmington, parts of Stoneham and Reading.

In dry weather, the sewers can easily handle the flow. But in heavy rain, extra water leaks into the system from cracks in the pipes (called infiltration) and from basement sump pumps hooked illegally into the sewers (inflow).

Infiltration and inflow can triple the amount of water flowing through the sewer lines, he explained.

In Woburn, it's the same story, he said, with the dry weather flow of 2.8 million gallons rising to nearly 10 million gallons.

The MDC sewers, he continued, simply can't handle that rainy weather flow. The sewers back up, and the manholes in Winchester start pouring out sewage.

Woburn, Burlington and Winchester have completed studies on the inflow and infiltration problem, Viteri noted, and Reading and Stoneham are working on studies.

But so far, he said, none of the communities have worked to reduce their inflow and infiltration.

Viteri's solution is to push for a state law requiring communities to reduce inflow by 50 percent and infiltration by 30 percent.

A bill to establish that law has been filed as House Bill 94 by the state Dept. of Environmental Quality Engineering.

The bill would provide $100 million to communities to correct problems with their sewers, and avoid problems like those in Davidson Park and Horn Pond Brook.

"That's the way the MDC would like to see it taken care of," said Viteri. "You ask what you can do? Call up your representative, and ask what's going on with House Bill 94."

★Jobs

begins accepting applications in January for 30 positions.

"We've had 35 applicants this year for 29 jobs," said DPW Director Dom Serratore. "But now, we do have about two openings because some people declined to accept job offers."

According to Serratore, the DPW jobs are all outdoors, and they require some physical strength. Priority is given to college students and previous DPW employees. The jobs pay miniumum wage ($3.35) per hour.

The Recreation Dept. has a staff of 36, drawn from a pool of over 90 applicants. According to Director Ken Cereghino, the department recruits applicants through local universities, such as Boston College and Boston University, but 90 to 95 percent of the applicants are from Winchester.

"We do like to give Winchester kids a break if they are equally qualified," said Cereghino. "But we always have many more qualified applicants than we can possibly use."

Recreation Dept. jobs sometimes require specific skills, such as water saftey instruction, and pay between $4 and $4.50 an hour.

At the Guidance Dept. in Winchester High School, jobs are posted on a bulletin board as soon as they are called in.

"We get all kinds of employers calling — from factories, restaurants, fast food places and the elderly," noted Guidance Counselor Anthony DiBiase. "Usually, it is tough for students to find a job, but I haven't heard a lot of complaints this year. I think the jobs are around if kids really want them."

If guidance, connections, town jobs or pavement pounding fails, Buckley hopes that students will come to see her in the Recreation Dept. and fill out a form.

"We've got the jobs," she said. "Now, I hope people will use it."

Famous Reborn At Lincoln

STORY by DAVE LEECO

As you step into a small room with shining silver walls, an ominous voice announces "You have just entered a time machine."

Lights flash and spin. The doors open and you step into a room peopled by the figures of history.

Alfred Hitchcock poses in familiar profile before posters of his movies.

Gen. Douglas McArthur stares out from behind a pair of reflective sunglasses.

Suddenly, the music begins and the figures are frozen in the midst of posing, cooing, staring, chatting and practicing, like figures in a wax museum.

For this time capsule is the Lincoln School Wax Museum, the annual event when sixth graders select, research and impersonate their favorite figures from history.

Costumes and props were painstakingly put together. Details of the wax figures' lives had been memorized down to the last detail. And never, ever, would the sixth graders admit they were sixth graders — they were Ben Franklin, or the Wright Brothers or Sally Ride.

"I was born Jacques

To prove he is Cousteau, the French oceanographer quickly rattles off a list of his accomplishments:

"I was the first person to invent an underwater oxygen system. My second invention was a diving submarine — we were testing it in the Red Sea when the thick cable snapped and it fell to 3,300 feet, below crushing depth. My third invention was the Star Fish House — it was 35 feet end-to-end, and it allowed us to stay underwater for months," Cousteau goes on breathlessly.

Across the room from Cousteau, Mohandas Gandhi reclines on a straw mat. The illusion is perfect — "Gandhi" wears a flesh-colored skull cap, wire glasses and a single cloth garment and carries a wooden staff.

"You might know me as 'Mahatma' — it means 'Great Soul,'" comments the Indian leader. "I divided India into two countries — Pakistan and India.

"First, I fasted for three weeks before I divided the country — I only ate water with a little lemon," says Gandhi, his Indian accent still holding a trace of the Queen's English he learned at Oxford. "I wanted to see if the people were with me, if they would stay together as one country. The people respected me greatly. But in the end, I decided it was best if the country was divided."

Nearby, Olga Korbut practices her routines on a vaulting horse.

"I captivated the hearts of millions with my spirit, enthusiasm and charm," says the Russian gymnast with pride. "And I was only 17 in the 1972 Olympics."

Pointing to her table of medals and magazine articles, Korbut notes, "I won two gold medals and two silver medals. I was the only non-American to make Life magazine, and I was on the cover of Sports Illustrated three times."

Korbut looks fondly back at her Olympic experiences. "I had become such a good gymnast, the Olympics were a good experience for me. I do feel badly that we're not sending a team this year, and our athletes cannot get the experience I had.

"Oh, excuse me," adds Korbut as the music starts again.

Houllahan Graduates

Houllahan is a 1980 graduate of Winchester High School. During her four years at Trinity College, she held an internship, teaching sign language at the American School for the Deaf. She also had a summer fellowship at Harvard University Medical School of Publi Health

Houllahan plans to further her educ ı-tion in research and medicine.

"Barker Lumber, First In Home Improvement."

Although you won't find anyone who was around when E. G. Barker opened their doors in 1860, the evidence is all around you. For more than 120 years, Barker Lumber, 36 Prospect st., Woburn, has supplied area builders and home-owners with the materials to construct and repair homes — homes that are still with us today.

The Dennison family took over the business in the 20s. "We are a family business," says asst. treasurer John Dennison. "My father, who has been in the business more than 30 years, is the company president.

" 'Build Better with Barker' is one of two slogans we use here," Dennison adds. "But most important, we live by the motto 'Service and quality are our biggest trademark.' We still offer free delivery in the local area."

Anything you need for home improvement can be found at Barker Lumber. They carry a full line of plywood, kiln-dried framing lumber, pine, mouldings, and panelling. Insulation, suspended ceilings, sheetrock, wooden gutters, and cedar siding are also kept in stock.

Pressure-treated lumber, landscape ties, sand, and cement are asvailable for jobs outside the house.

In the hardware store they carry a full line of power and hand tools, builders hardware and locks. They also stock paints and stains for those finishing touches.

Help is also available for those of us who are less than Mr. Fix-its. "If a homeowner needs help, we offer free advice on home improvement," explains Dennison. "Our main objective is a satisfied customer."

E.G. Barker Lumber is open Monday through Fridays from 8-4:30, Saturdays from 8-12. Their phone number is 933-0057.

Tennis Teams Split In EMass Finals

COULDN'T FINISH THE BATTLE, BUT WON THE WAR — Diane Intravaia's match with Concord-Carlisle went so long, lightning and rain forced cancellation long after the Sachemettes had won the final 3-1. (Photo by Amy Sweeney)

Girls Strike Again

By Lulu Kermond and Terry Elio

Twicer is Nicer! Or so everyone has said and it didn't take the Sachemette racqueteers long to find out whether or not this was true.

As the Winchester girls set out to conquer eastern Massachusetts, they were more than optimistic as they were seeded one in the tournament playoffs earning themselves a bye in the first round for their 13-0 record.

Winding up in the quarterfinals to confront their first opponents, the Sachemettes' match had to be put off (due to ever present rainfall) for almost a week before they could actually take to the courts in competition.

With anxious anticipation they waited to face tne victorious Wellesley team and show the Wellesley girls their stuff.

Due to the unavailability of hard-surfaced courts in Winchester, the team headed to Lexington for their substitute home court. Despite not having a home court advantage, the Sachemettes pulled off another 5-0 victory.

In the process of losing her first set 6-0, Wendy O'Brien of Welesley injured her ankle and forfeited the match to Winchester's Karen McCall.

Diane Intravaia defeated her opponent 6-1, 6-0 with no trouble. In 3rd Singles Anne Marie Mazzucotelli proceeded to overwhelm her competitor 6-0, 6-0. Also continuing this winning streak, Linda McCall and Terry Elio handily crushed Debbie Margolis and Kate Lurie 6-2, 6-2.

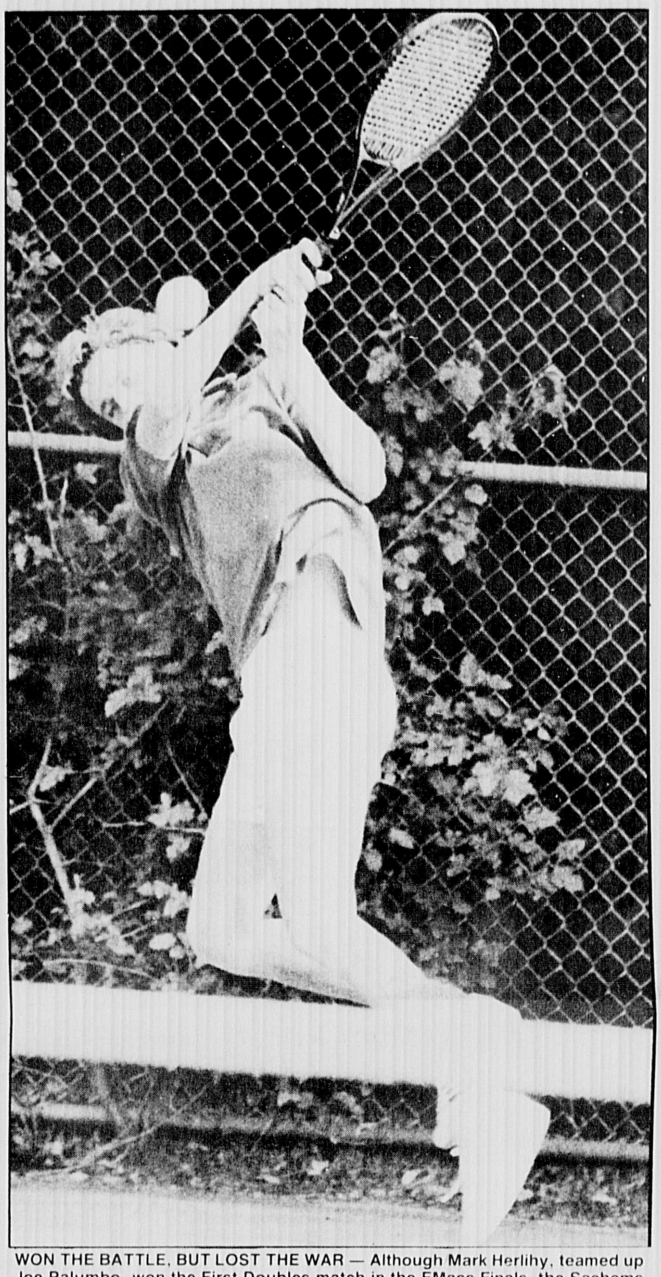

Rounding out the match, Paula Ricciardelli and Mary Pat Furey nailed Beth Dixon and Sue Mooney of Wellesley 6-2, 6-1.

Advancing to the semi-finals Winchester faced 5th seeded Marshfield. Marshfield had just come off a big win by upsetting 4th seeded Needham and thus was in high spirits. Traveling to Wellesley, the Winchester girls knew what had to be done as they faced the toughest team yet to date.

The toughest match of the day was at 3rd Singles where Mazzucotelli battled through three sets before overcoming her opponent 6-4, 3-6, 6-2.

At 2nd Singles, Intravaia had to pull herself together in the first set before winning 7-6(7-4), 6-2. The rest of the matches were relatively routine. First singles player, Karen McCall won 6-2, 6-3; the 1st Doubles team of Linda McCall and Elio walked all over the Marshfield counter-

Boys Fall Short

BY BILL LITTELL

For the Winchester Boys Tennis Team, it was an up-and-down week. Although they exceeded many people's expectations, they still fell one match short of their goal.

After defeating an unbeaten Xaverian squad in the semi-finals of the Division 1 Eastern Mass. Championships, the Sachems lost a cliff-hanger to top-seeded Concord-Calisle in the finals.

Both matches were played on the Newton North courts (a neutral battleground), in extreme heat and humidity.

On Wednesday, the team faced Xaverian, the champion of a very tough Catholic Conference, and the second seed. Due to some clutch performances, they returned to Winchester as 3-2 winners.

1st Singles went to Xaverian, as Chris Carrigg defeated Paul Sughrue, 6-2, 6-4.

Xaverian's only other point came at 3rd Singles, where Gavin Barton fell to Brian Conners, 6-0, 6-1. Conners, usually half of Xaverian's 1st Doubles team, had been moved up to 3rd Singles because his partner, Steve Galley, had an ingrown toenail. That pair had been the Division 1 South Doubles Champions, the equivalent of Mark Herlihy and Joe Palumbo in the North Division.

This day's doubles tandem consisted of Galley and Charles Nalfi, a junior varsity player. They were no match for Herlihy and Palumbo, though, bowing 6-0, 6-3.

A BIG Sachem victory came at 2nd Singles, where Shawn Herlihy downed Mike DeLuca, 6-1, 6-4. The match was much closer than it looked. For instance, Herlihy was down 4-3 in the second set before coming back to win.

That match clinched the win, as Bill Littell and Hank Lynch had come off their court victorious moments before — in what many players considered the match of the day. Littell and Lynch beat Ken Crisafulli and Tom Murray, 7-5, 6-2.

Because Greg Johnson could not play (due to a severe head cold) Littell came off the bench to play for him.

The turning point in the match came with Xaverian up 5-4, 40-0. They could not capitalize on any of their 3 set points, though. Instead, Littell and Lynch came back to take the set 7-5.

Xaverian went down quickly in the second set, 6-2.

Soon after, their season came to a close.

The next day, the netters returned to

Sachems Usher In Summer With 12-5 Win

Even though the basketball season just came to a thrilling finish, it's the season for baseball — those warm evenings of the boys of summer.

The Summer Sachems have moved into the season with style, taking their opening game against Stoneham on a combination of big hits, exciting baserunning and a fine pitching performance from Tim Budrewicz.

On the way to their 12-5 win over Stoneham, the Sachems came up with nine hits — not really much until you consider three of them were triples, two were doubles and one more was a homer to the McCall parking lot.

The Sachems' hitting was complemented by the team's baserunning. The Sachem baserunners purloined four bases, and Brian Carroll even stole home.

On the defensive side, pitcher Budrewicz practically was the defense.

He had 10 KOs Tuesday evening, ended four innings with strikes, and struck out the final five Stoneham batters.

Budrewicz did get some help in the field, including two pretty plays at third by Carroll and a phenomenal catch in right by Gareth Kortz... who grabbed a fly while stumbling backwards.

"These kids are a great team — very good to coach," he said. "We're hungry, we're strong, we're deep, and we're hitting the ball well."

The hits started early enough in the game — after getting Stoneham out easily in the top of the first, the Sachems scored three runs on steals and hustling on passed balls by Scott Binding and Brian Carroll, and a Mike White triple.

Stoneham made it close in the second, when they scored two runs on a passed ball and an error. But the Sachems got the runs back and more in their half of the second.

Kenton started off the inning with a long shot to center that put him on third, and scored when the right fielder lost Budrewicz high popup in the sun.

TJ Della Salla picked up an RBI single, scoring Budrewicz, and moved to second on a Binding single. Brian Carroll scored Della Salla by pounding a double to the right field fence.

Winchester ended up picking up two final runs in the inning on a Dave Koffman sacrifice fly and a balk. Their 8-2 lead would stand for the rest of the game.

Stoneham had a chance to wipe out some of that lead during their next at bat — they got three runs on a walk, a hit batter, a single and a triple. There was only one out, and a man on.

But then, Kenton made his great catch in deep right for the second out. Budrewicz nearly walked the next batter, going to a 3-1 count, but then came back with two strikes to end the inning.

"Tim is most effective when he's behind on the count," noted Crowley. "If he gets in a groove, he's tough."

Budrewicz was in that groove. He didn't give up another run the entire game and ended three of the last four innings with strikeouts.

The Sachems would have one more big inning at the plate, even though they didn't need it, garnering four more runs.

It started with a homer from Budrewicz that went over the football goal post at the back of center field.

Walks to Rob Collins (who then promptly stole second) and Scott Binding allowed Brian Carroll to pick up two more RBIs as he pounded another extra-base hit, this time a triple.

Carroll scored the final Sachems' run by stealing home plate.

Sports Events Fill Town Day

Despite Heat, 150 Runners Turn Out

Over 150 runners braved the searing 97 degree temperatures and high humidity to compete in the 14th annual Winchester Recreation Dept. Road Race on Saturday, June 9.

The event consisted of a 3-mile Fun Run and 10-kilometer race and was the "kick off" activity for Town Day.

Brian Gilmore took top honors in the Fun Run turning in a time of 18:37. Charles Kirecker (19.26) and Joe Krajewski (19.40) finished second and third respectively.

The first women's finisher was Amy Sweeney, from The Winchester Star. Sweeney posted a 20:35 time over the 3-mile course. Second and third place honors for women went to Laurie Braaten (20:43) and Ginger Kenney (22.28).

John Scheen outran the field and the heat in the 10-kilometer race Open Division with a time of 36:58. Runners-up Ken McDowell (37:09) took second place while John Goode's time of 37:19 was enough for third-place honors.

Laurie Glynn, a familiar figure to the winners' circle, was the first female finisher with a time of 44:15. Glynn was followed by Barbara Cade (49:34) and Kathy Mallory (50:29).

Other division winners were as follows: 17 & Under Division — Male — Robert Feldman (51:04), Daniel Kennedy (51:54). Female — Heather Innes (57:17), Suzanne Lamont (1:06:12). 18 - 39 Division — Male — John Cade (38:08), James Moore (41:21), William Powell (43:51). WINNERS — The Finance Committee, led by Chairman Dan Ciotti, won the Tug-of-War battle against the Selectmen with ease. Of course, the Finance Committee had one more man, since the number of competitors was determined by weight. The FinCom, however, lost a match against the young Town Day athletes, as 35 kids easily pulled down the seven FinCom members. (Photo by John Pawlick)

Spring Draw Tennis Tourney

Youth Takes First In Judo Competition

More than 400 experienced junior competitors from the US and Canada gathered for the 12th annual American Canada Challenge Competition in the Amherst Arena near Buffalo for the all-day competition. Twenty-one 10-12-year- olds qualified to fight in the 65-pound bracket.

In his first pairing in the bracket, Thilly fought last year's 6-to-9-year-old champion in the 65-pound bracket. He was awarded a unanimous decision by the judges.

In the second match, Thilly fought a competitor from Chicago who would eventually finish second in the double-elimination pairings, generally dominating but finally scoring a decisive throw in the final 50 seconds.

In the third encounter, Thilly finished the eventual fourth-place finisher by quickly throwing and pinning him. The final match featured a particularly experienced 12-year-old who had dominated all of his previous opponents and looked like the eventual champ.

Utilizing his expert posture and firm balance, Thilly was able to stop the best moves of the older boy who was only able to step away during the attack. Thilly scored a koka (minimal throw) while his opponent was penalized for a foul (a thumb in the eye).

The last movement was Thilly's deep thrust for an inside trip to the right, countered by an attempted spinning shoulder throw and a swift shoulder thrown over the top to win the match and the tournament.

Thilly is coached by Harry Yanogi and Bill Stevens, master and past president of the Tokyo Judo Club of Temple st., Somerville. Thilly has been a member of the club for three years.

Many Winchester youths have been attracted to the club for its top coaching and program of developing individual responsibility and self-discipline.

Newton to face number 1 seeded Concord-Carlisle in the finals. In a terrifically close match, the Sachems lost, 3-2.

The only Concord blowout came at 3rd Singles. Bill Anderson blitzed Barton, 6-0, 6-0. The other two Concord victories were hard-fought, to say the least.

At 1st Singles, Mark Erie, the overwhelming favorite, found himself down a set before coming back to win, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

"In the first set, he didn't play my game and hit all his shots out, " commented Sughrue. "In the second and third, he was incredibly consistent and just outlasted me. Plus, the heat really got to me in the last set."

Concord clinched the title at 2nd Doubles. Doug Frizzell and Jim O'Neil defeated Littell and Lynch 7-6 (9-7), 7-6 (8-6). How much closer can a match be?

Although the Sachem tandem led most of each set, they could not make the points. Up 6-5 in the second set, with several set points, they just couldn't come up with the big shots.

And in tournament play, that can be the line between champion and runner-up.

It was.

Winchester's two points came at 1st Doubles (no surprise), and 2nd Singles.

Herlihy and Palumbo, still undefeated, beat Steve Begner and Jeff Blackburn 6-4, 7-6 (8-6), while Shawn Herlihy triumphed over Tim Smith 3-6, 6-0, 7-5. The singles match was one of his best this year.

As always, Herlihy trailed late in the final set before roaring to victory. He was down 5-4 in the 3rd set before he broke Smith's serve and ran out the match.

And he came back after the match had been lost. Talk about pride.

"We could've beaten them," said Herlihy. "2nd Dubs just missed, Paul had a close match. On another day, the outcome might have been different."

The Sachems hope that the outcome will be different in the State Tournement, which both Eastern finalists take part in. That tourney will take place by publishing time.

The team hopes to meet Concord in the finals of the States, knowing now that they can beat them.

Said Littell, "We want another shot."

The Isaac Royall House

HISTORIC HOUSE — Medford's historic Isaac Royall House, an early Georgian gem of the 18th Century architecture, is even more precious because of the generosity of a Winchester resident, Frederick William Bridge, who gave his valuable authentic collection of Early American furnishings to the house. Bridge, who was born in Medford in 1862, was a ship broker and owner who lived on Wolcott st. and was active in the Unitarian Church. The Royal House is open Monday through Friday from 2 to 5 p.m., and is located on the corner of Main and George sts. in Medford. Shown are the Royall House's dining room and living room, and a grandfather clock from Bridge's collection.

Peluso, Barbaro Honored At Dante Aligheri Society Ball

Two young Winchester women were honored when the Dante Alighieri Society of Massachusetts once again concluded its cultural activities of the academic year by sponsoring the famed and traditional Honors Presentation, the Ballo Beatrice '84.

The honorees, Amy Peluso and Susan Barbaro, were selected by application references to the Board of the society. These young women are chosen on the basis of their academic achievements, their extra-curricular volunteer services within their local communities.

Susan Marie Barbaro, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony C. Barbaro of Irving st. is a member of the '84 Graduating Class of Winchester High School. She is a young woman who is proud of her Italian heritage. During her school years she's been active in a variety of extra-curricular activities, including the Italian Club. This past year she had the opportunity to travel to Italy and Greece and enjoyed studying these diverse cultures. She has received numerous awards during her school years.

Susan enjoys a variety of sports in which she was an active participant. She has worked as an advisor to young people on the abuses of drugs and alcohol. She has also been involved in community volunteer work. In her career future she would like to be an accountant and plans on attending Bentley College. It is her desire, during her junior year in college to be able to study abroad, hopefully in Italy.

Amy Peluso

Susan Barbaro

Amy says "the past four years in Winchester High School have greatly contributed to the molding of my character. My entire high school experience has been extremely fulfilling". Through her scholastic and soccer accomplishments she has received a major scholarship to the College of the Holy Cross. Regarding her future years in college she plans on majoring in mathematics.

Music Program Begins Registration

Program Coordinator Corie Nichols reports that information has been sent to students currently in the program and a brochure will be available at the end of the summer. However, anyone else interested in enrolling now is welcome to call Nichols, 10 Oxford st., or Sandy Thompson, 48 Samoset rd.

Nichols says plans are now being made for fall and it is helpful to know how many teachers will be needed.

The program offers instrumental lessons in cello, clarinet, flute, french horn, guitar, percussion, recorder, saxophone, trombone and baritone, trumpet, and violin. Voice lessons are also offered, as well as Musicianship.

Lessons are given after school hours at McCall Junior High and the program is sponsored by the McCall Parent Assn.

Phone for reservations to the Merrill Lynch Seminar: "How to Manage Your Money in Today's Changing Economy." It's free, but seating is limited, so act today.

Not just another lecture

Some topics we'll cover: What to do with money you want to keep safe. How to get high interest without tying up your money. An investment you should avoid if you're in a high tax bracket. And more.

Change brings opportunities

The past year can be summed up in one word, change. The way to go might be stocks one day. Treasury Bills the next. Or an investment tactic you've never heard of before.

But this flurry of change has also brought new opportunities. For high interest. Growth. Steady income. And for small investors to participate in markets that had never before been available to them.

Here's how to be sure you can attend this important seminar: Phone Jack Bohman or Judith Giarrusso at (617) 273-2000. Do it now and be sure there's a place for you.

Blackpowder Shooters

IF YOU think putting holes in paper is about as exciting as watching the traffic lights change, consider team shooting at breakable targets against a stopwatch. The 10th Massachusetts Battery is looking for more people. We are part of the North-South Skirmish Association, a 4,000 member competitive shooting organization where the shortest elapsed time wins. Units take their names in honor of actual Civil War regiments and members shoot original or reproduction weapons of the 1861-65 period. The 10th Battery competes with .58 cal. rifled muskets, caplock breechloading carbines, and an 1,800 lb. full size 3-inch rifled muzzleloading cannon. Yes, there's some paper punching too for those interested, but the real excitement is in the rapid fire team events where you shoot at flower pots, hanging water-filled coffee cups, ceramic tiles and 32 clay pigeons on a 4x8 cardboard backer at 50 yds. We welcome all shooters regardless of experience. Our team members live all over — from Maine to Rhode Island to New York — but more are from eastern Massachusetts. Call Ron Borjeson at 1-835-3102 for further information.

TRADING UP

Maybe you didn't get the dream house you wanted when you bought your first home, but maybe now you can trade up to a better house. Like any other house that has been maintained in good condition, your present home has probably appreciated in value sustantially since you bought it. By trading up you can use the money you realized on the sale of the house to buy a more expensive house and still come out money ahead.

Suppose you bought a house for $60,000 eight years ago and it is now worth at least $100,000. By selling at that price you realize a minimum net profit of $40,000. You can use this money to buy a house worth much more than the value of your present house. Also, you can put a substantial amount down to get the best possible mortgage arrangements.

You've not only traded up to a better house, you've also made a better investment. If you're ready to make a move, discuss your needs with your Realtor.

If you've never dried roses before, you'll find that not only is it easy to do but in addition, it's highly rewarding because of the lasting pleasure the flowers provide. You can dry one or two roses or many of them for bouquets or arrangements. And the relatively low cost also will add to your enjoyment.

One easy way is simply to tie the rose stem together and hang them upside down in a warm dry place. If there's a lot of dust wrap them gently in cheesecloth. Unfortunately, most of the color is lost with this method.

You can get better results by completely immersing the flowers in a desiccant which gradually withdraws all the moisture from them. Small rosebuds or blooms with only a few petals dry most successfully. The flowers will last indefinitely. You can use them in winter bouquets and holiday decorations over and over again.

Reds and other deep colors will darken; pinks & yellows will fade slightly although some light-colored blooms will retain much of their natural color for several seasons.

Macdonald
State Senator

Alan G. Macdonald
Democrat · State Senator

June 14, 1984

Dear Voters of Arlington:

Thank you very much for the kind reception you have given me since February as I have campaigned in Arlington for the office of State Senator. I am very grateful for your interest in my campaign. I am especially thankful to the many of you who signed my nomination papers and placed my name on the ballot.

During the summer, I will continue to campaign throughout Arlington. I want to hear your views on the many issues which will affect the election on September 18. For example, I will be interested to hear how you feel about proposed changes to Proposition 2½. The incumbent Senator has proposed a law which would permit cities and towns to raise property taxes each year above the limitations of Proposition 2½. I am opposed to such a change.

We have reduced our property tax burden in Massachusetts since 1980 from the highest property taxes in the country to a figure which is now closer to the national average. This is not the time to reverse that trend by letting elected officials increase our property taxes 10% or more each year.

I will be interested to hear how you feel about continuing to pay the 7½% surcharge which was added to your personal income taxes in 1975. Our state budget has been in balance since the late 1970's, but we are still paying the "temporary" surcharge. I will vote to eliminate this 7½% additional tax.

Also, I will be interested in your feelings about maintaining a strong economy, providing responsible waste management and developing working relationships between the public and private sectors. With my experience as a local elected official, a former Assistant Attorney General for environmental and veterans' affairs, and an employee of private industry who is working for job development in Massachusetts, I am prepared to represent the Town of Arlington in the State Senate in these and other important matters.

I welcome your help and advice in reaching this goal.

Sincerely,

Alan Macdonald

Dawn Fire Hits Lebanon Street

An early morning fire sent a family of four fleeing from their Lebanon st. house Thursday as clouds of thick, black smoke poured from the third story.

The family, warned by a smoke detector, escaped unharmed. But two Winchester firemen were injured battling the hot, smoky blaze.

The fire, which burned for at least three hours, gutted the third floor of the large Victorian home at 42 Lebanon st. Flames also poked through into the ceiling of the second floor, and all three floors of the house received smoke and water damage.

A second alarm, sounded half-an-hour after the fire was first reported, brought fire companies from three communities to help fight the blaze.

The fire probably started after an old extension cord plugged into a window fan short-circuited, according to Fire Chief Robert McElhinney.

By the time the family, David and Judy Storygard and their two elementary-school-aged children, were awakened by a smoke detector alarm, the fire had probably been smoldering for an hour, McElhinney said.

"Those smoke detectors have saved a lot of lives," he added.

Firefighters were hampered in fighting the fire by heavy black smoke — given off by burning cork isulation — and intense heat.

"We couldn't get at the fire — it was so hot, and you couldn't see a thing," said McElhinney. "It must have been 600 degrees in there. And you couldn't see more than a foot in front of you.

"Once we could get in, we got it out fast," McElhinney said.

The fire was stopped before it could get into the second floor, although it did burn down to between the third-story floor and the second-story plaster.

One, Steven Barrow, was scorched by the intense 600-degree heat of the attic fire, suffering burns on his neck and ear. The second, Lt. John Nash, caught a falling ember in the eye. Both were back on the job Tuesday.

The first call for the fire came in at 6:19 a.m., with a second alarm sounded at 6:32

Boards Vote Against New Sachem Woods

The new proposal for the Sachem Woods development off Carriage Hill received two blows Monday night when the Planning Board and Board of Selectmen voted against the project.

Both boards had basically the same objection to the plan of a Boston-based developer who wants to purchase and change the Whitten family's original Sachem Woods concept — the new plan isn't what Town Meeting voted for.

The Boston developer, Jan Chabot of Boston Condominium Homes, wants to change the architecture, landscaping, roadways and building schedule of the project passed by Town Meeting two years ago.

And those changes, both the Planning Board and selectmen felt, mean Chabot's Sachem Woods wouldn't be the Sachem Woods that won Town Meeting's approval.

"The Planning Board had objections to all of the changes," noted Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia. "But what it all comes down to is that this is not consistent with what was presented at Town Meeting."

"The reason this board voted in favor of the proposal was its architectural strength," commented Selectman Alan Macdonald. "And we were led to believe any substantial changes would go back to Town Meeting."

The changes aren't going back to Town Meeting though — they are going to the Zoning Board of Appeal, which heard Chabot's case last night (after deadline).

Chabot indicated Monday that if he kept encountering objections to his plan, he would drop it.

"I don't want to be on the blacklist of Winchester — there are other projects here to develop," said Chabot, who holds an option to buy the property from the Whittens if the changes are approved. "If we are going to get a bad name in this town, it's not worth it."

The Planning Board normally makes a recommendation to the Board of Appeal, but the selectmen's vote was unusual.

Although they don't usually make recommendations to the Board of Appeal, selectmen felt that since they were asked for their approval of the original Sachem Woods proposal, they should have a say on this one.

That say was overwhelmingly negative, once the selectmen had heard Chabot's plans.

Chabot explained there are six changes to the Whitten's proposal.

Special Election Opponents Try To Nix Sewer Fee

By DAVE LEECO

Disgruntled taxpayers upset with the new sewer charge have a chance to overturn the fee during a special referendum Tuesday.

But while those upset with the charge will be going to the polls Tuesday, those in support will probably be staying away.

In order to make the election binding, 20 percent of the town's voters, or about 2,600, must vote. That's a lot of voters for Winchester, where only 24 percent turned out for the annual town election last spring.

So, many supporters of the sewer use charge approved by Town Meeting in April feel the best way to fight for the fee is not to vote.

"I feel a little strange about it," said one supporter. "One the one hand, I feel I ought to go out and vote for it. But I know the best thing to do is stay away."

Those against the sewer charge gathered nearly 450 signatures to force the special election Tuesday.

The polling places will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m. Precincts 1 and 2 will vote at Town Hall, Precincts 3 and 4 at the Lincoln School, Precincts 5 and 6 at the Vinson-Owen School, and Precincts 7 and 8 at the Lynch School.

The sewer charge is expected to raise $490,000 for the town by assessing homeowners a fee of 60 cents per 100 cubic feet of water. Sewer use would be determined by taking 90 percent of water use, figuring the other 10 percent goes to uses such as watering lawns and doesn't go into the sewers.

By voting for the sewer charge and a 15-cent increase in the water rates, Town Meeting members avoided a $850,000 deficit in next year's budget. If the referendum overturns the sewer charge, that money may be cut from the budget, or it may be made up through a tax rate increase.

At Town Meeting, proponents pointed out Winchester's budget problems, noted the federal government requires a sewer charge, and claimed the town's water and sewer departments should be self-sufficient.

Opponents, on the other hand, said the charge was just a way to get around Win-

What's New Downtown? Bricks, Stores, Owners

Downtown Work Half Finished

By DAVE LEECO

One Grove st. resident spent Monday complaining to everyone he could find connected with the downtown project — from the developer to the selectmen — that in his 40 years in construction, he'd never seen brick laid on hot top, even though that's the system being used in Harvard Square.

But as the bricks, lamp poles and trees of the revitalization project go in the ground, the detractors of the project are falling silent.

One downtown merchant was moved to write a letter to The Star about how lovely the downtown looks. And one downtown resident, long skeptical, grudgingly commented this week, "I hate to admit it, but it does look good."

The $650,000 Center project is about half complete, and the last big hassle — the closing of one lane of Church st. — began this week.

Work has gone so smoothly that a contingency fund can be used to extend the area of the beautification, with bricks going on Waterfield rd. in front of Black Horse Bootery.

An extra dollup of state aid — about

Custom Clothier Opens Up

BY LIZ WILLEN

A hint of Newbury st. has hit Winchester for the second time in two months.

It began in May, when Diann Lewis opened her posh, decorative Design Centre on Main st. Now, with the opening of Janie Kasarjian's Couteur and Ready To Wear Collection, residents have another chance to purchase original creations in a snazzy, color coordinated setting.

At Kasarjian's, customers can have just about any kind of outfit, complete with silk-screen prints, beaded appliques, or even feathers, created to fit their figures. Designer Kasarjian can create anything from a flowing, romantic gown suitable for a wedding at a castle, to a slinky, black silk dress suitable for seduction.

The only catch is, you have to be willing to pay over $250 for one of her creations.

But Kasarjian firmly believes that plenty of people will be willing to pay that price — in fact, she already has 35 appointments set with private customers (Kasarjian works by appointment only).

Continental Cow Gets New Owner

BY LIZ WILLEN

If you want to lunch on pickled okra, spinach tortellini, truffles, pate, one of hundreds of cheeses from all over the world, or the biggest, cheapest sandwich in town, there is probably one place in Winchester where you can find such delicacies — The Continental Cow.

The Cow has just changed hands for the third time in 12 years — and the new owner, Jane Roman, has plans to make the gourmet specialty shop even more gourmet and more special.

She has already installed a new salad bar, and has some far-reaching plans that include an outdoor dining terrace, tables, and take-out brown bag lunches for commuters.

She would like to install a kitchen, expand the deli-meat section, and have more prepared foods, including pasta salads and hot meals to go.

"I don't want to be too grandiose, but there are a lot of possibilities," she acknowledged. "The Cow should be the kind of shop that has things you just can't get anywhere else. I'd like to see it become the Dean and DeLuca (a famous New York gourmet shop) of Winchester."

And the winner of the Moonlight Cruise in Boston Harbor for 25 people aboard the "Captain Joseph" is Jed Mazzola of 19 Lambert st. in Belmont.

Century Newspapers General Manager Joseph Bergeron congratulated the winners, saying that letters of confirmation will be in the mail shortly.

"We'd like to thank the thousands of people who entered the 'Vacation Adventures' contest," said Bergeron. "And we'd like to send a special thanks to those local businesses who supported the program."

All semi-finalists in the "Vacation Adventures" Contest are automatically winners of Winchester Star, Arlington Advocate or Belmont Citizen T-shirts. Century Newspapers Circulation Director Maureen Brotherton said, "Semi-finalists may pick up the T-shirt of their choice at the appropriate newspaper office."

Beginning In July

The Star Will Change Format

Century Newspapers will institute a format change the first week of July as part of a national newspaper standardization program.

Readers may notice a subtle change in the way their newspaper looks as the paper will be slightly taller and wider. The Arlington Advocate and The Winchester Star will have seven columns instead of the current six and The Belmont Citizen will have five columns instead of the current four.

The change is not so subtle for the newspaper industry. Across the country, newspapers will be converting formats to accommodate what is know as the Standard Advertising Unit (SAU). The aim is to make it easier for advertisers to plan, create, order and pay for advertising.

Column widths now vary so much from one newspaper to another that an ad agency or business planning to advertise in five different newspapers might have to produce five different size advertisements. With the new SAU format — worked out cooperatively by the newspaper industry — an advertisement for one publication will fit all others who use the SAU system.

Most papers are likely to adopt the format eventually though not all are adopting it July 1. A vast majority of the daily papers and a substantial number of the weekly papers in the country are making the conversion in the first week of July.

The papers that are adopting the format will build their pages around columns that are 2 1/16" wide. Century Newspapers Publisher Peter Jorgensen stressed that "the cost of advertising will not change.

"Although advertisers will have to adjust the shape of their ads, the actual cost figure will be the same," said Jorgensen. "Our rates are not being raised."

Jorgensen said the new measure should introduce new conveniences for advertisers and result in a page that is easier to read and more handsome to look at.

Currently, the format is built around a six-column page. After July 1, a five-column page in Belmont and a seven-column page in Arlington and Winchester will provide the basis for advertising and editorial content.

From a reader's point of view, the changes will be subtle. Photos will be a different size and the standard news column will be slightly narrower. Studies conducted prior to the conversion have shown that the new column and page widths make newspapers easier to read, thus providing the advertiser and the reader a better forum for news and advertising.

New Calendar Section To Begin

Beginning with the issue of July 5, Century Newspapers will be introducing a new and exciting feature — a Community Calendar Section.

This special magazine-style section will be inserted in all three papers (The Arlington Advocate, The Belmont Citizen, and The Winchester Star). It will include all of the classified and help wanted advertising and a calendar listing of community events from each of the three towns, and adjacent communities, as well as Travel stories and special seasonal recipes from our readers.

If you want to know what is going on in your town or just across the border, you'll have all the information right there in one easy-to-read, handy section that you can keep around the house all week.

The Calendar section will include our popular Travel section with stories about places to go and things to do nearby and in the far-flung corners of the world.

Alternating every other week with Travel will be a special Recipes feature, providing the favorite seasonal menus of some of our readers. We will provide you with recipes tailored for the season from grille specials and summer salads to Halloween party refreshments and Christmas cookies.

Readers are invited to submit materials for both Travel and Recipes. For the July 12 issue Recipes will feature cookout and grille recipes. They may be submitted to Recipes, Century Newspapers, 3 Church st., Winchester 01890, by the week before publication. We will use as many submitted recipes as possible.

Items for Calendar may be sent to the respective newspaper office. A handy coupon for writing out the Calendar information appears in today's paper.

Don't miss this new feature from your community newspaper coming in the issues of July 5.

Senate Debate To Be Held At Jenks

A debate, sponsored by the Democratic Town Committee, is being held with the Democratic candidates for State Senate, Sen. Richard Kraus and Alan Macdonald, on Wednesday, June 27, at 8 p.m. at the Jenks Senior Citizen Center.

Specific subject areas will be brought up, including rules reform, tax reform, and a couple of general topics which should elicit responses from both candidates as to how he would deal with the issues ahead.

There will be a chance for questions from the audience on each of the topics — with time for any additional questions at the end.

This is an opportunity to see and hear both candidates, so all are encouraged to attend. Refreshments will be available.

Following the debate, a brief meeting of the Democratic Town Committee will be held.

Surprise — You're Drafted

Selectmen Pick Town Manager Search Comm.

Although those selected may not know it yet, the Board of Selectmen has chosen the group to find a replacement for resigning Town Manager Thomas Groux.

Instead of advertising for members and then selecting a search committee, selectmen simply came up with a list of 10 names — two per selectman — and said, "Here's our seach committee."

The board, Selectman Ed O'Connell noted, did not want to wait to go through advertising and interviewing, since Groux will be leaving in two weeks.

"Time is important," O'Connell said.

Selecting the search committee took very little time at all the way selectmen did it.

They just went around the table twice, with each selectman calling out the name of someone he thought should be on the committee. "I feel like we're doing the NBA draft," commented Selectman Alan Macdonald.

Those nominated weren't at the meeting, nor were selectmen certain their nominees would serve if asked.

But until someone refuses to serve, the committee members are David Donahue, Sherman Saltmarsh, John McElwee, Sally Cincotta, Neil Harte, Dick Malcolm, Frank Sopper, Frank Golden, Harry Chefalo and Carol Johnson.

Malcolm, Macdonald's other choice, owns Winchester Jewelers Ltd. and is the president of the Chamber of Commerce.

Saltmarsh, Selectman Michael Saraco's first choice, is Winchester's state representative. He served on the search committee which hired Groux, Winchester's first town manager.

Sopper, Saraco's number two pick, is the president of Pipe Line Testing Services on Park st. and an amateur watchdog of Winchester's water system.

McElwee, the first pick of O'Connell, is the chief executive officer of the John Hancock Insurance Co. He headed the search committees that picked Groux, Economic Development Coordinator John Connery, DPW Director Dom Serratore, and most recently School Supt. Charles Mitsakos.

Golden, O'Connell's other choice, is a Town Meeting member, the head of the town's Personnel Board, and a former Finance Committee chairman.

Harry Chefalo, Welch's second pick, is a former selectman and water commissioner, and a current member of the Finance Committee.

Carol Johnson, Lombardi's other choice, is a local Realtor and a former Finance Committee member. She recently served on the town's small apartment study committee.

Police Cruiser Donated

Winchester's Police Dept. will be getting a brand-new safety car for free, thanks to Bonnell Ford.

To celebrate its 60th anniversary, the Cambridge st. dealership has decided to donate a safety car to the town, cover major maintenance, and replace the car every two or three years.

"Sixty years is a long time for one dealership, and to be in one town," Bonnell Ford's Allan Eyden told the selectmen Monday. "We thought it would be appropriate to do something to show our gratitude to the town."

The town's current safety car, which is used primarily for the safety officer's trips to the schools and for radar duty, was purchased in 1977 through a state grant.

Eyden noted Bonnell Ford wanted their donation to be used as a safety car because it did not get the hard wear that regular police cruisers suffer.

In return for the donation, the words "Courtesy of Bonnell Ford" will be stenciled on the car's front fender.

Poor Job Causes Street Repaving To Be Redone

It's Cambridge st. deja vu — for the second summer in a row, drivers are playing street slalom on Cambridge st., trying to dodge raised manhole covers until the street is resurfaced.

The manhole obstacles disappeared over the winter, after it had appeared highway crews had completed the resurfacing of the state's Route 3.

But two weeks ago, the street crews were getting ready to resurface again.

The reason, according to Rep. Sherman "Whip" Saltmarsh, a member of the state Transportation Committee, is that the contractor didn't do the job right in the first place.

The state DPW took several samples of the hot top over the winter and discovered it did not meet strength specification. Apparently, said Saltmarsh, not enough asphalt was in the mix.

The contractor, Essex Bituminous Concrete, now has to repave the street at the company's expense.

Vandals Release Water From North Reservoir

Millions of gallons of water came gushing under Highland ave. and Forest st. late Saturday night, after the dam at the town's North Reservoir was vandalized.

According to police, a stainless steel plate holding back the water was removed by vandals, causing 8 to 10 million gallons of water to cascade onto the streets.

Although police do not have any suspects at the moment, they believe the vandals were drinking — several empty bottles of beer cans were found in the vicinity.

DPW Director Dominic Serratore speculated that vandals used a chisel and sledgehammer to remove the metal plates, which were welded and locked.

"It took quite a bit of effort on the part of vandals," Serratore noted. "It amazes me that they could go through so much effort to get to the spillboards."

Police reports indicate that an area resident reported the incident shortly before midnight on Saturday. An emergency DPW crew responded immediately, according to Serratore. He said it took them over an hour to locate the spillboards and slip them back into place. The boards, he said, will have to be welded back in place.

The water will also have to be replaced.

"It could be very expensive," Serratore said. "Depending on the amount of rainfall we get, we may have to fill the whole thing up again by pumping in water from Spot Pond in Melrose.

It costs $245 per million gallons for water. But Serratore said it isn't the cost that concerns him.

"I wish I could understand why vandals had to go through so much trouble for this malicious act," he said with disgust.

Greco's car was stopped near the Mobil gas station. He was transported to Winchester Police Station and placed in protective custody.

Sunday, June 17

— A Wedgemere ave. man reported that his dirt bike, worth $220, and a Univega bicycle worth $80 were stolen from his garage.

— The hot, sunny weekend prompted 11 out-of-towners and one Winchester resident to seek relief in the Winchester Fells. Unfortunately for the fishermen, sunbathers and swimmers, what began as an outing in the woods ended with their arrest for trespassing.

A Somerville youth was also charged with being a minor in possession of alcohol when police discovered that he had several bottles of beer in his possession near the water's edge. All of the trespassers were transported to Winchester Police Station.

Saturday, June 16

The youth then reportedly fell and struck his head on the staircase and was knocked unconcious. He was transported to the hospital for tests, and was later released.

Thursday, June 14

— A Washington st. resident reported that an intruder kicked open his kitchen door and ransacked the bedrooms and the dining room. A Nikon camera, jewelry and a Walkman were all reported missing.

McHugh Makes His Move

Police Move To Quarters At Lynch Elementary

For the past few weeks, Winchester Police have been moving boxes of records, drawers, desks and telephones to their new headquarters at the Lynch School.

Now, they are comfortably established in their somewhat cramped temporary quarters, where they will be for at least a year, until the renovations are complete at their Mt. Vernon station.

Police dispatchers remain at the old station, although they will be moving into a temporary trailer set up in the back of the station as soon as the wire system connecting the phones is completed. Safety Officer Kevin Mawn estimated that the process would take about two weeks.

Although some parents and school officials have expressed some discomfort at the police station's proximity to students, a spokesman for the Police Dept. has assured parents that the temporary station is cut off from the rest of the school with special alarms, keys and doors.

School Committee Chairman Michael Ronayne suggested that an orientation program be established for all classes, so that the students would have an opportunity to see how the police station operates.

"Once the students can see exactly what is there, I think it will allay some of their fears and misconceptions," he said.

According to Sgt. Kenneth Albertelli, booking and lock-up of prisoners will take place at the Mt. Vernon st. station, not at the Lynch School, for as long as possible. Afterwards, prisoners will not be booked while students are going to and from school, and the suspects will be jailed in Woburn.

Police Chief John McHugh's office is at the Lynch School, along with Lt. Joseph Perritano and Inspector Richard Beaton's. In fact, the only police officials who remain at the Mt. Vernon st. station are the shift commander, the day sergeant and the dispatchers.

When residents call the Winchester Police Station emergency phone number (at 729-1212) their calls are answered by dispatchers at the Mt. Vernon st. station. However, if they want to talk to the chief, one of the lieutenants or have any other business, they should call 721-2025.

We're bringing mortgages to a close.

Let's be straightforward: the market controls the mortgage rates, and they can change from day to day. But what we can control is the quality of service our customers receive. And that never changes--it's always knowledgeable, courteous, and willing to work with you.

We've been bringing mortgages to a close quickly and efficiently in this area for over 150 years. See what a difference our experience can make.

Graduation Standards Stiffened

By KAREN BRADBURY

Graduation requirements in math, science and social studies for Winchester High School students should be raised, according to a report by the Winchester Commission on Excellence accepted by the School Committee at last Tuesday night's meeting.

Besides the four years of English currently required to graduate, the commission recommended that at least three years of math, three years of science and three years of social studies be required for all students.

College-bound students should be required to take at least three years of a foreign language, according to the report.

These recommendations were made not to bring the Winchester school system up to par, but to maintain its current high standards.

"The recommendations in this report will affect 20 to 30 percent of the kids," said Winchester High School principal Vincent Larocco.

Most Winchester students are already doing work at or above the requirements outlined in the report, said Larocco.

Compared to national norms, Winchester students are generally achieving at an above-average level, according to the report.

School Committee member Dr. Roger Bauman questioned if, in preparing these recommendations, adequate attention was given to the non-college-bound student.

"I fear some of these recommendations might be too much of a strait jacket on some of these students," said Bauman.

While the report does not formally suggest required computer courses, an infusion of computer literacy into the school curriculum was urged.

It was also recommended that student placement, promotion and graduation be based primarily on academic progress, although parental choice will also be considered.

"There is a very necessary need for intelligent, enlightened parental involvement," said School Committee chairman Dr. Michael Ronayne.

The importance of developing in students a sense of community and responsibility was included in the report.

In order to be able to attract the best and most qualified people to Winchester schools, minimum teaching salaries should be substantially increased, the report stated.

To maintain the quality of Winchester school curriculum, major departmental reviews of content and student requirements every five years by a professional task force was recommended.

The commission, "charged to develop a statement defining excellence as it relates to the educational program offered in Winchester," was formed in the fall of 1983.

The commission's report was based on a checklist developed by the Center for Policy Studies in Education that outlined four major areas of concern: course content, standards and expectations, time and teaching.

After reviewing research findings, analyzing reports, meeting with students and debating options, the commission came up with its recommendations.

"This report did a remarkable job of getting right to the meat of the educational issues," said School Committee member Constance Papas.

Asst. Supt. Appointment Leaves McCall Opening

The School System Shuffle — the rage that's been going on since Supt. William McDonald retired last year and left a trail of acting superintendents, principals and assistants — is still going strong.

The latest step is that Robert Fitzgerald, who has been acting assistant superintendent for personnel for a year, has been appointed Asst. Supt. for Personnel and Management, a post created in the recent Central Office restructuring.

The job is a combination of the duties of Asst. Superintendent Jack Fallon, who is on a leave-of-absence — and Personnel Director Alexander Tennant, who resigned last fall.

That leaves Fitzgerald's old post — principal of McCall Jr. High School — vacant.

The McCall teachers are pushing to have John Cahill — the McCall vice principal who has been acting principal during Fitzgerald's year-long absence — named principal.

The entire McCall teaching staff — 66 teachers — have signed a petition asking Cahill be their next principal.

"He's got 33 years of experience — he knows curriculum work, classroom technique, discipline techniques," said McCall teacher Walton Gagel. "He's supported the teachers in all endeavors — if we want to do something, he says, 'Let's do it.'

"The teachers are back to a higher level of camaraderie," he continued. "That's why we're supporting him."

The final decision on Fitzgerald's replacement will be made by a screening committee of parents, faculty and administrators.

The School Committee will make further decisions on the screening committee at its July 24 meeting.

WHS Open Campus Debated

By KAREN BRADBURY

The annual review of the Winchester student handbooks at the last School Committee meeting triggered the annual argument over the open campus policy at Winchester High School.

A proposal to upgrade the requirements from a C or better to a C-plus or better mark in order to qualify for open campus privileges began the discussion about open campus which later moved on to question the theory behind open campus itself.

Currently, 65 percent of juniors and seniors at Winchester High School qualify for open campus, which means if these student have a study period during the first or last periods of the school day, they may leave the school.

If the required grade to qualify were raised to C-plus, only 57 percent would participate, said Winchester High School principal Vincent Larocco.

Larocco was against raising the grade, saying that such a move would make open campus an academic reward and penalize those students who had trouble getting good grades but who otherwise were good responsible students.

"We'd end up punishing a lot of them and I don't want to penalize those who can't make the grades but who do use their time in productive ways," said Larocco.

Superintendent of Schools Charles Mitsakos also spoke in favor of the open campus policy.

"I don't feel from what I've seen in the past six months that the program is being abused," said Mitsakos.

The nature of open campus policy was questioned by School Committee chairman Michael Ronayne.

"Does the student need to perform at near honors level to enjoy the benefits of open campus or is it an instrument for developing mature school habits?" he asked.

Students should be challenged to value their education and to learn on their own, suggested School Committee Constance Papas.

"Rather than seeing open campus as a privilege and the lack thereof as a punishment, perhaps we ought to be according more value to the resources offered in school," said Papas.

School Committee member Steven Powers agreed with Papas saying that he didn't think the students are being challenged enough.

Maybe if the students stay in school they'll get their grades up, said Powers.

"I would challenge us to find a good study hall," said Mitsakos. "We can put students in study halls but I can't guarantee they'd use their time productively."

The final solution to this year's open campus debate came from School Committee member Dr. Roger Bauman, who suggested the handbook be amended to say that open campus will be offered as stated in the book unless the School Committee votes differently at any time.

An amendment which made it possible to include a warning statement about drugs and alcohol in secondary school handbooks was also passed.

Ambrose Career Day

Professionals ranging from veterinarians to pilots came to Ambrose School last week to talk about their jobs during Career Day at the school. The most famous guest was Diane Willis, the Channel 7 news anchor and Winchester resident, but the students also heard from vets William Johansen and Gary Weidwald, banker Christine Knowles, pilot Jim Alyward, columnist Terry Marotta, small business marketer Arlen Fuller, computer expert Judy King and cable TV systems manager Patrice Stigliano.

Youth Center Mural

To brighten up the town's Youth Center in McCall Jr. High, eighth grader Tan Van Duong of Harvard st. spent three month painting a mural for the center. The mural features the Town Hall Tower, the facade of the Post Office, and the Sachem symbol. Duong says he spends every afternoon at the center, and now that the mural's finished he is working on his pool game.

Fireworks To Light Up Cloister Garden Concert

Fireworks spectaculars are traditionally reserved for the Fourth of July, but for jazz aficionados, the most spectacular fireworks of the season will be on June 28 when the instrumental wizardry of Billy Novick and Guy Van Duser will turn the Parish of the Epiphany's Cloister Garden Concert Series into a musical wonderland.

Those lucky enough to hear them at last year's Cloister Garden concert came away convinced that they had been transported 50 years back in time and had been listening to one of the legendary jazz groups of the 1930s.

Van Duser, who has practically invented a finger-picked guitar style, closer to jazz piano than guitar, leaves his audiences shaking their heads, amazed that so much music can come from a single guitar.

Novick's stylish clarinet and soprano sax (he also plays a sweet pennywhistle!) is equally impressive, earning him spotlight appearances at the Newport and other jazz festivals as well as tours with the New Black Eagle Jazz Band, David Bromberg, and Leon Redbone. Novick and Van Duser also include some Irish and Scottish tunes, with a Sousa march or two thrown in for good measure.

This unusual concert will be held in the Cloister Garden at the Parish of the Epiphany, 70 Church st., on Thursday evening, June 28, at 8:30. In the event of rain, it will be held in adjoining Hadley Hall.

Tickets may be purchased in advance or at the door on the night of the performance. Reduced rates apply for students under 21. For more information, call the church office.

Baby Talk Gains New Meaning

By TERRY MAROTTA

I had a terrible dream the other night. It was about my new baby.

I went into his room and found his older sisters giving him Tic Tacs.

Shocked by the sight, I scolded them roundly. What did they mean by giving candy to a newborn? He can barely handle his milk without spluttering and burbling it all over himself. He's still working on the basics, after all, still trying to master breathing and swallowing. How could they THINK of giving him Tic Tacs?!

I sent them from the room in disgrace, and picked the baby up to dress him.

Then it happened.

He looked up at me and said, clear as you please, "I want some marshmallows."

I almost fainted.

"The baby said his first word," I remember thinking. "Isn't that nice."

But I knew I was kidding myself: nobody's first words involve marshmallows. This wasn't just a word, anyway; it was a full-fledged declarative sentence — subject, verb, object, — the works.

Besides, he said it in an eerie voice, a gravelly adult voice, a wordly voice, even a slightly complaining voice. The truth is, he sounded like Henny Youngman.

I let a few minutes go by, gathering my wits, actually. At last, I felt I had to do it. Summoning all my courage, I looked him in the eye, and said, hesitantly and feeling completely foolish, "Can you talk?"

"Can I talk! Of course I can talk. Is this talking? What else would you call it — chopped liver? Get me some marshmallows."

I backed away, horrified.

He hopped down from his changing table.

"Think I'll stretch my legs," he said, and sauntered across the room, the diapers ballooning between his tiny bowed limbs.

'You walk too, I see."

"Of course."

I was beginning to get the picture.

"Do you know things too?", I asked him.

"I know everything you know. Probably more."

"What do you know, for example?"

"Two times two. The best hotels in Miami Beach. Various ancient incantations." He threw his baby blanket around his shoulders like a prayer shawl and began chanting in Hebrew.

By then I knew what I had on my hands here: a person who'd lived before, quite possibly one who'd made his living as a comedian in the Catskills. A person who'd come back to do it again, disguised as a baby.

Maybe this is what we all do, I thought to myself in the dream. Maybe all of us just keep recycling, as the Hindus believe, until we're good enough to get into heaven. Only somehow my baby hadn't shed the skills and knowledge of his past life.

I felt vaguely disappointed. As I thought about it some more, I felt thoroughly distressed. When he pulled a cigar out from inside his stretchsuit, I started to cry.

Then, thank goodness, I woke up.

No one was ever more grateful to re-enter consciousness and find the dreamy phantasms vanished. No one was ever more grateful to see Henny Youngman disappear from the stage.

I hurried down the hall, in answer to the cries that had, I guess, awakened me from that awful dream. I looked in the crib, and there he was: my own sweet dumb little baby. He couldn't talk, of course; he couldn't walk either. Sneezing confuses him, and the hiccups confound him utterly.

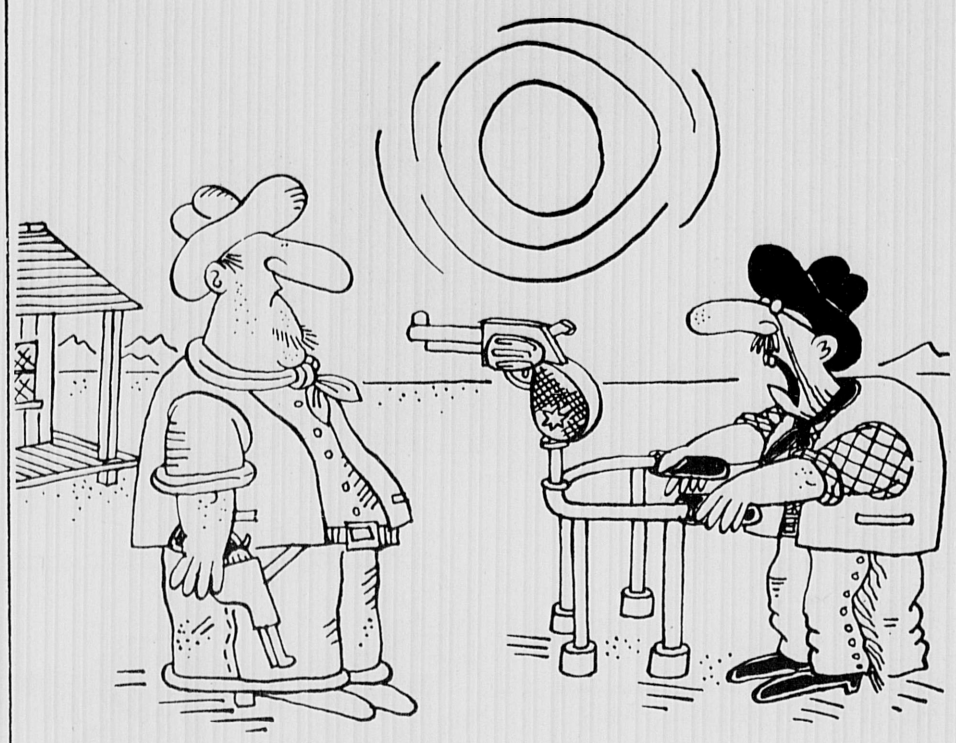

He's just a little guy trying to learn about all the rules and laws: gravity; digestion; and an atmosphere fashioned out of air instead of water.

It's true he doesn't know much. It's true too, though, that he's learned a great deal in his first two months on this planet. There's plenty of time for him to take on the whole curriculum.

I'm no professional dream-interpreter, but as I gazed down at him there in the crib, I sure saw the meaning of this one: don't grow too fast, little boy. Take it slow and easy.

Begin with coos and gurgles. Work your way up gradually to "mama." There'll be time enough for Tic Tacs later on.

Sewer Use Charge

A Fair Formula For Sewer Fee

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

A special town election for referendum will be held on Tuesday, June 26, so that the question as adopted by the Spring Town Meeting, relative to establishing a sewer use charge this year, be submitted to the voters of Winchester for their approval or disapproval.

Questions have been raised as to what effect, will rejection by the voters of the sewer usage charge this year, have on the total appropriations made at Town Meeting? Will essential services be curtailed? Will certain positions be eliminated? Will the West Side Fire Station be closed, etc.? The answer is NO.

All appropriations would be reviewed by the Board of Selectmen and reductions would be made where possible, without effecting essential services.

Example: Budget No. 2190 "Pension Liability." Town Manager requested and proposed that $124,300 be appropriated, however, the Finance Committee recommended that this amount be increased to $300,000 and Town Meeting adopted the Finance Committee recommendation. This budget could be reduced by $150,000 without any problem.

There is room for reductions in other areas without effecting essential services. There is also over $1,000,000 available in general surplus (free cash) account. You must remember, that Town Meeting also voted a water increase from 65 cents to 85 cents per hundred cubic feet and this referendum has no bearing on this increase.

The sewer usage charge of 60 cents per hundred cubic feet, based upon 90 percent of your metered water consumption, as adopted by town meeting, would raise an escess of approximately $450,000. A group of concerned taxpayers assisted in securing in excess of the required number of signatures for a referendum because they believe as I do that we must tighten our belts, set priorities and then draft a fair formula for determining a sewer usage charge. Please vote on Tuesday, June 26.

Thank you
Michael D. Saraco
Selectman and Town Meeting
Member Prec. 7

Support For User Charge

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

When Town Meeting this spring voted to establish a sewer charge system, it had before it the following information valuable to anyone considering whether we should have such a charge.

"Because the Town discharges into the MDC sewerage system and the MDC receives federal grants for construction, both the federal government and the MDC require that the town have an approvable user charge system. Also, Winchester itself is seeking federal and state grants for our own sewer rehabilitation projects. The charge system proposed will satisfy these federal and MDC requirements." (From a Memo to Town Meeting members from Thomas J. Groux, Town Manager).

The local MDC sewer overflows during our recent rainy week emphasize the need for work to reduce infiltration and inflow. The EPA considers that user charges to encourage conservation are also important.

Winchester has been slow in conforming: 13 of the 15 municipalities to which it traditionally compares itself already have a sewer charge.

Town Meeting acted thoughtfully in voting to fall in line. Please support their action.

Sincerely,
Marjorie Moore
Dennett rd.

An Easy Solution To The Problem

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

The sewer use ruling was apparently written hurriedly to meet the requirements of the MDC and the shortage of funds for needed town services because of Proposition 2½, while insufficient thought was given to credit for metered water not entering the sewer system.

There is a great deal of water used for lawns and gardens which adds a lot to the attractiveness of the town. Although those with irrigating systems use more water, I find in checking my bills over the past six years that only 10 to 21 percent of my yearly use of water (depending on the summer rain fall) was during the December-May period. This demonstrates the inadequacy of the 10 percent allowance for non sewer use when these facts indicate approximately only 23 to 49 percent of total use was household consumption.

An easy solution to the problem would be to base the yearly sewer charge on the December-May meter readings, which would still include any outdoor use during the early spring. This procedure would assure a more certain income to the town during a wet year, and also if we have a dry year where rationing became necessary, the town's income from this source would not change.

Child Care Inc. Founder Jeanne Duffy Thanked For All She Has Done

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Winchester Child Care Inc. expresses its thanks to founder and outgoing president Jeanne Duffy.

Having chaired a committee of the League of Women Voters to assess the need for an after school child care and enrichment program in Winchester in 1980-81, Jeanne went on to establish Kid's Corner in January 1982. Under her leadership, the program has more than quintupled in size, and maintains a waiting list.

Jeanne is also recognized throughout Massachusetts as an expert on the establishment of after-school programs, and is frequently called upon to share her expertise with other communities.

As parents of the beneficiaries of Kid's Corner, we are all indebted to Jeanne for founding an excellent program and seeing it through the countless inevitable crises of the first years of operation.

Thanks also to Catherine Alexander of the Chamber of Commerce, Marge Estridge of the League of Women Voters, and Charles Mitsakos, superintendent of schools, for their tributes to Jeanne at a celebration of her contributions to Winchester in the area of after school care on Sunday, June 3, at the Jenks Senior Center.

Sincerely,
Kay Schodek, Chairperson
Publicity Committee
Winchester Child Care Inc.

What The Chamber Of Commerce Does

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

What does the Winchester Chamber of Commerce do, anyway? A lot. Many people have asked lately about our Chamber and as the Executive Director I would like to review some of the events of the past months in order to clarify its purpose.

The Chamber has assumed sponsorship of the Haunted House at Halloween. It initiated and organizes the Christmas lighting programs during the holiday season. It plays an important role in Town Day held in June. And in between it established an award for the outstanding student in the Business Department at the high school, organized a townwide clean-up, ran continuing education seminars for business people and co-sponsored a band concert for the community.

The Chamber is many people working together accomplishing collectively what they can't do individually. Financed entirely by its members and what revenues it can generate from some of its activities, the Chamber's goal simply is to make Winchester a more pleasant place to live and work.

Membership is open to anyone who cares to invest in Winchester. Everyone who does business in this town has an investment in its well-being. The Chamber serves as the collective voice of the business and professional community in protecting this investment and seeing that it grows. We welcome your interest and your participation and urge you to take advantage of the services we provide.

Sincerely,
Catherine S. Alexander
Executive Director
Chamber of Commerce

Thanks For Help In Bad Times

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

To all the kind and generous people throughout our community, as well as neighboring communities, we wish to express our deep appreciation for the overwhelming show of thoughtfulness and support our family has been gifted with during these very difficult months.

Sincerely,
The Winn Family

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Sometime during the 1920s the bricks were dug up and replaced with concrete.

"How nice!" my mother enthused. "This new modern sidewalk will be level and easier to shovel in the winter. And it will keep clean because when I sweep it none of the dirt will be caught in cracks between the bricks. I will even be able to walk better because my new sidewalk will be smooth."

It came to pass that all of this was true. Could it possibly mean that long ago there were reasons to replace brick sidewalks and that modern ones are infinitely better than the old?

Sincerely,

Middlesex Fells Need Community Support For Their Enhancement

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

Would that those of us in the towns of Winchester, Stoneham, Medford and Malden could treasure our most extensivce and beautiful 2060 acre resource the Middlesex Fells as do the people in the Great Blue Hills area with their 7000 acres now organized into a Friends of the Great Blue Hills Reservation.

Friends of the Great Blue Hills Reservation have a structure now with a paid MDC staff, but the important thing is that hundreds of volunteers of the "Friends" head up committees backing up the MDC to inventory plants and animals, conditions of seasonal ponds and salamander populations, sightings of pileated woodpeckers, luna moths, lady slippers, fish; committees to assess the impact of dumps, horsebackriders, trailbikes archeological surveys, historical surveys, research projects, restoration of ball field areas, walking trails, committees to lead field trips.

Dorothy O'Malley of the MDC Staff, and a resident of Winchester, is involved in starting a "Friends of the Fells." Despite the handing out of hundreds of folders and many phone calls only a handful of persons attended the June 13 formation meeting held at the Stoneham Town Hall.

I would urge you who treasure natural history to step in there and support our magnificent woodlands. Too long our attitude has been "Let George do it." In this case "George" has been the MDC often blamed for everything gone wrong.

A strong "Friends of the Fells" group such as plays a phenominal role in the Blue Hills for the enhancement of beauty and recreation in the Blue Hills is greatly needed.

By the end of August the MDC will have a paid staffer for our 2060 acres. I surely hope we won't let him down by not being there to help.

Calumet rd.

Police Duties At Construction Questioned

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

For the past several months I have been able to observe street construction on Cambridge st. and now in Winchester Center. What is striking is not the workmanship of the contractors, but the duties of the police details.

My apparently mistaken impression was that police officers are hired to stand watch near street construction activity in order to protect pedestrians and motorists (and in that way the workers) by directing traffic around the work. In order to do that, I mistakenly believed that the officers had to stand on the street, face the traffic and with motions of the hand exercise some order and direction.

Apparently my definition of a police detail is all wrong. The Winchester officers I have seen in almost every case are not visible to motorists — they are talking to the workers or looking down the hole, and sometimes they are not even on the street.

If this is all a detail man is supposed to do, let's open the jobs to retirees and other civilians who would be happy to make that hourly rate to watch a street being dug up.

Fire Department Thanked For Effort

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

We would like to thank the Winchester Fire Dept. for their efficiency and consideration during and after our recent fire.

We also very much appreciate the concern and generosity of our neighbors.

This particular program consists, not only of a 3-day, 2-night trip to the Saco River and another to Mt. Washington but also several sports and fitness oriented weeks, two weeks of "hands on" experience with Channel 19, and a different day trip on Thursdays of each week.

These changes will result in a major increase in shelf space for additional magazines and reference books, an enlarged and more attractive magazine browsing area, and quieter areas for study and research.

A second stage of renovations will occur sometime later this summer or early fall and involve the addition of magazine shelving and the upgrading of lighting in the browsing area.

Massachusetts grown and fresher!

WHAT'S GROWING ON....

THE GARDEN IN JUNE: You should be enjoying the fruits of your labor this month, in abundance, if not somewhat delayed by our unusual weather. Remember to continue side dressing plants with fertilizer — once a month is sufficient in most cases.

New Zealand, heat tolerant spinach should be sown to replace leaf spinach which does not do well in summer heat. Oak leaf and Ruby lettuces will tolerate the heat better than most varieties.

Continue sowing seeds of beans, carrots, corn, cabbage crops, etc. Replace any annual plants that have succumbed to the weather. And don't forget those containers. If you do not have enough space for a full garden, consider different containers. They're moveable (to chase the sun!), space saving, efficient and can accommodate a variety of plants.

Be on the watch for signs of Japanese Beetles, especially on roses, and chinch bug activity in the lawn. Apply the proper treatments early to prevent extensive damage.

Be kind to your houseplants too! They would enjoy a summer vacation outside as well as new pots and plenty of fertilizer, during their expected surge of growth.

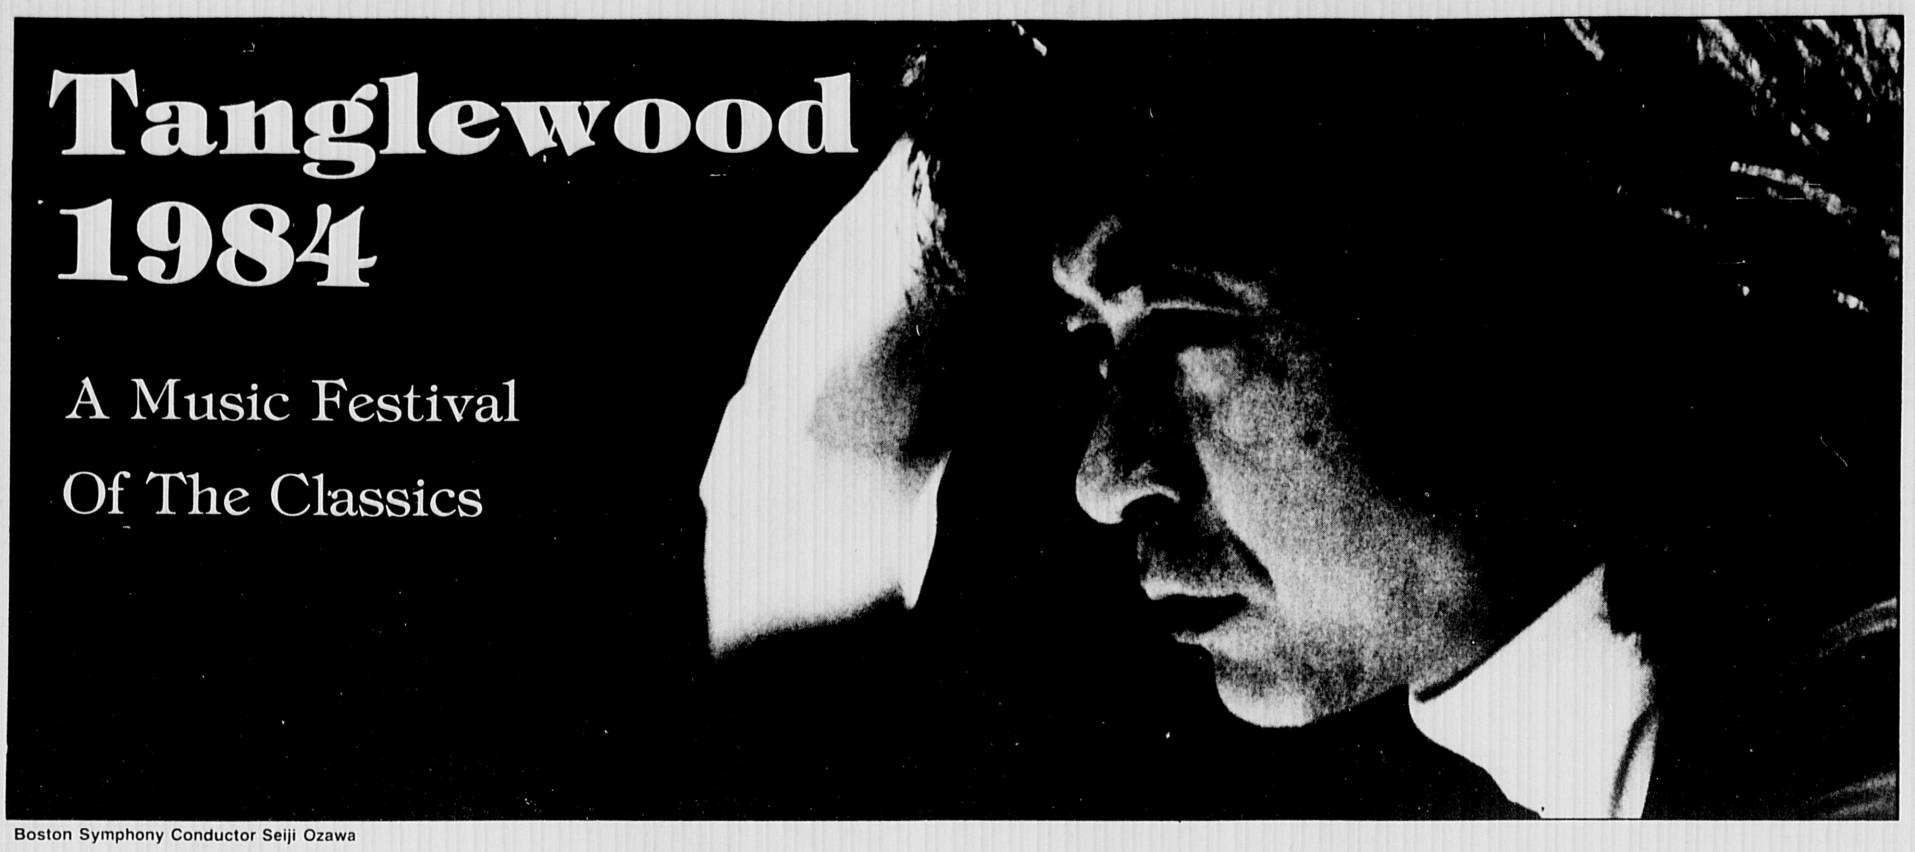

Good luck with your gardens and don't forget to stop by our Garden Shop for supplies and plenty of free advice.

NH FARM: The first strawberries have arrived. They are sweet and delicious. This season we have 12 acres in production for retail and pick-your-own. Pick-Your-Own began June 17. It's an economical and fun way to get strawberries. The N.H. farm is only 35 miles away and the season should be strong for the next 3 weeks. For further information, pick up a free brochure in Lexington — or — call the Harvest Hot Line 1-603-882-5551.

Boston Symphony Conductor Seiji Ozawa

This Summer Will Bring Some Old Favorites

By Leslie Kandell

If the Boston Symphony Orchestra were in the habit of giving titles to each Tanglewood season, this one would surely be called "Listening Without Fear: A Festival of Old Chestnuts."

That caption is not meant to disparage the programming, but rather to encourage the tradition-minded listener to make the trip to the 230-acre estate in Lenox — with or without picnic — and enjoy the likes of Beethoven, Chopin and Tschaikowsky under the stars. In fact, Beethoven-lovers had best make no other plans for the summer — Tanglewood performances cover all of Beethoven's nine symphonies, his five piano concertos and the violin concerto (to be played by Isaac Stern.) There are even all-Mozart and all-Schubert concerts.

The opening orchestra performance, July 1 at 2:30 p.m., is an all-Beethoven program conducted by Seiji Ozawa, who makes only seven appearances this summer. It features the First Symphony, Second Piano Concerto (with none other than Rudolph Serkin) and the Choral Fantasy sung by the Tanglewood Festival Chorus. (Seasons can now open with choral works, because the chorus rehearses year round in Boston and is always ready to roll.)

Preparing for this blockbuster opening weekend are chamber concerts at 8:30 the preceding three evenings, (June 28-30), all including Beethoven works — one is the Archduke Trio, played by the Kalichstein/Laredo/Robinson Trio.

Starting June 28, Thursdays are chamber music evenings. Russian pianist Bella Davidovitch will play an all-Chopin recital Thursday July 4, leading up to her performance of Rachmaninoff's First Concerto July 8. Friday and Saturday of that weekend are no less appealing, with Dvorak's New World Symphony and Beethoven's Violin Concerto one night, and Ravel's Piano Concerto for the Left Hand the next. (The Ravel concerto will be played by Leon Fleisher, who has made the piece his own in a valiant struggle against a crippling right-hand disorder.)

Joseph Silverstein

Itzhak Perlman

Isaac Stern

Kurt Masur

Yo-Yo Ma

Jean-Pierre Rampal

Leon Fleisher

Andre Watts

Concertmaster Joseph Silverstein will play Haydn on this program, and his devotees would do well to catch that; this is Silverstein's last summer with the BSO before he moves on to the directorship of the Utah Symphony — and that's a long walk from the Berkshires. (Silverstein will appear again July 22, playing the Tschaikowsky Concerto in — get the blanket, Natalie! — an all-Tschaikowsky program.)

The principles of the Beethoven literature come on the fifth July weekend, with the Ninth Symphony Friday, (July 27), the Third Piano Concerto Saturday (along with Strauss's "Also Sprach Zarathustra) and the Seventh Symphony Sunday afternoon (July 29). Edo de Waart conducts all these programs.

The annual semi-staged opera — this year Berlioz's Beatrice et Benedict — is August 4th. Tanglewood operas have generally tended to be longer on publicity than beauty, but Ozawa always picks marvelous stars: last year, Marilyn Horne and this year mezzo-soprano Frederica Von Stade. There is a public dress rehearsal for this opera August 2.

The (probably) one-and-only Jessye Norman will be heard in recital August 9 and again in Mahler's Resurrection Symphony August 12. The all-Mozart program is August 5, and all-Schubert-lieder, with Elly Ameling — is Thursday July 19.

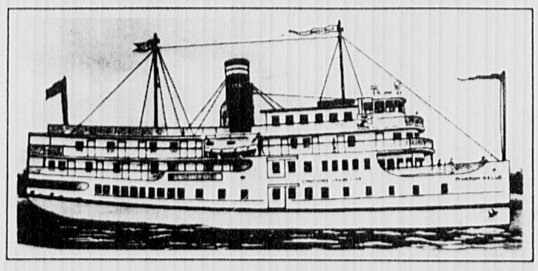

This summer the BSO leaves Tanglewood early, and the final weekend will be taken over by the Cleveland Orchestra under its new conductor, Christoph Von Dohnanyi. The concluding program, August 26th, is in the same spirit as the rest: Mozart's flute concerto with Jean-Pierre Rampal, and Beethoven's Eroica Symphony.

20th Century music is pretty much cordoned off into the week of July 26 through August 1. The annual contemporary music festival opens with a cello and piano recital by Joel Krosnick and Gilbert Kalish, who are presenting an ongoing American Retrospective at New York's Juilliard School. This year's Composer in Residence is John Harbison, whose first symphony, a BSO centennial commission, will be heard July 29.

Concertgoers, who would give this latter-day repertory an R rating, will enjoy the G-rated events July 10, when John Williams conducts the Boston Pops, and Tanglewood-on-Parade August 14 — a full afternoon of peanuts-popcorn type concerts, culminating in an eclectic program with cellist Yo-Yo Ma, conductors and Ozawa and Williams, and Tschaikowsky's 1812 Overture with real cannon fired from the lawn preceding a fireworks display over the Stockbridge Lake.

The weekly scheduling pattern is an follows: Thursday nights there is chamber music at 8:30; Friday night an orchestra concert at 9, preceded by a 7 o'clock recital included in the ticket price. Saturday mornings at 10:30 is the rehearsal for Sunday afternoon's orchestral program, open to the public at a nominal charge. Saturday night's concert is at 8:30, Sunday's at 2:30. Ticket orders should be directed to the Festival Ticket Office at Tanglewood, Lenox, MA. 01240.

EnKa Society Holds Annual Meeting For ISO

The EnKa Society of Winchester recently held its Annual Meeting at the Church of Epiphany. Preceding the luncheon, a reception was held to welcome the new provisional members to their first meeting. Mary Knox and her committee prepared and served a lovely molded chicken salad luncheon to the more than 150 members in attendance.

Marcia Saltmarsh, presiding over her final membership meeting as president, brought the annual meeting to order and called upon the committee chairmen for their reports. The highlights of the year's activities included a thorough report by Marylou Eugley, Rainbox-Gold Fair chairman, acknowledging the fiscal and social success of this year's fair. All proceeds from the fair are used to support Winchester activities.

Nancy Mills, co-chairman of the EnKa Exchange, presented the society with a check representing the profits from the business — which, too, is returned to the community. Then she, along with Jean Donahue and Lorna Tseckares, unveiled the newly commissioned sign that will be hung on the store front. The membership applauded their appreciation and approval of the skillfully crafted carved wooden sign, which should assist in the upgrading of the shopping area.

Phyllis Johansen, membership chairman announced that there is an active membership of 142 women, including the eight members just completing their provisional year and accepting full membership.

Four members received their 15-year star. Having participated for 15 years and fulfilling their active requirements were: Nancy Budd, Marylou Eugley, Jean Higgins, and Jean Nelson. Twenty-five-year pins were awarded to Deborah Broadhurst, Charlotte Hill, Mary Knox, and Polly Keppler.

Adult Ed Program To Begin

The Director of Adult Education for the town of Winchester, Evander French Jr., is planning the Fall Winchester Adult Education Program which will begin in late September. Most classes will be held at Winchester High School during the day or evening hours.

If you have a specialty that you would like to teach in the fall, please contact French at Winchester High School from 7:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

During the 1983-84 school year, over 1000 students enrolled in Winchester Adult Education courses in the two 10-week fall and winter sessions.

Lifeline Provides Emergency Help

Lifeline, a program offering emergency help to the elderly and disabled — even when they are unable to use the telephone — is now being offered through Winchester Hospital.

The new service began May 21, when a Lifeline "emergency response center" was installed in the hospital's Emergency Room, and the first two Lifeline home units were delivered to area residents who have subscribed to the program.

The Lifeline program, currently being used by thousands of people nationwide, is exactly what its name implies — a lifeline that, in some cases, can make the difference between life and death. Lifeline subscribers are linked into an emergency response system that provides 24-hour access to hospital services.

Each subscriber receives a tabletop "communicator which attaches to the telephone as well as a small transmitter button. The transmitter button is worn at all times, either as a pendant or clipped onto the subscriber's clothing.

One file at the Lifeline center in Winchester's Emergency Room will be information on each Lifeline subscriber. The file will contain details on the subscriber's physical condition, medications, the names of his or her physicians, and a list of names of Lifeline "responders" — friends or relatives who have agreed to be called upon for help.

The Lifeline emergency response system goes into operation when the subscriber feels he or she needs help. A simple push on the trasmitter button sends an electronic signal to the telephone "communicator," which automatically dials Winchester Hospital's special Lifeline number. The call is received on the Lifeline terminal in the hospital's Emergency Room and a digital identification number appears on the viewing screen of the terminal.

When a Lifeline call is received in the Emergency Room, an Emergency Room staff member immediately calls the subscriber to find out what has happened.

LIFELINE VOLUNTEERS — Members of the Outreach Committee at the Jenks Senior Center have volunteered their time to help out with the Lifeline program. Peter Chetkauskas, a Lifeline engineer, explains the equipment to volunteers Marion Reeves, Jane Bradlee, Kay Hood and George Deroo. Volunteers visit the homes of Lifeline subscribers to explain the system and help with the installation.

Lifeline Is Now Available For Winchester Residents

Winchester Hospital's Lifeline program, which began May 21, is available to residents of Winchester, Reading and those being discharged from Winchester Hospital. It is expected that the program will expand to serve residents of other area communities in the future.

The program is available for the elderly, the disabled, and others who have a need for the types of services the Lifeline program offers.

For example, those subscribing to Lifeline programs across the country include people living alone or who are left alone for long periods of time, those living with a relative who is in frail condition, people with handicaps and chronic disabilities, and people who have medical conditions such as vertigo, visual disorders, cardiovascular conditions, cancer, arthritis and respiratory conditions.

Subscribers also include families who have a child who needs to be on an apnea monitor.

Those interested in joining the hospital's Lifeline program are asked to call the Social Services Department. Potential subscribers will be asked to provide information about their living arrangements, their age, physical condition, as well as the names of the persons they would like as their Lifeline "responders."

If there is no answer, the staff member will call the first "responder" on the subscriber's card, and ask him or her to check on the subscriber.

If the first "responder" cannot be contacted, the Emergency Room personnel will proceed down the list of "responders," and if none of those listed can be reached, the police, or ambulance personnel will be called to check on the subscriber. If the Lifeline subscriber needs immediate medical care, an ambulance will be dispatched to the subscriber's home.

The Lifeline program also includes a monitoring system in the event that a subscriber becomes unconscious, or for some other reason is unable to summon help by pressing the Lifeline transmitter button. If a subscriber does not reset the Lifeline telephone unit at regular intervals, the unit will automatically send a message to the Lifeline center at Winchester Hospital and the Lifeline operator at the hospital will initiate the Lifeline response process.

"We've wanted this kind of system for a long time, but we've had to wait for an available private phone line that is necessary for this program," said Elizabeth Kenney, R.N., director of the Social Services Dept. at Winchester Hospital. Kenney is one of the coordinators of the hospital's new Lifeline program.

"Now that the hospital has its new communications system, we can provide this kind of service," she said. "We want to prevent tragedies from happening to people — such as people lying on the floor unattended for several hours. If they have this button clipped on them, they can get help right away.

"Hopefully," Kenney added, "no one will ever have to use Lifeline, but it will be there in case of need. We like to think of it as a kind of insurance policy — it's a nice thing to have, and if you need, it's there."

Former Resident Credited With Life-Saving Effort

By STEVE SAKSON
Telegraph Staff Writer
Courtesy The Nashua Telegraph

Nashua policewoman J. Sandra Leonard, a former Winchester resident, was instrumental in saving the life of a 10-month-old Nashua boy recently, and she did it over the phone, says Police Chief William Quigley.

The chief awarded Patrol Officer Leonard a department commendation and a day off with pay for what he called an "extraordinary piece of police work" in helping save the life of Steven Sheall.

Leonard, a four-year veteran, was answering emergency '911' calls at the police station at about 8 p.m. when the episode that nearly took Steven's life happened, said Quigley.

Steven's mother, Mary Sheall, was feeding him some cereal when suddenly he began choking.

The baby has a congenital respiratory problem that leaves him prone to such problems, and so Sheall had, shortly before the incident, learned cardio-pulmonary resuscitation and the Heimlich Maneuver, a procedure to dislodge stuck food particles.

However, the sight of her baby unable to breath, turning blue, and, literally, drowing on the cereal was apparently too much, Leonard said.

When Sheall phoned 911, Leonard took the call.

"She was screaming into the phone. She was hysterical," Leonard described.

"I was sweating just listening to her."

Initially the situation seemed bleak. The officer had difficulty getting Sheall to give her address and when the women finally gave it, dispatchers found that the nearest patrol car was tied up at an accident scene.

Because the Sheall home is on the outskirts of the city, a fire truck or ambulance was several minutes away.

At first, Ms. Leonard had no idea Mrs. Sheall had the skills to save her son.

Finally, Ms. Leonard said what amounted to the magic words that "clicked" and brought Mrs. Sheall back.

"I said, 'Do you know the Heimlich Maneuver?'

"Yes, yes, oh yes!" was the mother's answer as she suddenly began realizing what to do.

The officer instructed Mrs. Sheall to check the baby's mouth for obstructions, but she found nothing because the cereal was well down into his windpipe.

Leonard said she verbally guided Mrs. Sheall to perform the Heimlich Maneuver and also told her the proper place on which to tap the baby's back.

The tension in those few minutes sent chills up Leonard's back, she said.

"It was like I was right there."

Obviously still agitated, Sheall cried "Steven, Steven, come back, don't die!" as she went through the procedures.

Then the baby began making a wheezing noise and Ms. Leonard knew that there was a partial opening in his windpipe.

Knowing the opening could plug up again, she immediately told Sheall stop and wait for the rescuers. She also told her to turn on an outside light at her home so they could be sure they were at the right house.

Chief Quigley said officers who later completed reports on the incident confirmed it was Leonard's efforts which helped Sheall compose herself and clear her son's windpipe.

"She acted in a calm professional manner in a stressful situation," said the chief.

Going Like Hotcakes

500 Participate In Pancake Eating On Town Day

Over 500 people enjoyed free pancakes at the Winchester Savings Bank tent during Town Day festivities this year, and the more than $200 they contributed has been donated to the Winchester Scholarship Foundation.

Twenty-five bank employees and their families accepted the donations, manned the griddles, and served coffee and juice as people came in a steady stream between 10 a.m. and 3 p.m. Even bank president Robert Nickerson took his turn.

According to Jane Lefavour, vice president, the project was a great success. She was pleased with the enthusiastic response and says it was due, for the most part, to the fact that proceeds were earmarked to help deserving young people in Winchester to further their education.

Lefavour said the bank would probably do it again another year and expressed appreciation to Co-Chairman Christine Knowles and Edward F. Famolare, as well as to Buckley and Tovsky Sales Corp. of Burlington who donated the food.

The Winchester Scholarship Foundation is a voluntary, non-profit organization supported solely by the efforts of the community for the benefit of its young people.

Ambrose Students Win Popsicles And Ribbons At Annual Field Day

The taste of victory came in several flavors at Ambrose School's annual Field Day on June 7.

Along with the usual winners' ribbons, there were plenty of popsicles to reward all the Ambrose children who competed in the morning's events in spite of the day's stifling heat.

Excitement hung in the air as kindergartners took part in the Balloon Pop, Peanut Run, and Dash; the first-, second- and third-graders in the Hurdles, Three-legged Race, Tennis Ball Balance, Dash, Dash Runoff, and Wheelbarrow Race; and the fourth-, fifth- and sixth-graders in the Fifty-Yard Dash, Dash Runoff, Three-Legged Relay, Water Relay, Sack Race Relay, Tug of War, and Softball Throw.

They were cheered on by an enthusiastic audience of teachers, parents, and friends as Field Day was enjoyed by contestants and spectators alike.

Inter-Faith Council Elects New Officers

President - The Rev. Jack Bishop; Vice President - The Rev. David Purdy; Secretary - The Rev. William Huegel, and Treasurer - Sister Winifred Behlen.

In addition, the Rev. Walter Davis was elected as representative to the Winchester Inter-Faith Assn., and the Rev. Charles Reinhardt as representative to ABC, A Better Chance.

Music Lessons Will Be Offered For Students In Grades 4-6

The Music Dept. of the Winchester Public Schools will be offering instrumental lessons during the school day to children in fourth through sixth grades starting in September.

Recently, the Junior High School Jazz Band toured the town's elementary schools to demonstrate the various instruments offered.

Jazz Band Director David Kontoff encouraged students to sign up for the clarinet, saxophone, trumpet, trombone, or baritone horn.

"A band is like a baseball team," he said. "You can't have everyone playing first base or pitching. A band needs a variety of instruments to achieve a balanced sound."

Lessons in the schools are given in small groups and instrument rentals can be arranged through the Beacon Music Co. Any families wishing to sign up for lessons who haven't already done so should call Jack Casey of Beacon Music Co. in Boston. Casey will have an instrument delivered to the appropriate school in time for the first lesson in the fall.

Winchester Savings Bank Holds Annual Meeting

The 113th Annual Meeting of the Winchester Savings Bank was held recently at the Winchester Country Club.

Robert B. Nickerson, President, welcomed the corporators and trustees and presided at the meeting. Joseph C. Cioni, Executive Vice President and Treasurer, gave the following report for the year ending Oct. 31, 1983:

Total assets of the bank exceed $198 million, dividends distributed to depositors for the year amounted to $12,576,487 and gross income amounted to $16,823,565; an increase from the previous year of $2,704,905; the mortgage portfolio increased to $109,519,474; consumer loans increased by $3,107,443 to $11,271,695; the commercial loan portfolio increased by $5,319,608 to $10,983,765.

Following the treasurer's report, the corporators and trustees elected Douglas Worden, Senior Commerical Loan Officer, to the position of Vice President. Also elected were Carol Schueler, Consumer Loan Manager, James Smith, Loan Servicing Officer, and Paul Weiscopf, Manager of the Medford Branch, to Assistant Treasurer positions.

Nickerson then addressed the corporators and trustees updating them on various activities of the bank and its subsidiaries. Nickerson ended his report by stating, "Next year our primary goal will be to continue the profitability of the bank through prudent investments and subsidiary activity."

Following the meeting, the corporators, officers and staff attended dinner. A special presentation was made to Allen O. Eaton, of Arlington st., on his retirement from the Board of Trustees. He was elected Honorary Trustee at the annual corporators meeting.

The guest speaker was Ted Ladd, President of the investment advisory firm of Standish, Ayer and Wood Inc., who gave a brief economic forecast for 1984 and 1985.

WHS Band Will Participate In Peach Bowl In December

The Winchester High School Band will be traveling to Atlanta, Ga., this December to participate in the 1984 Peach Bowl program.

So far, the Marching Band, the Tumblettes, the Flag Corps and the Rifle Corp plan to make the trip, leaving Dec. 28 and returning Dec. 30. It's unclear if the Cheerleaders will go.

The trip will cost $99,000 for the 220 students and their 25 chaperones to fly to Atlanta.

Each student must raise $250 to meet the cost of the trip.

"It's a tremendous step for the band," said the Band director, Priscilla Miller.

RETIRING — After 10 years, Sr. Michaelinda Plante is stepping down as the principal of St. Mary's School. (Staff photo by Amy Sweeney)

End Of An Era At St. Mary's

Principal And Last Nun At School Retires

BY LIZ WILLEN

Years ago, Catholic students used to sit at neatly lined up desks with their hands clasped and folded in front of them. Their voices, in unison, would reply, "Yes, Sister," or "No, Sister," to their teacher's questions.

There have been some dramatic changes in Catholic education since those days, says Sr. Michaelinda Plante, who is stepping down as principal of St. Mary's School after 10 years to pursue a Ph.D. in educational leadership.

And the scenario she recalls could never happen today at St. Mary's, where there hasn't been a nun teaching class in three years.

"It used to be that if a sister said something was true, it was true," suggests Sr. Michaelinda, who is now the only nun left at St. Mary's School. "Now, kids will question us, and I think that's good. It's not the same class anymore."

And St. Mary's isn't the same floundering school anymore that Sr. Michaelinda found when she took over the helm in 1974. At that time, the school had only 130 students enrolled. Her task was to recreate St. Mary's or close it.

St. Mary's School is still open. This fall, there will be 265 students enrolled at the school. And much of the growth of St. Mary's has been credited to Sr. Michaelinda's talent, energy and diligent devotion to the cause of Catholic education.

"She deserves absolute credit for raising the caliber of St. Mary's, and has developed some tremendously innovative programs," says the Rev. Howard Reardon, who has worked closely with her. "She knows how to blend requirements with finesse in all aspects of her job. She's really remarkable."

Sr. Michaelinda is progressive in her beliefs and has moved the school forward in a number of areas.

And, she feels she is leaving behind a Catholic school in Winchester that both she and the parish can be proud of.

"One of the most rewarding things I've ever done is to see this school grow," she says with pride. "I've watched the tremendous amount of parental involvement and I've seen the town accept it as an alternative school. That's a good feeling."

'Nuns... get lonely, upset, we have emotions just like everyone else.'

—Sr. Michaelinda

Sitting behind the desk of the unadorned, lime-green office she will be leaving next week, Sr. Michaelinda speaks with disarming candor about the sisterhood, the school, and the Catholic Church. She laughs when a visitor expresses suprise at her clothing — she is dressed simply and neatly, in a skirt, blouse and vest.

"For many years, nuns hid behind their habits, and some people are still surprised to see us dressing this way," she explains. "But it makes me feel closer to people, and less up on a pedestal.

"We haven't anything to hide behind now," she continues, shuffling some papers on her tidy desk. "We are dedicated, and we have a calling, but nuns are people with likes and dislikes — we get lonely, we get upset, we have emotions just like everyone else."

Like many fellow Bostonians, Sr. Michaelinda is an avid Celtics fan and football fanatic. She likes to socialize with friends, read, and go out to dinner. But underlying everything she does are staunch beliefs and convictions that have been a part of her life for as long as she can remember.

She recalls always wanting to be a nun, and at the age of 19 she entered the Sisters of Mercy in Providence, R.I.

"Becoming a sister was suddenly the most important thing in my life," she recalls. "After college, I worked as a secretary, but I just knew what I had to do. And once you enter the sisterhood you say, 'God, I am here. Do with me what you will.' "

Still, the decision wasn't always easy, although Sr. Michaelinda has never regretted it. One of the toughest things she recalls is the response of her Lutheran mother.

"My mother told me, 'if you walk out that door, you are never coming back,' " she remembers. "But of course, I did — and my mother, who is now in her 80s, is very proud of what I've accomplished."

Another difficult facet of the decision was the restrictions placed upon her. She was rarely allowed to go home, and when her father died, she couldn't go to the cemetery.

"I was crushed," she admits. "But I accepted it. That was the life I had chosen. And although at various times I've become fed up, and something else begins to look glamorous, I never had the desire to leave the sisterhood. I love my work, and I feel comfortable being a sister."

As a sister, she is not allowed to marry. But, although she admits that she was once in love and had "gone steady" before entering the sisterhood, she doesn't believe she has missed anything by not getting married or having children.

"Marriage was never something I really wanted — at least I don't remember thinking about it," she says. "And I've been fortunate to have the opportunity to influence thousands of children through my work."

And, even more importantly, she has influenced, and will continue to influence, Catholic education.

"In the past 10 to 15 years, people felt Catholic education was dwindling," she says. "But now, it's gone way back, which is why I feel so strongly about going back to school and training laypeople. People are starting to get back to basics."

To Sr. Michaelinda, the basics of Catholic education include teaching students to learn to share, give, and have "a basic respect for themselves and others.

"We want our students to learn they have a role to play in their family, the church and society," she says. "We want them to learn to appreciate their religion, their individuality, and what they have. They have a responsibility to help others, and that can be one of the hardest things to teach."

Along with making sure St. Mary's "keeps up with other schools" and is up to date with educational tools such as computers, Sr. Michaelinda has been greatly concerned about the teaching of social issues.

"As educators, we have a responsibility to teach our students about other people and other areas outside of Winchester," she acknowledges. "They are bombarded by beauty in this town, and many of them believe they will grow up to be rich professionals. I think that's fine, but they need to have an understanding of those who are less fortunate.

"This is a very difficult task," she admits. "We point things out and we hope that they will sink in."

The idea of peaceful coexistence with the Soviet Union and other countries is stressed in the elementary grades, and in the higher grades, Sr. Michaelinda this year introduced a special program entitled "Conflict" that included discussions about alternatives to war.

Sr. Michaelinda has kept up an exhausting schedule at St. Mary's — but it is only a part of her work. She also does marriage and family counseling and runs groups about alcohol and a variety of other subjects.

She is active in the National Catholic Education Assn., the National Assn. of Retired Teachers, and the Mass. Principals Assn. She is vice president of the Archdiocese of Boston Principals Assn, and still commutes to Providence once a month to visit her community, the Sisters of Mercy.

The stress and strain of her schedule took its toll on Sr. Michaelinda in October, when she suffered a mild heart attack.

"I guess I was overextending myself," she admits. "Now, I go home on Friday nights and collapse. I read, watch television, socialize and try to forget about school."

Sr. Michaelinda will still continue to be active at St. Mary's, although most of her time will be taken up with her doctoral studies. She will be studying financial development processes in Catholic schools, and eventually hopes to be part of a college staff for teacher training, or work in some other administrative area within Catholic education.

Although Father Reardon echoes the sentiment of many parents and administrators who have worked with Sr. Michaelinda when he says, "We regret to see her go," he hastens to add, "It's the right thing for her to do."

by the shop for the first time.

"This is incredible — I mean it's fantastic," the woman exclaimed. "You're making Winchester look better and better. This will absolutely bring me here."

But Kasarjian hopes that many residents will begin to take advantage of her service as well. And, she believes that the average resident can pay her prices.

"This town can afford to buy what I offer, but it depends on their priorities," she explains. "There are plenty of young, upwardly mobile people in town, and I know they go to Newbury st. to shop. My feeling is, we should offer them something so they can shop right here in town."

Kasarjian grew up on Robin Hood rd., and remembers the bustling center that existed in the days of Filene's and Peck and Peck — days she hopes can come back.

Still, after working out of Boston-based studios and out of her parents' Winchester home, she didn't expect to open a shop in downtown Winchester.

"It all happened so quickly — I can't believe it's mine," says the fashionably slim, 25-year-old designer.

"When this building became available, I flipped a coin three times to decide if I was going to buy it," she continues. "Three others wanted it as well, but I think the owners wanted me to buy it because they thought it would add something to the town."

Within days, the former Arlene's dress shop was suddenly swathed with mauve drapes, silk flowers, antique furniture, glistening mirrors and some of Kasarjian's most elaborate creations.

"Diann Lewis came in and worked with me until midnight for several nights in a row," says Kasarjian. "I'm really happy with the way its turned out. Like I said, I still can't believe this whole thing."

Kasarjian studied psychology and political science at Skidmore College, and didn't get into fashion design until she had worked as a juvenile officer for the Norfolk District Attorney.

Disillusioned, she decided to take a silk-screening course at the Cambridge Center for Adult Education, and began to experiment with silk-screening patterns onto dresses. The result was successful — she sold the first few to Greenwich Village designers for over $400.

She took up sewing (a subject she had almost failed as a student at the Lynch Junior High School) and began to create and wholesale dresses — in New York, and in 18 states.

It was touch and go for a while — she worked straight through many nights to get work done, took no vacations, covered her living room with bolts of fabric and basically buried herself in her work.

There have been some major disappointments along the way — a theft from a Boston studio she was working out of last year resulted in an $11,000 loss.

"I've taken some hard knocks, but I'm stubborn," Kasarjian admits. "I still had some materials and equipment left, and I wanted to continue. I really love this work."

Kasarjian calls her style "very European and high fashion," but the clothing that is displayed in her shop is more "feminine and romantic." However, she is willing to work with her customers to develop ideas for clothing that they may want.

She will also make suggestions about fabrics, shapes, and cuts that minimize figure flaws and maximize advantages.

"I can create some really special things," she says. "It really depends on what the customers want." The creations are fashioned in the shop where Kasarjian employs three stitchers.

In the fall, Kasarjian will also stock unusual blouses for suits, hats, and some less expensive dresses (about $200).

But for the most part, Kasarjian's is a place to buy a very special outfit for a special occasion — something of high quality workmanship, unusual fabrics and a touch of something that can be bizarre, eye-catching, sensational, or merely unique and individual.

The kind of thing people usually purchase on Newbury st.

But before that can happen, Roman has a lot of reorganizing, restocking and rearranging to do. And, because this is her first business venture (she was formerly a nurse, and then involved in medical sales for six years) she still has a lot to learn.

In between receiving bread deliveries and making salads, Roman candidly discussed the arduous task of taking over a new business.

"It is very, very exciting," she admitted. "But it is also very tiring. I've been working seven day weeks — and I wouldn't want to count the hours."

In addition to making daily soups, such as fish chowder, potato-leek and gazpacho, Roman bakes fresh homemade breads, orders cheeses, sodas and produce, and decides how much of what to order.

"There is a lot of creativity involved, and it's really sort of a dream to have my own shop," she said. "I had worked here (at the Cow) a bit part-time before I bought it, but I've never had the opportunity to own my own business."

Roman is a self-taught gourmet who began cooking at the age of 8. She can cater parties, fashion fruit baskets, or arrange made-to-order party platters of meats and cheeses. She can design a Mexican party, or create a platter of Italian cheeses — depending on what the customer wants.

Cheese will continue to provide the backbone of the Cow's business. Over 300 different types are stocked.

"The advantage to buying cheese here is that you can come in and taste it," Roman said. "Much of it is flown in from all over the world."

The meat department will still be manned by John Janis, who has been a familiar face at the Cow for 12 years — since the time it was Renton's Market.

Janis has a strong following in town, particularly among women shoppers.

"It's his charm and personality," said one co-worker.

"It's the meat," insisted Janis. "There is no better place to buy it. And everything is custom cut."

Janis said he hopes to expand the offerings, and have more specials — along with some lower prices.

Some of the Cow's lowest prices are available during the busy lunch hour. For $2, overstuffed sandwiches on homemade bread, containing fresh turkey, cheeses, roast beef, sprouts, mustard, lettuce, tomatoes, or a variety of other condiments are available.

Although there can often be a wait for the sandwiches, Roman said that she plans on having more employees working during the busy lunch hours.

Roman may also be expanding the produce section which already contains bunches of fresh colorful grapes, huge avocados, and some of the hugest apples and tomatoes in town.

"We can't compete with Purity Supreme," Roman admitted. "But we do want to offer top quality items at fair prices. People are getting more sophisticated, and they want something special when they entertain. We want them to be able to buy it here."

$25,000 in interest from funds for Center projects not yet stated — will also allow Shore rd. from Nelson's to Pisces Pantry to be paved in brick.

If that's done, the developers of the former Purity Supreme building have agreed to put brick in front of their building, according to Economic Development Coordinator John Connery.

The last few touches — the benches for Thompson st. and the wrought-iron trash receptacles — should be delivered within the next two weeks.

But first, the Church st. work, on both sides of the street, will be completed.

Traffic on Church st. from Waterfield rd. to Dix st. will be one-way for about three weeks, as construction crews finish up the next-to-last section of the project.

Cars coming into town will be detoured up Dix st. to get around the project for the first week-and-a-half. The detour will reverse for the rest of the time.

Once Church st. is finished, the crews from B & J Construction will move on to the remaining portions of Main st., Mt. Vernon st., Shore rd. and Black Horse Bootery.

Construction is on schedule, according to developer Fred DeSimone, a Stowell rd. resident, and work should be completed by mid- or early-August.

As a Winchester resident, DeSimone said he wants to be sure that the project goes well.

He brought in extra men to get the Main and Thompson st. areas ready for Town Day after a week of rain slowed down the workers. And he's told his crews to be more than accommodating to the downtown merchants.

"I told the guys that they were not only representing my company here, they were representing me," said DeSimone. "We've tried to go out of our way, especially my foreman, John Santucci."

The merchants who deal with the company and the neighbors who know DeSimone have all seemed pleased with the work so far, said DeSimone.

"Almost everyone I've talked to is enthusiastic — they like the design, they like the bricks," said DeSimone. "The merchants have certainly been receptive, and very understanding."

For John Connery, getting compliments instead of brickbats is a pleasant change after fighting for the downtown project for two years.

"Once the improvements started going in, a lot of the complaining stopped," said Connery. "Before it started, a lot of people couldn't visualize what we were talking about. And as always, the people that are negative tend to drive the others into the woodwork.

"But now that everythings starting to look nice, those people are coming out of the woodwork," said Connery. "It's nice to see it all finally happen, even though it did cause me a lot of sleepless nights."

Two engine companies from Woburn and Stoneham, and a ladder from Medford, assisted Winchester's three engines and a ladder crew.

Firefighters from Reading, Stoneham and Woburn also covered the town's two stations during the blaze, which was out by 8:37 a.m.

chester's budget problems without trying to trim spending.

"There's going to be a sewer charge eventually," said Selectman Michael Saraco, one of the prime movers behind the referendum. "All we're really asking is that this be held off a year, so we can see where we can reduce costs.

"Where did we tighten our belt? Where did we reduce costs?" continued Saraco. "Let's see how we can reduce the water and sewer budgets and see what is the true costs of those departments. Then we can see what a proper sewer fee is.

"By turning around and initiating a sewer use tax, they got additional funding, and didn't have to cut," said Saraco. "If your landlord raises your rent 50 percent, do you go to your boss for a 50 percent raise? No way. You cut your budget."

Saraco disputes Town Manager Thomas Groux's view that the sewer and water system costs the town $1.6 million a year — slightly less than the $1.3 million the new sewer and water rates would raise.

The actual sewer and water department budget is $600,000. But when you add in MDC assessments, indirect costs such as hours spent by the DPW director, town manager and other employees not directly under the water and sewer department, and employee benefits such as pensions and workmen's compensation, the figure rises by $1 million.

One of the strongest arguements at Town Meeting in favor of the new sewer and water rates is that the $1.6 million cost should be paid by the users of the system.

Sewer costs are now paid through property taxes, which also pays for the water costs not covered by the low water rate. As a result, tax exempt organizations such as Winchester Hospital don't pay for using the sewers, and only pay a portion of the cost of the water they use.

Another arguement for the new charges is that the federal government requires a sewer charge of the MDC, and the MDC is pushing its member communities to adopt the charge.

The Boston Harbor pollution suit requiring the MDC to clean up the harbor and repair its polluting sewage treatment plants also was a factor in adopting the sewer charge.

Since the MDC will have to be raising money to pay for the cleanup, Groux has warned, it will soon be hitting up its member communities. That mean's Winchester's MDC assessment may rise rapidly, faster than the tax rate can keep up with.

If those arguments for the sewer tax don't sway the voters and enough of them turn out to overturn the charge, the next question will be: where will the $490,000 the sewer charge would have raised come from?

Groux offered three possibilities — the money could come from the town's general surplus account, from an increase in the tax rate, or from cuts.

In order to cut the budget, however, a special Town Meeting would have to be called.

"It really depends on what interpretation (selectmen) take from the vote," said Groux. "Assuming the vote is positive, it could mean people want cuts, which means a Town Meeting. Or it could simply mean they don't want a sewer charge, in which case there is no need for a Town Meeting and the assessors can simply establish a tax rate sufficient to cover it.

"But the referendum question only addresses whether or not there should be a sewer charge," he added. "To read more into it — cut or not — is going beyond what is on the ballot."

Mortensen To Perform

Katherine Mortensen, a pupil of piano teacher Vivian Taylor of the Tufts University faculty will be a featured performer on Sunday, June 24, at Tufts University.

The performance is part of the first conference ever held in the Boston area that is devoted exclusively to music by women composers. The three-day conference (June 22-24) is sponsored by the New England chapter of American Women Composers Inc. and features 45 special presentations.

Designed to acquaint the public with the many accomplishments of women composers, from the Middle Ages and Renaissance to the present day, the conference is placing special emphasis not only on performances by well-known artists such as Nancy Cirillo, Christopher Oldfather, and Max Lifschitz, but also on performance by students such as Kathy.

Double Elimination

DETHRONED — The second-place trophy in the state tournament wasn't enough to bring smiles to Terry Elio and Linda McCall, as the Sachemettes failed to recapture last year's state tennis championship.

Sachemettes Can't Keep Crown

By TERRY ELIO

The Winchester girls tennis team battled their way through a terrific season. Following the victory which brought them the EMass crown, the Sachemettes again took to the courts in the hope of retaining the state title. However, this year that was just not the way the chips fell.

The semi-finals of the State Tournament brought Winchester against a comparitively harmless opponent, Wachusett Regional High School of Holden. At this day at Clark University, the Sachemettes were just sizzlin' as they captured the match 5-0.

Karen McCall at first singles with her sharp, decisive strokes easily dismantled her opponent Debbie Blair of Wachusetts, 6-3,6-1. Third singles player AnnMarie Mazzocutelli also played well battling to a 6-3, 6-2 win over Wachusetts' Sarah Tonna.

The doubles teams faced the least difficulty of the day winning both their matches without losing a single game. At first doubles, Linda McCall and co-capt. Paula Ricciardelli did the same to Jenny Dodge and Kerry Amett at second dubs.

The longest match of the day came at second singles where Diane Intravia faced a strong Wachusetts opponent in Carolyn Aveis.

Senior Intravia got to a slow start, down 5-3 in the first set, before she began to settle down and get into the match. However, it wasn't until the second set where she buckled in and started to play her usually good game. She proceeded to win the match in three sets 5-7, 6-3, 6-1.

With this victory the Sachemettes moved into the state final where they once again faced Concord-Carlisle, the team they had beaten to take the EMass crown. However, this time they faced major complications.

To begin with, AnnMarie Mazzocutelli, who usually plays third singles for the team, had injured her elbow during the semi-final match against Wachusetts. This left the team with no third singles player. Thus the line-up had to be juggled. In the process, the first doubles team had to be broken up. Linda McCall, the next best singles player on the team who had played third singles last year, moved into her old position. Not having played competitive high school singles since last year, Linda was willing to play at third - anything to help her team. This left Elio with no partner. Therefore, the Furey-Ricciardelli team, a combination who had only lost once in all their years of play together, moved up to first doubles. Elio, meanwhile, moved into second doubles partnered by Lulu Kermond, a sophomore varsity letter winner who had been an alternate for two years. With this new line-up, the Winchester girls set out to conquer Concord-Carlisle.

ENDURANCE TEST — Linda McCall battled for hours and came back after getting a leg cramp, but she couldn't defeat her Concord-Carlisle opponent. And that C-C victory gave Concord-Carlisle the state championship.

Things seemed to be going pretty much as expected after the first set of each match. Karen McCall had lost her first set as had Intravia, however Linda McCall and the two doubles teams had won it-as had been expected.

It was in the second set where the Sachemettes started to unravel. By this time Karen McCall at first singles had lost a tough match to Concord-Carlisle Justine Higgins 6-1, 6-1 and the second doubles team of Elio-Kermond had defeated Betsy Sawyer and Beth Wickwire 6-2, 6-1. This left the match score at 1-1.

In the other matches Intravia had battled back outstandingly to split sets by taking the second set. However, C-C's third singles player and first doubles team had done the same thing. The bottom line was that Winchester had to win two sets - therefore two matches - to take home the State crown.

(Girls - Page 19)

THE TURNING POINT — When Concord-Carlisle's Mark Erie defeated Winchester first singles player Paul Sughure 6-4, 5-7, 6-4, it broke a 2-2 deadlock between the teams and gave C-C the state championship.

Boys Fall To Concord-Carlisle

By Bill Littell

Sometimes you feel like the LA Lakers in a seventh game. No matter how hard you try, or how close you come, your loss seems preordained.

The Winchester Boys Tennis Team knows this feeling well.

With the State Tennis Championship on the line, the Sachems lost to Concord-Carlisle last Thursday, 3-2, for the second time in as many weeks.

Of Concord's three points, two were three-set matches, and the other came down to a tiebreaker in the second set. In fact, the entire match rested at 1st Singles, where Paul Sughrue almost pulled the upset of the year before bowing 4-6 in the final set.

Two teams couldn't be closer.

However, before the boys reached Concord, they had to get past Amherst Regional in the semi-finals.

At the Clark University courts in Worcester, they did just that . . . barely. Although the score was 4-1, the match itself was much closer.

In the first singles, Paul Sughrue lost to Adam Payne in straight sets 1-6 and 1-6.

"Paul played better than the scores indicate," said coach Paul Atkinson. "Paul's opponent combined talent and smarts into a very strong player."

Atkinson was worried that overconfidence would lose them the second and third singles.

But Shawn Herlihy beat Kurt Salloux in the second singles, 6-1, 4-6, and 6-1. Shawn knew he would win the match all along after losing the second set, he told the coach not to worry, that he knew what he had to do to win.

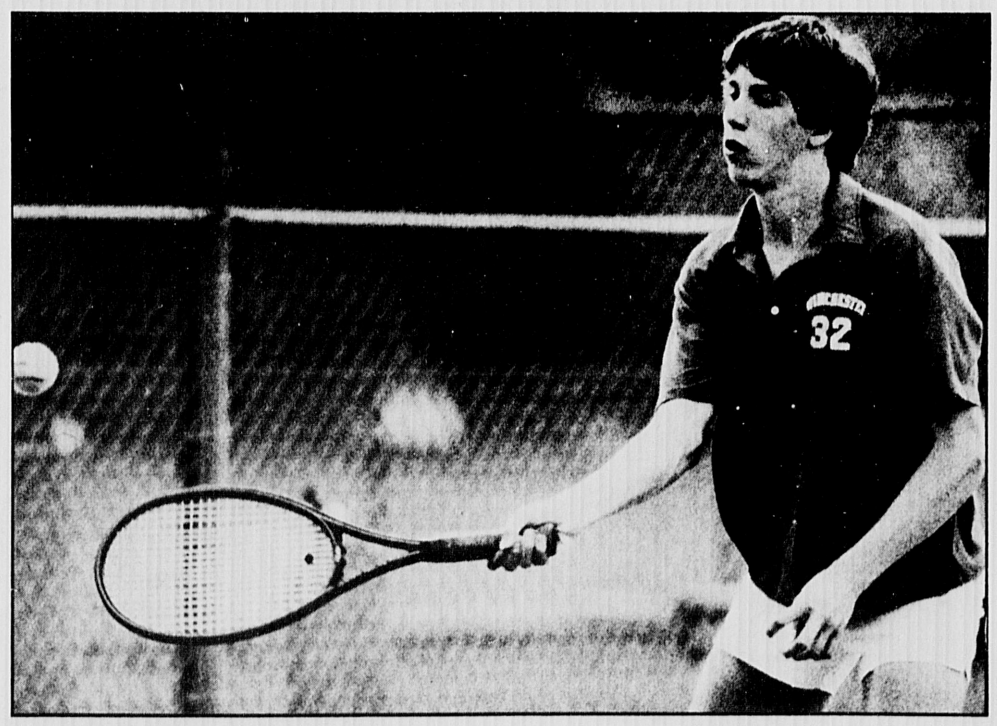

And just like the plucky Celtics, Herlihy came through in the clutch with his convincing 6-1 victory.

Herlihy's pattern seemed to repeat itself as Gavin Barton beat Sean Salloux 6-0 in the first set of the third singles but then lost the second set by the very same score as Herlihy.

Gavin's opponent won about five points total in the first set, shots that weren't winners but did force Gavin to make mistakes.

But Salloux's victory in the second set got fans to worrying.

But while Barton did not console his coach a la Herlihy, he did go out a la Herlihy and do what he had to do, knocking off Salloux, 6-4 for the win.

HALF A WINNING TEAM — Hank Lynch, paired up with Bill Littell, won the second doubles match for the Sachems in the state finals last week.

The first doubles team of Mark Herlihy and Joe Palumbo kept up the suspense, losing the first set 5-7 and forcing themselves to win two in a row — a feat they pulled off, but not without a little difficulty o[illegible]nd 7-5.

Mark and Joe [illegible]re down 4-5, 15-40 in the last set. They fought o[illegible]tch points before coming back to win. These were the first match points Mark has faced in his WHS career.

In the second doubles, Bill Littell and Hank Lynch finally broke the Winchester pattern of put-yourself-in-a-hole-and-dig-yourself-out. The pair beat Ed Hartai and Ed Minear in straight sets, 6-4, 6-4.

Bill and Hank's opponents were not great doubles players, playing like two singles players who just happened to be on the same court together. Winchester won the match at the net, as a doubles team.

There was not time to rest and savor the victory. Nor did the Sachems provide their fans with any less tension in the state finals. Unfortunately, this time, unlike the Celtics, the Sachems couldn't pull off the last big victory. Winchester lost to Concord-Carlisle in a nail-biter at Newton North.

Winchester's Paul Sugrue looked like he might come through but ended up losing in first singles to Mark Erie, 4-6, 7-5 and 4-6.

In second singles, Shawn Herlihy did come through winning in straight sets, 6-2, 6-4, over C-C's Tim Smith.

But in third singles, Winchester's Gavin Barton lost to Bill Anderson 7-6 (7-5), 3-6, and 6-2.

First doubles pair Joe Palumbo and Mark Herlihy won over Jeff Blackburn and Steve Begner 7-6 (7-4), 6-3.

But Concord came back in second doubles with Doug Frizzell and Garry Miller beating out Hank Lynch and Bill Littell, 6-2, 7-6 (8-6).

However, it just didn't work out that way. Winchester was hopeful after Furey and Ricciardelli were able to pull themselves together and capture their match against C-C's Meghan O'Sullivan and Alison Begner 6-2, 6-7(8-6), 6-3; but, they had to face the facts as Intravia came off the court with a difficult 6-1, 2-6, 6-3 loss to Concord-Carlisle's Betsy Keane. This put the match at 2-2 and all the pressure on Linda McCall's shoulders.

And she carried it extremely well bringing the score to 4-2(40-30) in the third set. Then problems arose - not the "normal" problems of bad line calls or unsportsman like behavior but the kind of problems that arise when going into the fourth hour of a gruelling tennis match in humid almost 83 degree weather - the problems that arose where physical, and Linda suffered.

Going to retrieve another tennis ball to start the next point, McCall's leg gave out as she writhed in excrutiating pain on the tennis court. Requesting a 10-minute injury delay, Coach Innes and several teammates went out to the court to comfort and in any small way try to help McCall. As McCall's leg was massaged, one could visibly see the muscle clamp together like a vice. At this point, Innes asked McCall if she wanted to retire from the match.

But with tears of pain in the back of her eyes and an angry almost fierce look of determination in her face, McCall got up with a wince of pain and said "No, I'm gonna play this match if it kills me."

And with the guts of a born fighter McCall proceeded to win the game to bring the score to 5-2 and win the next two points putting McCall and Winchester within two points of victory. But then her body took over and although her mind was willing her body was not.

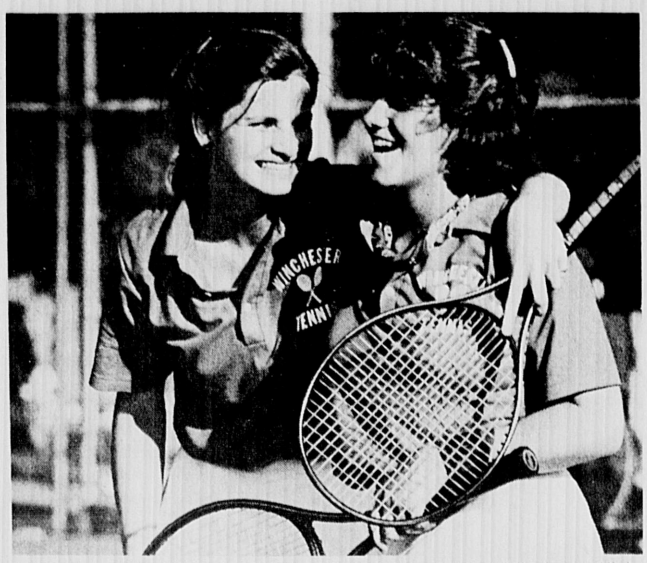

C-C's Jill Slansky won the next five games to win the match and the State Title.

Although the team had lost they had everything to be proud of. First of all their Middlesex League crown, then their EMass victory and finally runner-up in the State tournament.

Most of all the team could be proud of themselves. Their classy behavior on and off the court, their victories aforementioned and their development into a team of determined players.

Linda McCall, during this match, was a symbol of the team. Her gutsy courage and spirit characterized each individual on the squad which raised them to new heights as athletes and as people.

To be a contributing part of this team has been an experience and an honor I'll never forget. So to my teammates — Karen, Diane, Maz, Lulu and Kathy; my co-capt. Paula; my partner Linda and my coach Innes - thank you for all you've given me. You are one group of individuals no one could ever forget.

Non-Team Sails To Two More Victories

Four Winchester sailors, without the benefit of a coach's knowledge or a team's structure, sailed away from the Mass Bay League Regatta with two first places on June 13.

Skipper Jimmy Bowers and Maura Kennedy, crew, took a first in the A fleet race. Two boats from Brookline finished in second and third places.

Skipper Michael Bowers and Heather Price Crew finished first also in their B Fleet race. Boston Latin and Brookline finished in second and third.

Skippers in the A Fleet are either seniors or the best skippers in their schools. B Fleet skippers are underclassmen.

The Regatta consisted of 12 races combined for the A and B Fleets sailed on the Charles River from Community Boating in Boston. The Sailing conditions were excellent which made the races very exciting to compete in, said Kennedy.

Beal Wins Lacrosse Letter

A starter on defense for the Cardinals, Beal saw action in each of Wesleyan's 11 games during a 7-4, 1984 season. Outscoring their opponents by an average of three goals a game, the Cardinals fashioned their finest won-loss record in nine years.

The son of Sumner and Mary Beal, Beal is a 1981 graduate of Winchester High School where he earned honorable mention all-league honors in football and lettered in lacrosse.

A government major at Wesleyan, Beal serves as vice president of his fraternity, Delta Kappa Epsilon. A starter on the offensive line for the Cardinal football team, Beal will be a staple force on the gridiron for Wesleyan once again in 1984.

McCall And Elio Win State Individuals

By TERRY ELIO

Winchester did it again. Just as they had last year and probably will in years to come, Winchester produced a doubles team worthy of a state championship title.

This doubles team consisted of Linda McCall and Terry Elio. This was a relatively new team having only been formed since the start of the tennis season. But they proved invincible.

Winning the EMass Individual tournament back in May earned the team a spot in the Boston Globe's All-Scholastic Tennis Team but also gained for them a spot in the State Individual tournament. The semi-finals which were played on Monday in Billerica.

McCall, a sophomore, and Elio, a senior, faced a tough team from Dougherty High of Worcester. This team, which had never lost up till this point, acquired their central crown by defeating their own second doubles team (which was exactly what happened to Winchester last year when the first doubles team of Elio and Patty Ricciardelli faced Mary Pat Furey and Paula Ricciardelli the second doubles team for the title.)

The Dougherty team, however, could not withstand the lobs, drops and smashing volleys which they faced from Winchester's Elio-McCall duo. They took the first set easily 6-0. However, before the rain broke, Winchester found themselves in a hole looking at a 3-0 deficit.

Coming off the courts while the tournament director decided whether or not to move the tourney indoors seemed to help the Winchester girls for as they again took to the rain slicked courts they only lost one game of the next seven, taking the second set and the match 6-4.

As it turns out the finals of the state tournament were moved inside to Tennis 128 in Burlington. In them, Winchester again adapted to the conditions. Facing now an experienced team from Longmeadow, the girls got off to a swift start and before long took the first set 6-2. The second set quickly followed. Again Winchester walked away with it, 6-1.

The happiness over the triumph of the match was double-sided. First of all, it earned McCall and Elio the State Crown - a prestigious accomplishment in itself. But most of all, it marked the end of the season for both players and the end of a high school career for Elio.

For these reasons the win was unique. But it was also special for it marked the end of a partnership which in 23 matches had never lost a match and lost only one set. A partnership which consisted of sluggo, lob, up-up, com'on and other equally meaningless yet important phrases. Lastly, it was a partnership of good close friends. One that will probably transcend the high school level and continue for a long time.

It may just be another accomplishment in the anals of Winchester Tennis but it will always be a cherished memory for both Linda McCall and Terry Elio.

Tennis Assn. Men Win Division Title

The B team sponsored by the Winchester Tennis Assn. has won the 'B' Central Division Championship.

By accumulating a total of 32 points the team won the championship by defeating such perennial favorites as The Country Club of Brookline and the Windsor Club of Newton.

The three Winchester teams consisted of Don Ellis and Hank Skehan, Bill Cunningham and Captain Jack Wiseman, and ralph Bates and Bill Wolfe.

Highlights of the season were the three-set marathon where Ellis and Skehan prevailed over the feisty Dover duo and the Cunningham and Wiseman upset of the favored Country Club team on their home clay courts in Brookline.

The championship was secured on Tuesday night when Bates and Wolfe came from behind to overcome their tenacious Wellesley Tennis Assn. opponent in three sets at Wellesley College.

The team has been notified that they will play a post season play-off against the other B Division winners in late June. Their opponents and the site of the match have yet to be determined.

Blackpowder Shooters

IF YOU think putting holes in paper is about as exciting as watching the traffic lights change, consider team shooting at breakable targets against a stopwatch. The 10th Massachusetts Battery is looking for more people. We are part of the North-South Skirmish Association, a 4,000 member competitive shooting organization where the shortest elapsed time wins. Units take their names in honor of actual Civil War regiments and members shoot original or reproduction weapons of the 1861-65 period. The 10th Battery competes with .58 cal. rifled muskets, caplock breechloading carbines, and an 1,800 lb. full size 3-inch rifled muzzleloading cannon. Yes, there's some paper punching too for those interested, but the real excitement is in the rapid fire team events where you shoot at flower pots, hanging water-filled coffee cups, ceramic tiles and 32 clay pigeons on a 4x8 cardboard backer at 50 yds. We welcome all shooters regardless of experience. Our team members live all over — from Maine to Rhode Island to New York — but more are from eastern Massachusetts. Call Ron Borjeson at 1-835-3102 for further information.

NEW OR EXISTING HOME?

If you are in the market to buy a home but haven't made up your mind whether it will be a new or an existing one, you should let your Realtor help you weigh the merits of each. For instance, you will probably find a wider selection of older homes for sale. Also, when you compare living space, location, construction materials, and other factors, you may be getting more for your money if you buy an older home.

Older homes tend to be closer to established shopping areas, churches, and other neighborhood attractions. Homes in established neighborhoods also have a more "settled" look, with mature trees and shrubbery. On the other hand, new houses have obvious advantages, too.

When you're dealing with an experienced Real Estate broker, however, you have already made one of the most important decisions long before you find the house you want to buy.

VILLAGE HILL ROAD

In 1920 the 17 acre site called Belmont Hill Village, originally owned by George H. Lawrence, was purchased by the Ring Sanitarium and Hospital, Inc. of Arlington.

However, in March, 1927 their permit to construct a hospital was rejected by the Belmont Board of Appeals after a hearing in which the abutters strongly objected to the 100 patient facility on this site.

Then in 1934 Dr. Ring sold the Lawrence property to C.E. Trenholm and A. Johnson who formed the "Belmont Hill Village Trust" and who developed the area into 45 lots of over 10,000 square feet each.

Village Hill Road is the main entrance into Belmont Hill Village and was probably named accordingly.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

This report records votes on roll calls from the week of June 11-15. Action from late night Senate sessions on the fiscal 1985 budget will be included in next week's report.

ABORTION (H 673) — Constitutional Convention gave initial approval 112-63 (House approved 95-48, Senate approved 17-15), to a proposed constitutional amendment stating "nothing in this Constitution shall prevent the General Court from regulating or prohibiting abortion unless prohibited by the U.S. Constitution, nor shall anything in this Constitution require public or private funding of abortion or the provision of services or facilities therefor, beyond that required by the U.S. Constitution. The provisions of this article shall not apply to abortions required to prevent the death of the mother."

Supporters argued abortion is murder and said the amendment is an important step in the fight against abortion. They said the amendment would allow the legislature to eventually enact bills to give the state the toughest anti-abortion laws in the nation. Some claimed passage would also allow the legislature to quickly outlaw all abortions if federal anti-abortion efforts are successful.

Most opponents defended "pro-choice" and argued abortion is not murder but is a private matter for an individual to decide. They said anti-abortion laws will not stop abortion but will result in illegal and unsafe ones. Many said the amendment is the first step toward outlawing all abortions.

The amendment needs another round of approval by this year's convention and then approval by the 1985-86 legislature in order to go on the 1986 ballot for voter consideration.

A "Yea" vote is for the anti-abortion amendment. A "Nay" vote is against it.

BEYOND 10 P.M. — ConCon suspended rules 96-78 (House 76-64, Senate 20-14), to allow the joint session to continue beyond 10 p.m.

Supporters of rule suspension argued the abortion amendment is very important and said the session should continue so that initial work on it can be completed.

Opponents said there is time left in the year to reconvene the convention and said important matters should not be acted upon late at night.

A "Yea" vote is for going beyond 10 p.m. A "Nay" vote is against beyond 10 p.m.

Saltmarsh voted yes. Kraus voted no.

POLICE (H 4935) — House 104-46, gave initial approval to a bill allowing Frank Pappas from the town of Tewksbury to take the next civil service exam for police officers.

Supporters explained the bill is necessary because Pappas is over the age limit to take the exam. They noted the measure is a home rule bill approved by Tewksbury town meeting and said it only allows Pappas to take the exam and does not guarantee him a position.

Opponents said it was time to stop these exceptions and noted the legislature has already turned down 15 similar bills this year.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

DRAFT (H 3811) — House 93-51, gave initial approval to a bill requiring a male applicant for financial aid or scholarships from the Board of Higher Education, to verify that he has registered for the military draft.

Supporters argued students who want taxpayers' money for education should be required to obey the law and register.

Opponents said the bill discriminates against men and the poor and also denies them a fair trial and due process of law.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

MORE DRAFT (H 3811) — House 92-54, defeated an amendment to the bill requiring scholarship and loan applicants to verify that he has not been convicted of violating the draft registration requirement and would further provide that if he is convicted, he must return all scholarship money to the state.

Supporters argued the amendment is fair and insures that only those convicted will be penalized.

Opponents said the amendment kills the bill.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment, A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted no.

SPEAKER AND SENATE PRESIDENT (H 4808) — House 85-62, refused to discharge the joint rules committee from further consideration of a bill limiting the terms of the Speaker and Senate President for four years.

Supporters said the bill deserves to be debated and brought to the House floor for a vote, but claimed it is being left to die in the rules committee because the leadership opposes it.

Opponents said it was not a good policy to discharge bills before the committee has reviewed them. Some said limiting the terms is undemocratic and noted the membership elects the two leaders every two years and can also remove them at any point in their terms.

A "Yea" vote is for discharging the bill onto the House floor for debate and a vote. A "Nay" vote is against discharge.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

TRAVEL (H 5291) — House 131-16, upheld the ruling of the chair not allowing an amendment to a bill prohibiting any state employee, including all elected officials, from attending any meeting, convention, or conference at public expense in any state which prior to June 30, 1982, has failed to ratify the Equal Rights Amendment to the U.S. Constitution. The amendment would eliminate references to the ERA and simply prohibit state employees from traveling to any state at public expense. The speaker ruled the amendment went beyond the scope of the bill and is not admissable.

Supporters of the ruling said the intent of the original bill is to express support for the ERA and let other states know we are willing to back that up. They claimed the amendment banning all travel goes beyond the intent.

Opponents of the ruling said it was improper and claimed the amendment did not substantially change the bill or alter the intent. They said the amendment would stop costly junkets.

A "Yea" vote is for the speaker's ruling. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

PENSIONS (H 5971) — House 100-42, rejected an amendment to a bill changing a portion of last year's pension of reform bill. The law passed last year and effective last January stipulates that public employees who leave their jobs with less than five years of service receive no interest back from their pension deductions; employees with 5-10 years get one-half the interest; and those with more than 10 years get 100 percent. The bill changes that and allows employees already in service before Jan. 1, 1984, to get back 100 percent. The amendment would allow all employees, whether in service before or after Jan. 1, 1984, to receive 100 percent of their interest.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

DRUG PROGRAM (S 980) — Senate 24-13, gave initial approval to a bill establishing a pilot drug treatment facility for children in the state. The measure allows parents to admit minor children, found by a judge to be using certain drugs, to a residential drug treatment facility which includes family and parental involvement.

Supporters argued this pilot program is the first step in giving some help to serious drug abusers among the young and noted funding could come from weeding out any current drug programs which are ineffective.

Opponents agreed there is a serious drug problem but said the bill was poorly drafted, may violate the rights of some children, and is not necessarily the solution to the drug problem.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Kraus voted no.

He was employed as an architectural engineer by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for the past 29 years.

Mr. Tedesco attended Winchester schools and graduated from Winchester High School before going on to study at the Wentworth Institute's College of Engineering.

After graduating from Wentworth, he went on to study at MIT.

Funeral services will be held today for Ignazia F. Asaro, a former Holland st. resident who died June 18 at the Winchester Nursing Home. She was 91.

The funeral will be held from the Lane Funeral Home at 9:15 a.m., followed by a funeral mass in St. Mary's Church at 10 a.m.

Burial will be in Calvary Cemetery.

She worked for 35 years in the maintenance department of the Boston and Maine Railroad.

Mrs. Asaro was a member of the Ladies Lodge of the Sons of Italy in Winchester, and a member of St. Mary's Church for many years.

Goodfellow Named Professor Emeritus

J. Roy Goodfellow of Winchester has been named associate professor emeritus of physical education at Tufts University, following his retirement this year from teaching.

Goodfellow joined Tufts in 1955 as an instructor in physical education, earning a tenure teaching appointment two years later. In 1967-69, he was acting chairman of physical education, then chairman from 1969 to 1972.

In addition to teaching, Goodfellow also has served Tufts as a coach and as director of the university's intramural and recreation programs.

As a coach, he directed teams in football (1955-67), basketball (1955-60) and baseball (1955-69), serving as head freshman coach in all three sports. A resolution presented by faculty colleagues at a recent Tufts faculty meeting noted, "Working with Tufts' youngest and, many times, most awkward student-athletes, he produced a feeder system which became a cornerstone for nine consecutive winning seasons in football and six winning seasons, including two Greater Boston league championships, in baseball."

The resolution went on to term Goodfellow's work as director of intramural and recreation programs his "finest accomplishment."

North Shore Bus Co. Is Awarded Contract

After being the only bus company of nine contacted to make a bid, North Shore Bus Co. was awarded a three-year contract with the Winchester school system.

In a lengthy report on the finances involved in contracting with a bus company, Asst. Supt. Robert Fitzgerald requested that the North Shore company receive a three-year contract.

The report inspired several different reactions from the School Committee members and, of these, strong disagreement, satisfaction and boredom were the most evident.

School Committee member Steven Powers objected to the three-year contract, opting for a one-year agreement instead.

"I think this should be looked at further," said Powers. "Nine submissions with one answer for a bid doesn't show me anything on paper that can tell me whether that's the right figure, the wrong figure, or what."

Economies of scale were the reason that Supt. Charles Mitsakos gave for favoring the three-year contract.

He also pointed out that the cost of the bus contract was lower than what most communities paid and no more than any.

Another point in favor of the three-year contract was made by School Committeeman William Jervey who said the likelihood of the price going up a year from now is great.

The School Committee meeting at which this issue was discussed was the same night as the last Celtics basketball game. Of much more interest than the report on bus contracts was the note being passed around during the report, letting the School committee know that the Celtics were ahead at the half, 59-52.

onials, he explained. "We believe the more traditional architecture would have more appeal to the market," Chabot said.

Landscaping would feature more low evergreens and fewer deciduous trees, he continued, noting that "six months of the year when the leaves are off, the site is rather barren."

Courtyards would be macadam instead of pavers (concrete slabs etched to look like brick) under Chabot's plan. "One reason, frankly, is cost — I know of no other project that uses pavers for parking," said Chabot. "Other reasons are durability in winter because of heaving. And they go off-colored quickly, showing oil stains and tire marks."

The clusters of buildings — about 12 per courtyard — would be rearranged slightly, after "we studied a little more detail on the actual contours of the site."

Chabot also wants to build more at once — erecting 50 units of the 108-unit project in the first construction phase instead of 25. "Our site cost in the first phase is $2½ million (out of $3½ million total)," said Chabot. "We want to spread that out among 50 units. It's hard enough to live with a cost of $50,000 per unit. It's impossible at $100,000."

Finally, Chabot wants to change the styles of the units from a mix of townhouses and one-story flats to all townhouses.

"The reasons for the changes are marketing — as far as the layout, the architecture, and the flexibility to sell 50 rather than 25 — and financial, so we can bring the cost down," said Chabot.

Chabot estimated his units would sell for $235,000, compared to $325,000 for the units the Whittens were planning.

"If it gets above $235,000, people are going to buy a single-family house," he added.

Chabot said he doesn't think the changes are major — "architecture is a matter of taste," he noted.

And Rob Whitten added that much of the work promised to Town Meeting — the linking of the Heritage III subdivision, looping of sewer and water lines, the establishment of a conservation district and a new sidewalk for Carriage Hill — has been completed.

"Slides of brick and glass are important, but so are the bones of the project and the progressive use of an extremely difficult site," said Whitten. "Projects like our Sachem Woods, and like Mr. Chabot's, fulfill those issues."

Selectmen disagreed.

"If there had been two plans presented at Town Meeting, I might have chosen (Chabot's)," commented Alan Macdonald. "But when it went to Town Meeting, things like flat roofs were important, because it meant lower sight lines. Certainly the brick pavers were a high selling point. That's what Town Meeting voted on, and the way this has come about makes me think it should go back to Town Meeting."

"I feel I was taken," added Selectman Michael Saraco. "I voted for this project for the same reasons stated by Selectman Macdonald."

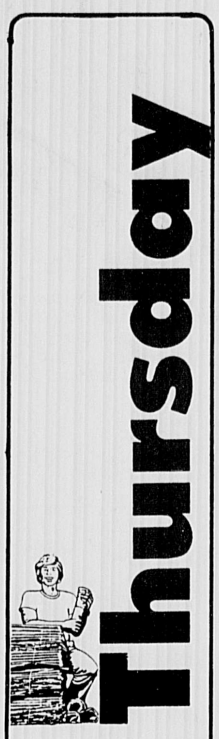

"Instead of 180 people deciding on this project, as they did at Town Meeting, two or three (on the Board of Appeal) are going to decided it," commented Selectman Wade Welch. "I feel and end run has been done around the process."

"People are disillusioned how the process worked to their disadvantage," threw in Selectman Edward O'Connell. "(Chabot's) is an attractive proposal. But I am troubled by the way this has taken a U-turn in the road."

With that kind of sentiment, selectmen quickly voted against the project.

On the same evening, so did the Planning Board.

Those recommendations, the feelings of the neighbors and the plans of Chabot and the Whittens will all be heard by the Board of Appeal before they make their recommendation in 30 days.

Most Dangerous Intersection

Town Looks For Way To End Crashes

BY LIZ WILLEN

Last Friday, a Raynham woman and her daughter were injured in a collision at what has repeatedly been called the worst intersection in town — the corner of Cambridge and Wildwood sts.

In fact, the same intersection has been the site of 131 reported accidents in the past 10 years, according to Safety Officer Kevin Mawn.

Police who arrived at the scene of Friday's accident discovered a damaged gold Dodge resting up against a telephone pole. Two passengers in the back seat were injured, and one of them was unconscious.

Both passengers were transported to Winchester Hospital, where they were treated and later released, along with a 17-year-old Pepper Hill dr. resident. She was driving a white Ford that collided with the Dodge and was complaining of pain in her ankle.

The cause of the accident, according to police, was a red light violation — and the driver of the Dodge was issued a citation for failure to stop for a red light.

Forty-eight of the accidents at the intersection have been caused by red light violations, and a total of 49 people have been injured at the corner. Thirty-two additional accidents were reported, but not investigated by police, Mawn said.

Coincidentally with Friday's accident, town officials began pushing for a plan to solve some of the traffic problems at the intersection.

But, as neighbors point out, it won't help the main problem at the intersection — cars speeding and running through the red lights.

Mawn, Police Chief John McHugh and Town Engineer Jake Ciarcia were all present at Monday night's Board of Selectmen's meeting at which possibilities for making the intersection safer were discussed.

However, selectmen did not take any action on the plan because two neighbors whose land abuts the intersection, and whose property would be affected by some of the changes that Ciarcia discussed, were not at the meeting.

A meeting will be rescheduled this summer to discuss the plan, a plan that McHugh said he favored.

"There are constant accidents at that corner, and people think they are on the highway," McHugh said. "There is a tendency to ignore the traffic light, and we've made this presentation before. Something has to be done about it."

Wildwood st. residents present at the meeting agreed with McHugh's contention, and several even offered some suggestions.

Wildwood st. resident Betsy Ewing suggested that a blinker, or at least a warning be posted to remind drivers that the corner is a dangerous one.

"A great number of the accidents are caused by cars that come down the hill and round the curve," she said. "Night after night I have stopped at a yellow light and had many drivers get angry and go around me."

Joseph Moran, a Wildwood st. resident, suggested that the traffic lights have a pattern with a period of red in both directions to slow down the traffic flow. He also suggested a traffic light at the corner of Cambridge and Pond sts.

"Speed is the principal problem," Moran said. It's murder." Moran also noted that he believes most of the accidents happen during non-rush hour traffic.

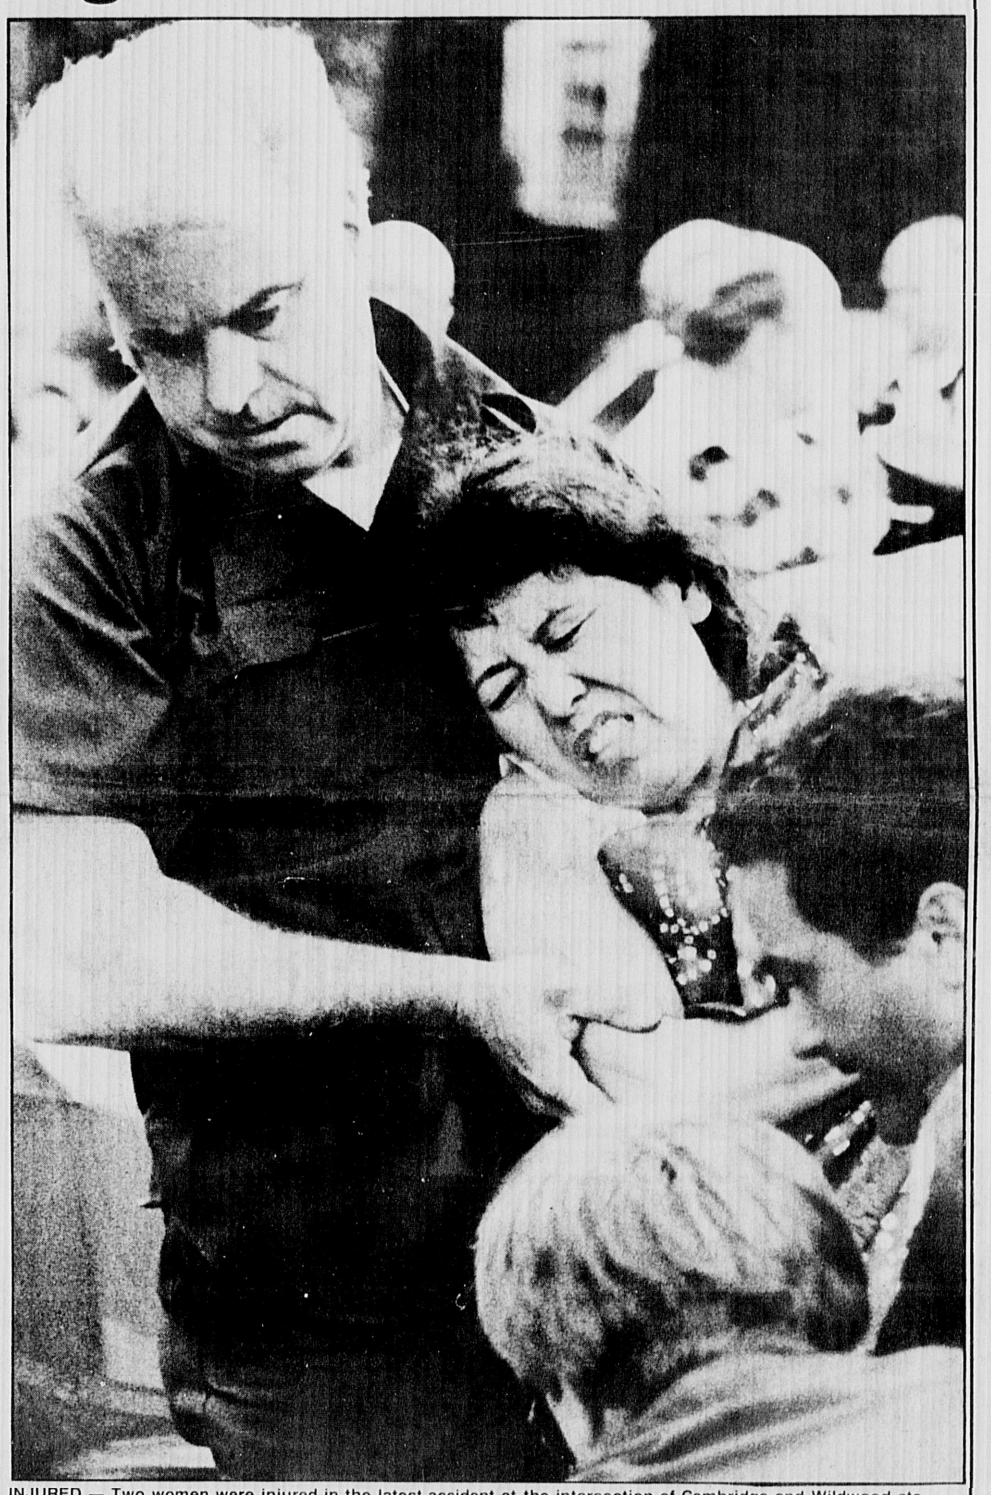

But Ciarcia replied that traffic has enough distance to pick up speed even before the Wildwood intersection, and that even a light at Pond st. would not make a difference.

Town Manager Thomas Groux noted that attempts to do something about the problem in the past 10 years have not survived. Cambridge st., he said, is owned by the state, but the state has said that it will not act on improving the area until the town supports the changes that Ciarcia proposed.

Using a design plan from 1977, Ciarcia described the possibility of having a left-turn lane in the middle of Cambridge st, allowing people to make a left turn towards Woburn. He also described hanging lights off wires strung across the intersection for greater visibility.

The plan would require the taking of FAMILIAR SIGHT — Yes, this is another accident at the intersection of Cambridge and Wildwood sts. The vintage auto may give a clue — the accident happened in September 1949. The Boston Herald captured the scene at which the traffic light was knocked down and one of the two drivers involved was hospitalized at Winchester Hospital with minor head injuries.

Sewer Charge Is Still On

Too Few Voters Show

By DAVE LEECO

About all that can be said about the special election held Tuesday on the sewer use charge is that it cost at least $2 a vote.

You certainly can't declare a winner. With only 10.5 percent of the voters turning out — half the required 20 percent — the election was declared null and void.

Those opposing the sewer use charge can claim they got a 90 percent majority of the 1,360 who went to the polls voting against the 65-cents-per-100-cubic-foot fee passed at the spring Town Meeting.

But they can't claim to have defeated the sewer charge — the action of Town Meeting stands, and the fee will go into effect July 1.

Those in favor of the charge (if there are any out there — only 132 showed up to vote) could counter that they stayed away because of strategy. If they didn't show up, they wouldn't count towards the 20 percent minimum voter turnout that would make the election valid.

"Those in favor of this are staying away in droves," asserted Joseph Geary, sitting in his car at the Town Hall polling place Tuesday. "That's unfair.

"The whole 20 percent rule is wrong — there is no such thing as a referendum in this town," continued Geary.

Geary was so upset about the low numbers turning out at the polls that he was driving around with signs in his car windows reading: "Flush the sewer tax. Vote before 8 p.m. or give at least $100 a year forever. Vote No."

"Precinct 5 only had 60 voters at 3 o'clock," Geary said. "I got so mad I made a couple of cardboard signs and got going."

Another voter coming out of the polls, John Gambino of Olive st., fought the sewer tax with his vote and intended keep fighting it.

"I'm going to go home, get on the phone, and tell people to come down here," he said, standing with his wife

Sentence Suspended In Credit Union Embezzlement Trial

By DAVE LEECO

In exchange for paying back $65,000 to the Winchester Municipal Credit Union, ex-treasurer Ellen Casalinuovo received a one-year suspended sentence on embezzlement charges last week.

Casalinuovo, a 37-year-old Myrtle terr. resident, was also placed on two years' probation and ordered to perform 500 hours' community service by US District Court Judge Joseph Tauro.

The June 20 sentencing hearing came one month after Casalinuovo pleaded guilty to three counts of embezzlement from the Credit Union, which has 700 members and assets of $750,000.

The conviction resulted from a two-year investigation by Credit Union officers, the FBI and the US Attorney's office, an investigation which started when an October 1981 audit uncovered irregularities in the Credit Union's books.

The irregularities seemed minor. Credit Union officials recall small details — from an unclear ledger entry to a missing signature. At first, the Credit Union's directors thought those problems were just human error.

But after the head of the Credit Union's supervisory committee, firefighter Ken Duffy, began asking questions and getting answers that didn't fit, it became clear that the problems with the books were more than just human errors.

After six months of digging and after calling in a private auditor, the Credit Union's supervisory committee found $65,000 missing from the organization's books.

In April 1982, the Credit Union completed its internal investigation, called in the FBI, and dismissed Casalinuovo.

The FBI built its case over two years, reviewing the evidence collected by the supervisory committee and adding its own facts.

On March 28, a federal grand jury handed an indictment charging Casalinuovo with 15 counts of embezzlement.

According to the indictment, Casalinuovo created fraudulent loans in the Credit Union's books, then deposited the money in her personal savings account at the Winchester Savings Bank.

In April, Casalinuovo and US Attorney Victor Wild came to a plea-bargaining agreement, and Casalinuovo plead guilty to three counts, with the understanding that the US Attorney's sentencing recommendation was conditioned on her paying back the $65,000.

Freed Students Seek Summertime Fun

By KAREN BRADBURY

The ringing school bell released thousands of Winchester school children from the bondage of strict school schedules and homework last Thursday — which means it's time to make summer plans.

In their first days of freedom, the kids are staying out late, taking long bike rides and sleeping over at friends' houses or, they are getting ready to join one of the many programs in town this summer that offer anything from tennis to mountain climbing for kids ranging in age from pre-school to adolescent.

"No more teachers!" said Robby Marshall, 12, while playing in the bushes near the Main st. bridge with his friends.

A group of children stopped throwing candy at the ducks long enough to explain how "awesome" summer is.

Twelve-year-old Brenden Maney said, "I like summer because it's fun to get away from the teachers and their dumb jokes."

The best thing about summer is being able to make plans with friends and do anything you want without the restrictions of school, agreed Brenden's friends at the pond.

One little girl, Lea Casalinuova, 7, has already begun to plan her summer joining the Winchester Junior Library's "Leap For The Gold" summer reading program. As she walked toward the library with a stack of books under one arm and traces of a peppermint stick ice cream cone smeared across her mouth, she looked determined to reach her goal of reading 10 to 20 books.

"A lot of kids are bored in the summer," said Heidi Zeibig, assistant to the children's librarian, "I got a lot of enthusiasm (for the summer reading program) from the kids."

On Sachem Woods

Developers Miss Board Of Appeal Hearing

The brakes are on plans to change the proposed Sachem Woods development — plans that had moved rapidly from their announcement a month ago to a public hearing last week.

The first thing slowing down the project was that the public hearing never came off — when the developers arrived for their 8:30 Zoning Board of Appeal hearing Monday night, the board had already denied their request for changes.

The Sachem Woods developers will be abie to go back to the Board of Appeal any time within the next two years because their petition was denied without prejudice.

It will be at least two months until the Whitten family (the present owners of Sachem Woods) and Jan Chabot (who wants to buy the project from the Whittens) can ask for permission to change the architecture, landscaping, roadways and construction schedule of Sachem Woods.

That two-month delay, however, fits in with Chabot's latest plans. According to Robinson Whitten, Chabot was planning to withdraw his plans on Wednesday night so he could spend more time working on the project before seeking final approval from the board.

Just two days before last Wednesday night's Board of Appeal hearing, Chabot's new Sachem Woods plan received two strikes against it — it was voted down by the Planning Board and the Board of Selectmen.

Chabot, who signed a letter of intent to purchase the land from the Whittens in February, explained to both selectmen and the Planning Board that he wanted to change the Whitten plans to increase their marketability and bring down the Whittens' $325,000 price tag to $235,000.

Both boards, however, voted against the changes because the Whittens' plans — complete with the details that made them so expensive — were the plans that convinced Town Meeting to rezone the land off Carriage Hill.

The Board of Appeal was all set to give its opinion of the plan Wednesday night, but neither Chabot nor any of the Whittens showed up at the meeting, which ended shortly before 8:30.

However, Robinson Whitten, a spokesman for the Sachem Woods Corp., said "it was by no means on purpose" that the meeting was missed. In fact, Whitten, his sister Amy, and Chabot all showed up in the parking lot of Town Hall immediately after the conclusion of the meeting, and appeared to be baffled.

"I was really shocked," Whitten said. "We had been scheduled for 8:30 and we showed up just before that. It's unfortunate."

Whitten said it was especially ironic because Chabot had planned to withdraw his plans at the meeting. Chabot could not be reached by The Star to verify this, but Whitten said that Chabot had sensed that he might be moving too quickly.

"Chabot now knows a great deal about Winchester and the neighbors, and he had decided that he didn't want to force an issue that was causing so much concern among the neighbors," Whitten said.

"He didn't want to push the project and then have it become unpopular from a marketing point of view," Whitten continued. "The neighbors have encouraged him to take a look at the quality of their houses and not undersell that quality. I know he wants some time to revaluate the situation and take the neighbors requests into consideration."

Chabot will have that time now. According to Building Commissioner Anthony Zagzoug, the Sachem Woods Corp. has not yet rescheduled the hearing. It has two years in which to appear before the Board of Appeal.

Whitten said that he was "thrilled" about the delay. "It's all for the best, because it will become a better plan," he said. "Chabot knew that the neighborhood was going to appeal it, and he didn't want to force the boards to make their decisions too quickly."

For Cong. Markey's Seat

Barrett Drops Out Of Race

BY LIZ WILLEN

The race for Cong. Edward Markey's seat took on a whole new shape on Monday, when Rep. Michael Barrett of Reading dropped out of the campaign stating, "the money just wasn't there."

Markey, the incumbent congressman, now faces only one major opponent — former State Sen. Sam Rotondi of Winchester.

A third candidate, Philip Doherty of Tewksbury, a former police who has taken a conservative stand on many of the issues in the district, is also seeking Markey's seat.

According to Barrett, dropping out of the race was a difficult decision, but the "enormous financial advantage of the incumbent congressman" convinced him that it would be futile to go on.

"It's a controlling fact of life that it is very hard to run against an incumbent," he said, noting that he and Markey had very similar constituencies. "I'm very sorry to leave the race, but it is a difficult race."

Rotondi, however, had a different view of the new race.

"There is no question that this has made the race exactly what I want — a one-on-one," he said. "And now that it is a two-man race, the issue of credibility is heightened."

Rotondi called Barrett "a class candidate," and said he was surprised by the news that he had dropped out of the race.

"When I first heard that someone had dropped out of the race, I honestly thought it was Markey," he said.

Rotondi insisted that Markey's credibility was shot when he dropped out of the Senate race in May and announced that he would run for re-election. Markey made that decision less than three hours before the filing deadline for state representatives.

As a result of Markey's decision, Rep. Michael McGlynn of Medford and Rep. Nick Paleologos of Woburn scrambled to get the more than 600 signatures they needed to retain their state House of Representatives seats, before dropping out of the congressional race. Only Barrett was willing to risk his seat in the House to continue campaigning for Congress.

Barrett, who said he is not yet ready to endorse any candidate, noted that he is "surprisingly not at all bitter towards Markey" for his last-minute decision.

"I'm reconciled to the events of this campaign, and I have really enjoyed it," he said. "I enjoyed debating and raising some issues, and I stayed in as long as I could. I would have loved to be a congressman, but I think I'll enjoy practicing law for a while."

Barrett made a special effort to address the less affluent southern cities in the Seventh Congressional District — including Malden, Medford, Everett, Chelsea and Revere. At one Winchester debate, he proposed a "Metropolitan Compact" between high-technology firms and high schools in the district to facilitate jobs for the non-college bound.

Barrett said he would have continued his campaign if "the larger givers," including wealthy liberals in the district, had not already thrown their support to Markey.

"My guess is that Markey will now have undivided progressive support and Rotondi will try to occupy the center," Barrett speculated. "It should be a good race."

Although Cong. Markey could not be reached for comment, his press secretary, Peter O'Neil, said that the loss of Barrett merely "changes the players a little bit."

O'Neil said that Markey had expressed "a bit of regret, in that Barrett had run an issue-oriented, upbeat, creative campaign and contributed a great deal to the debate.

"Losing Barrett, you lose someone who covered a broad range of economic, social and economic issues," O'Neil continued. "Rotondi seems to want to make Markey the issue."

Rotondi insisted that the loss of Barrett is only a boon to his campaign. "Officials who earlier endorsed Barrett will now endorse me — this is a step forward. It is now a one-on-one, which is exactly what I wanted."

O'Neil said that Markey and Rotondi actually agree on many of the issues.

But Rotondi charged that Markey has "lost touch on a broad range of issues, including the elderly, public housing, social security and Medicaid."

Lowell Man Is Charged With Larceny Of Motor Vehicle

A brief car chase and then a chase on foot led police to a Lowell man who was charged with larceny of a motor vehicle from O'Connell's Shell station on Main st.

According to a report filed by Officer James Gray, a Woburn man flagged down Gray's cruiser at the intersection of Skillings rd. and Mt. Vernon st., and told police that his 1981 Chevy Monte Carlo had just been stolen from the gas station.

He described the man, and told police that he and a friend had the chased the car off the roadway at Skillings rd. and Mt. Vernon st., before the driver deserted the car and fled up Washington st. by foot, out of sight of police.

Shortly after 1, Officer Steven Fields noticed a man fitting the earlier description near the high school. Officer Gray was notified, and discovered the man running towards Spruce st. He chased him and placed 34-year-old William Kelly under arrest. Kelly was transported to the Bedford VA Hospital.

Open Campus Policy Changes Adopted By School Committee

Last week's Star contained a story about the open campus at Winchester High School. The story concluded that the open campus policy had remained unchanged, despite a lengthy debate at a School Committee meeting.

According to School Committee member Stephen Powers, however, there are two new changes in the policy as a result of that meeting.

According to Powers, freshmen and sophomores can no longer get off first and seventh period study hall to be released from the campus. Under the present policy, they are able to do so with parental consent.

"There were too many parents who were unhappy with having their kids running around town and not studying," Powers said. The School Committee voted for the new policy, 3-2.

Powers stressed that the issue is by no means closed. There will be a complete evaluation of the open campus in September, and the School Committee will hold an open meeting to discuss it at that time.

Sunday, June 24

— A Somerville cyclist, a Medford fisherman and a Jamaica Plain hiker were among the dozen people arrested and charged with trespassing in the Fells Reservoir over the weekend.

According to Police Chief John McHugh, there are "plenty of signs all over the Fells warning people not to trespass." McHugh said that at least a dozen people who ignore those signs are arrested every week-end by detail officers assigned to the Fells.

— An Amberwood dr. youth was treated and released after his bicycle collided with a car at the intersection of Thornberry rd. and Squire rd. No charges have been filed against the driver.

According to police reports, a neighbor reported seeing three youths enter a window of the church shortly after 5:30 p.m. Two police officers surrounded the building and apprehended the youths as they were exiting the rear door.

The minister of the church checked the building thoroughly after he was contacted by police, and nothing was reported damaged or missing.

Friday, June 22

— A Somerville man was charged with operating an uninsured, unregistered motor vehicle with attached plates and no license on a public way. According to police reports, the man's Oldsmobile was stopped after Officer Jonathan Dean noticed it did not have a current inspection sticker. He soon discovered the car lacked many other important papers as well.

— A Manchester rd. resident reported that two yellow plastic lawn chairs were removed from her yard.

— Four youths were charged with breaking the town's by-laws against possession of firecrackers. According to police reports, the youths were lighting bottle rockets and throwing them at cars, before police put a damper on their fun and transported them to Winchester Police station.

Teacher's Luncheon

Two retiring Winchester High School teachers, Jean Dillon (l) and Phyllis Nannis (r), were recently feted during the WHS Parent Faculty Assn.'s annual Teachers' Luncheon. While Dillon and Nannis chatted with Principal Vincent Larocco (above), the other teachers enjoyed wine and cheese in the courtyard of the Church of the Epiphany before the meal. Until New Town Manager Is Appointed

White To Fill In For Groux

Richard White, the town's assistant to the town mananger for the past five years, will take over his former boss's job while the search for a new town manager is on.

White, an Arlington resident, was appointed acting town manager by selectmen Monday night, and will fill in for resigning Town Manager Thomas Groux until a screening committee finds his replacement.

The 31-year-old White has been the assistant to the town manager since September 1980. According to Groux, who was present when the appointment was made, " I can't think of a better choice. Rick is unlimited in his ability to help the town."

White earned a bachelor's degree in government and English from St. Francis College in Biddeford, Maine, and a master's degree in public administration from American University in Washington D.C.

Prior to his appointment as assistant to the town manager, White served as a budget analyst for the town of West Hartford, Conn. White said he does not yet know if he plans to apply for Groux's position permanently.

For Groux, who retires as of July 7, Monday night was his last public meeting. There were tears in his eyes as he listened to the Board of Selectmen laud him. However, Groux also had to listen to the selectmen argue, for almost 45 minutes, about how much vacation pay he should get.

Groux sat stoically throughout the heated discussion, and did not say anything until after the meeting was adjourned. But when he did speak, he pointed out the need for selectmen to consider the issue of vacation pay before they hire the next town manager.

In the end, Selectmen decided that Groux will get eight weeks, four of which he was entitled to take, and four additional weeks in recognition of past service and vacation time that was never taken. At one point, Selectmen Wade Welch made a motion to give Groux one vacation week for each year of service plus one extra week, for a total of 10 weeks.

Welch's motion was defeated, however, and not one of the selectmen was inclined to support it.

"I would like to be more generous," Welch said. "It seems after nine years, we should give him a week a year."

But Selectman Edward O'Connell immediately discouraged that idea. "We are the holders of the public pursestring, and we would like to give you a check for $10,000, but we are not going to," O'Connell said.

"We are setting a precedent here," shouted Selectman Michael Saraco. "We are talking about bonuses, and we will be criticized. I don't think it's the way to handle public funds."

Before the selectmen voted down the proposal by a 4-1 vote, they each had a chance to thank Groux for his years of service to the town.

"Tom has given his heart, his mind, his soul and every ounce of energy to the town," O'Connell noted.

"There has never been a hint of scandal in the town government since Groux has been here, and we're very lucky to have had him," added Welch.

Brass Quintet To Perform At Third Cloister Garden Concert On July 10

The gates of the Parish of the Epiphany's cloister garden will open on Thursday, July 10, at 8:30 to welcome music lovers to this summer's third Cloister Garden Concert. This week, The New Renaissance Brass Quintet will perform pieces ranging from Bach to the Beatles.

The quintet was formed by a group of friends, all professional free-lance musicians, to promote quality performances of the finest brass chamber literature. Their music attests to the 20th Century's new renaissance in literature and performance for and by brass musicians. The quintet continually seeks new works for its ensemble along with novel approaches to old favorites.

Thursday's concert will include two suites of Renaissance dances, one by Pylman Susato and the other by Giles Farnaby. The quintet will also play transcriptions of music by J.S. Bach and other baroque composers. Music of later periods will include Victor Ewalds' Third Brass Quintet,, a work in the Russian romantic style, and The Malcolm Arnold Quintet, a light English piece. There will also be pieces from "The American Brass Band Journal," a collection dating from the 1840s and 50s, followed by some Beatles songs.

Music has played a constant and fulfilling part in the lives of the five musicians. Trumpeter Dennis Alves graduated from Boston University, where he studied with Roger Voisin. He was a fellow at Tanglewood and is principal trumpet with the Boston Ballet. He has also played with the Boston Symphony, the Opera Company of Boston, and the Pro Arte Chamber Orchestra.

David Bannard, the concert's organizer and also a trumpet player, is a member of the Pro Arte Chamber Orchestra, the Chamber Orchestra of the Commonwealth, the Brockton Symphony, and has played with the Opera Company of Boston and Opera New England. He graduated from Indiana University where he studied with Louis Davidson and he has also worked with Roger Voisin.

Thomas Beal, French horn player, has studied with Thomas Newell at New England Conservatory. He has played with the Santa Fe Opera and the Pro Arte Chamber Orchestra.

The group's trombone player, Don Davis, is a graduate of the New England Conservatory where he studied with John Swallow. He is a member of the Portland Symphony and has played with the Pro Arte Chamber Orchestra, the Opera Company of Boston and the Brockton Symphony.

Tuba player Don Rankin, graduated from the New England Conservatory where he studied with Toby Hanks. He has played with the Pro Arte Chamber Orchestra, the Brockton Symphony and the Beacon Brass Quintet.

Music and the reflections of brass, torchlight and fountains in the cloister gardean will compose a refreshing evening for the community. More information about the concert may be obtained by calling the church office. Tickets will be available at the gate.

Exciting Adventures Of An Older Sister

By TERRY MAROTTA

When I was little, my sister seemed to me the most exciting person it was possible to know. She was, as the Readers' Digest used to say, My Most Memorable Character. It was like having Indiana Jones living right in your house with you.

What I mean is, thing happened to my sister. She attracted adventures, I guess you could say, and she got into trouble a lot. Not the serious kind of course, but the go-to-your-room kind that comes of venturing out onto the roof of your four-story house. The kind that comes of stripping your baby sister and painting her tip-to-toe with your mother's lipsticks.

She was different from me in important ways. Her thoughts moved in more exotic and elaborate channels. Older by two years, she could think up all kinds of great things for us to do.

She found this dead cat behind a neighbor's garage once, I remember, and made a kind of project of him. We visited him daily, to mark the progress of his decay. I suppose it was grotesque in a way, thus to monitor a poor creature's gradual return to the soil, but we thought it was swell. Everybody did. The whole neighborhood clamored to be taken on the Tour. It was big stuff; and it was the sort of amusement only she was capable of coming up with.

I wasn't like her at all. My idea of a good time was to look at my safety pin collection; to follow my mother around as she made the beds. I thought it was fun to take a notebook and color in between the lines, so that after using up three hours and a whole pack of crayons, I had a single sheet of paper filled solidly with intense and white-knuckled coloring.

I put my stuffed animals to bed for fun, and then got them up again. I gave them baths and haircuts. I lined them up in rows and taught them school.

We were different, all right, and the interesting thing is, we still are. Neither of us has changed much since those early days.

She went off to college and wrote term papers on catalepsy and premature burial. I followed her and took notes on my notes for home study.

The first summer I had an apartment, I spent my time reading and waiting for the phone to ring. The first summer she had one, she talked a potential mugger into giving her some of HIS money, through tears, a tall tale and some all-around quick thinking.

The child is father to the man, all right. It's just like those poets used to say: as the twig is bent, so grows the tree.

My sister lives in Florida now. Her adventurous soul took her a thousand miles from the region she was born in.

I live not far from Boston, a few minutes' drive from the places sanctified for me by the sacraments of childhood.

She became the assistant to a private investigator. She still has adventures.

I became a writer. I still don't.

I take notes on my notes, just like in the old days. I fill up sheets of paper even now, and with the same white-knuckled earnestness, only using words instead of colors.

We're the same as we always were. I still follow my mother around. She still leads a life that Indiana Jones would envy.

And I wouldn't have it any other way.

The first summer she had an apartment, she talked a potential mugger into giving her some of HIS money.

Beacon Hill Roll Call

This report records votes on key roll calls from the week of June 18-22.

LEGAL FEES (H 5669) — House 81-62, gave initial approval to a bill paying $41,000 to Raymond Palmegiano to cover his legal expenses incurred while defending himseslf in a criminal case brought against him by the state.

Supporters explained that Palmegiano was brought to trial by the state after being accused of wrongdoing by Stanley Barczak and was found innocent. They noted Palmegiano was a loyal and dedicated Revenue Dept. employee who went through a rough period and claimed the state has a responsibility to pay his legal fees.

Opponents said the bill sets a bad precedent and urged the House to address the entire problem of legal fees for state and private employees.

A "Yea" vote is for the bill giving the $40,000. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Rep. Sherman Saltmarsh voted yes.

411 (H 5893) — House 88-57, rejected an amendment to a bill allowing New England Telephone to charge for directory assistance calls made from business phones. The bill allows 10 free calls for each separate business line a company has. The amendment would exempt companies with just one business phone from all directory assistance charges.

Amendment supporters argued the exemption would help small businesses which could be severely hurt by 411 charges.

Amendment opponents said the exemption would help very few people but could easily open the door for abuse by other businesses seeking to avoid the 411 charges.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment exempting businesses with one phone. A "Nay" vote is against the exemption.

Saltmarsh voted no.

MORE 411 (H 5893) — House, 127-22, gave final approval and sent to the Senate the bill allowing N.E. Tel. to charge for directory assistance calls made from business phones. The bill allows 10 free calls from each line a business has and requires that a percentage of the revenues from this new charge be used to reduce the costs of residential and business phone service.

Supporters said the bill was fair and claimed that because of the divestiture, if the 411 charge is not approved, N.E. Tel. will have to raise residential rates.

Some opponents said they are opposed to any 411 charges while others said this bill was unfair to small businesses.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

ART INTERNS (H 5555) — House 98-46, rejected a bill establishing a $1 million student intern program for the theater management and administration at the Wang Center for the Performing Arts. The measure provides that Massachusetts college students be allowed to participate in the program free of charge or at a reduced rate.

Supporters argued it was a worthwhile program and noted theater management can only be taught at a major center for the performing arts like the Wang.

Opponents said the bill sets a bad precedent, claimed there should be public hearings on the bill, and argued there were more important intern programs on which to spend the money.

A "Yea" vote is for the intern program. A "Nay" vote is agianst it.

Saltmarsh voted yes.

TRANSPORTATION BUILDING (H 5999) — House 114-31, gave initial approval to a bill authorizing the Theater District Limited Partnership, a private partnership, to lease 50,000 square feet of floor space in the new Park Square Transportation Building for up to 36 years. The complicated 13-page bill allows the partnership to rent space to retailers and restaurants which would be allowed to serve alcoholic beverages. Another provision requires the partnership to pay an annual rent to the state of 10 percent of the gross receipts or 50 percent of the net profits, whichever is greater and requires a minimum rent of $50,000 annually for the first five years, $100,000 annually for the next five years, and then provides that the rent be increased by the annual percentage increase in the consumer's price index. The partnership also requires that the state receive 80 percent of the net profit from the operation of the parking garage.

Supporters, noting the bill is a model one which creates a partnership between the state and the private sector, said it will revitalize the neighborhood with a Quincy Market-like area and evening activities which will generate increased sales, meals and income taxes. They said the bill contains many safeguards to protect the state's interests and to insure that only quality businesses operate in the building.

Opponents said the bill sets a bad precedent by allowing the sale of alcohol in a state building. They suggested the building be sold outright to private developers and claimed the partnership in question may still owe the state thousands of dollars in back taxes. Many opponents said there are still too many unanswered questions about the bill.

Saltmarsh voted no.

$8.07 BILLION — Senate 34-1, gave final approval and sent to the House its $8.07 billion version of a fiscal 1985 budget. The House rejected the Senate version and insisted on its own $8.12 billion package, resulting in a House-Senate conference committee being appointed to hammer out a compromise version. The Senate version had come out of the Senate Ways and Means Committee with a price tag of $7.89 billion and on the floor, senators added some 125 amendments totalling $18 million.

Supporters defended the package as a lean and fiscally responsible one which provides essential services and delivers increased local aid.

Opponents said the budget was loaded with waste, patronage jobs, and pork barrel projects for favored senators.

A "Yea" vote is for the budget. A "Nay" vote is against it.

Sen. Richard Kraus voted yes.

INCREASES — Senate 26-7, rejected an order requiring that if a senator proposes an increase in the proposed budget, he or she must also propose a decrease at least equal to the proposed hike.

Supporters argued the order would make senators more fiscally responsible and insure that they consider the total budget picture.

Opponents said the amendment is anti-democratic and ties senators' hands during what should be an open and flexible process.

A "Yea" vote is for the amendment requiring an equal decrease. A "Nay" vot is against it.

Kraus voted no.

DAY CARE — Senate 18-12, rejected an amendment providing continued day care services and a state subsidized sliding-fee scale, for Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) recipients who get a job.

Supporters said it is ridiculous that welfare mothers who get a job lose day care services and noted that the amendment would encourage more to get jobs.

Opponents sympathized with the situation but said there are others in the welfare system who are more in need of the money than those who are able to get jobs.

Kraus voted yes.

RETURN MONEY — Senate 29-7, rejected an amendment requiring that for each day after July 10 the legislature remains in session, each legislator must refund to the state $82.19 plus daily travel and living allowances.

Supporters, noting the $82.19 is the daily pay for a legislator, said the amendment would encourage an early end to the session and would save taxpayers a great deal of money.

Opponents said the amendment was frivolous and claimed the legislature still has important work to do and should not be prohibited from remaining in session or going back into session later in the year.

Kraus voted no.

LOCAL AID — Senate 22-12 rejected an amendment providing that if state revenues exceed the projected $4.8 billion, then 40 percent of the excess (no less than $100,000 and no more than $75 million) must be distributed under the state lottery formula as additional local aid to cities and towns.

Supporters said the amendment insures that local communities, which provide most services and need additional money, will share in additional growth taxes.

Opponents said it is not a good idea to earmark these funds which would not be ready for distribution until fiscal 1986 or 1987. They noted that in 1983, without such an amendment, communities received more than 40 percent of growth revenues.

Letters To the Editor

Further Improvements Encouraged In Downtown Winchester

EDITOR OF THE STAR:

To the town of Winchester - Congratulations!

New lights, new walkways, new stores, equal new pride in downtown Winchester! We all owe a lot of gratitude to the people behind this movement and I intend to support those that encourage these improvements by shopping more in Winchester.

I jog daily through the town and enjoy the many improvements but wonder what is being done about some of the following areas:

1. Store signs - are there going to be guidelines for acceptable signage? Will there be similar guidelines for the use of window posters? I feel there should be strong guidelines! Now it's time for all the stores to put pride back into Winchester as some have already!!

2. Police booth - are there plans to update the police booth (phone booth) that is by the traffic circle! If not, I feel it should remain but updated to reflect the new look. Maybe our local architect, Phil Locatto, might lend a hand here.

3. Wine & cheese store - is it time to have one here in Winchester? Perhaps right across from the new police booth to help satisy those skeptics.

I have many other questions such as plans for the train station, where all the new walkways will go, plans for the common, etc. Maybe The Winchester Star might consider a weekly column dedicated to just these subjects soliciting residents and store owners' feelings and responses from the responsible town departments.

Psychology Student Cited

Suzanne Virnelli, daughter of Frank and Judith Virnelli of Wedgemere ave. received a citation for her outstanding work in a course on social psychology this winter.

Virnelli is a 1982 graduate of Winchester High School where she received several scholastic awards and also was a member of the track, gymnastics and soccer teams.

Citation winners are quite unusual among the 4,000 undergraduates on the Dartmouth campus, as members of the faculty are invited to submit citation reports only when a student's work is sufficiently distinguished to merit special recognition. Such citations are rare, and relatively few are submitted each term.

Next Week's Star To Have New Look And New Section

Next week, your Winchester Star will have a new look and a new section, both of which will help make the paper easier to read and more useful to you and our advertisers.

Beginning with the issue of July 5, The Star will include a special weekly insert called "Community Calendar." This new magazine-sized section will include listings of events of interest to you and your family in Winchester and in our surrounding communities.

The new section will also bring you special Reader Recipes and our popular Travel section. And the new section will also include all of the classified and help wanted advertisements from The Star as well as from The Arlington Advocate and The Belmont Citizen in a new, easy-to-handle size.

The new look will be a slightly wider and taller paper size. The Star is switching to the new format as part of a national newspaper standardization program to give all newspapers the same advertisement measurements.

The recipes, which will run every other week alternating with the Travel section, will focus on seasonal dishes such as cookout favorites in July and Christmas cookies in December. Every issue of "Community Calendar" will have forms describing the type of recipe we're looking for, when we're going to print them and forms for you to fill out to send in your favorite recipe for that particular season.

Readers are invited to submit recipes for the July 12 issue special on cookout and grill recipes. Recipes must be typed or printed, double-spaced, and mailed at least one week in advance to: The Recipe Editor, Century Newspapers, 3 Church st., Winchester, 01890. We will use as many recipes as we can.

The Travel section will continue to bring you tales of and tips on adventures near and far, ranging from Hawaiian beaches and African safaris to Boston concerts and White Mountain hiking trails. As usual, we will print stories from our readers and others who have traveled to exciting places, so if you have a story to tell and pictures to go along with it, write to the Travel Editor, Century Newspapers, 3 Church st., Winchester.

Items for the Calendar section must be sent to The Star office one week in advance. A handy coupon for writing out Calendar information is included in today's paper and will be included in every Calendar section. Pictures will be printed on a space-available basis.

The new format will produce only a subtle change in the way your paper looks.

Instead of a six-column paper, The Star will be a seven-column paper. This change will bring The Star into compliance with papers around the country who are converting to what is known as the Standard Advertising Unit (SAU). The aim is to make it easier for advertisers to plan, create, order, and pay for advertising.

Column widths vary so much now from paper to paper that an ad agency or business planning to advertise in more than one paper might have to produce several different size advertisements. With the new SAU system, an advertisement for one publication will fit all others who use the SAU format.

The Star is building its pages around a column that is 2 1/16" wide. Despite the increase in size, there will not be an increase in the cost of advertising, according to Star Publisher C. Peter Jorgensen.

"Although advertisers will have to adjust the shape of their ads, the actual cost figure will be the same," he said. "Our rates are not being raised."

SPEED ON THE BASEPATHS — One of the keys to the Summer Sachems' early success (they're 5-1 so far) is the team's speed on the basepaths. In the first of a two game series against Woburn, Brian Carroll stole third in the first inning to set up an early Sachem run.

He's Safe!

Sachems Go 5-1 With Two Wins Over Woburn

The Summer Sachems have found the formula for success — a jigger of aggressive baserunning mixed with two parts of overwhelming pitching.

Those two assets have brought the summer squad a 5-1 record less than three weeks into the season, and gave them two wins over arch-rival Woburn this week.

In the two Woburn games, the Summer Sachems set up all but four of their 13 runs with steals and the hit-and-run. They had a half-dozen steals, took advantage of passed balls to get four bases and one run, and used the hit-and-run four times, once to score the winning run.

"We tend to do those things," said coach Larry Crowley. "I like to keep them moving, I like to keep them hitting the ball away. Unless the other team has an outstanding catcher, we're going to challenge them."

While the Sachem baserunners have been challenging the catchers, their pitchers are challenging the hitters.

The two Woburn games this week featured the two aces of the staff so far — Tim Budrewicz and Gareth Kenton, who have all five wins between them.

The pair struck out 26 batters in the two games, and with stuff like that were easily able to hold the Tanners to only two runs in the first contest and one in the second.

The Woburn-Winchester contests were typically heated battles between the neighboring towns' teams.

Things got so heated by the second game that tempers were almost non-existent. Two players — one from each team — were ejected in the second game. Both batters had gone after the opposing pitchers for throws the batters thought were aimed for their heads.

Coach Crowley spent Tuesday night on the telephone, screaming at league officials about the umpires who made questionable calls in each game — a dropped ball that was ruled an out in the first contest, a tag that missed the runner in the second.

"It was a typical Winchester-Woburn rivalry," said Crowley after he had cooled down. "All the emotional aspects were there on both sides."

Not only was their emotion, there was some good baseball.

The second game Monday night left players, fans and coaches on both sides chewing their fingernails, as Budrewicz and Woburn's Kevin Buckley got down to a serious pitching duel. For all but one of the game's six innings, the two teams were only a run apart.

But Budrewicz was just a little bit faster than Buckley, striking out 12 as opposed to Buckley's five. And that was the difference, as the Sachems walked away with the win, 3-1.

The Sachems got their runs from a combination of speed and power.

The speed contributed two runs — in the first, when Robbie Collins punched the ball with the hit-and-run signal on to score Gareth Kenton, and in the fourth, when Kenton singled on the hit-and-run to score Budrewicz.

Budrewicz supplied the power, slamming a homer to deep right-center in the sixth for a Sachem insurance run. The Sachems needed that insurance since the fifth, when the Tanners made it 2-1 on a pair of singles and a wild pitch.

The Sachems didn't have the offense in the second game that they did in the first, when they scored 10 runs to demolish the Tanners.

The pitching was similar in both games — Kenton, who pitched all seven innings of the first contest, struck out 14, with three strike-outs in the first and sixth innings, and two in the fourth, fifth and seventh.

It was the Sachem batters who looked changed from game to game. In the first contest, the batters jumped all over Kenton's Tanner counterpart.

They got four runs in the first inning alone, putting the first two men on with an error and a walk, and then moving everybody around thanks to a hit-and-run and a steal from Brian Carroll, a single and a steal from Kenton and a long sacrifice fly RBI from Mike White.

The Sachems went up 5-0 in the second courtesy of a single from Bill Ford and a couple of errors.

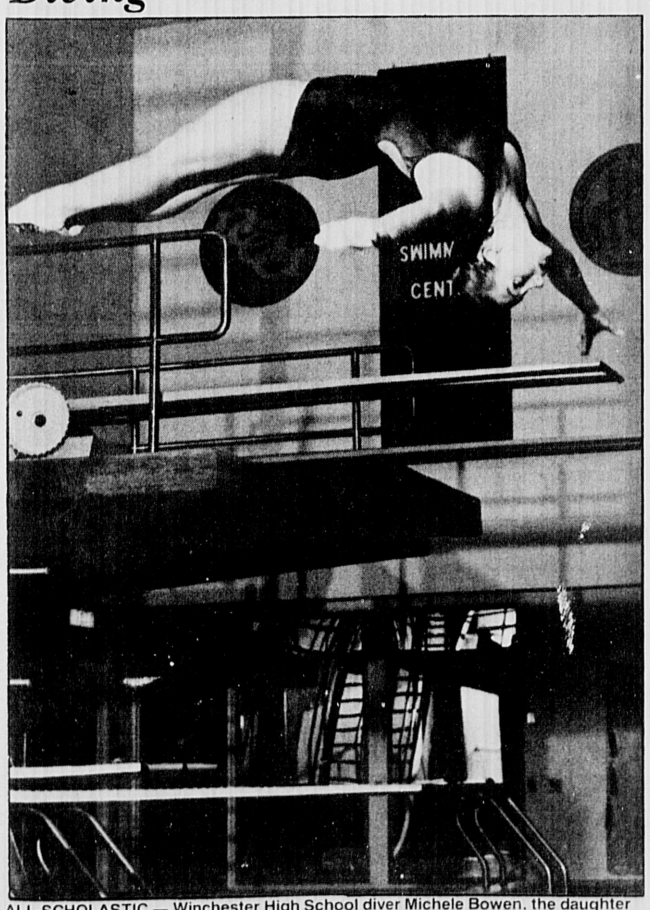

The Tanners nanaged to get their only two runs of the game in the fourth, as Kenton struggled briefly. The Sachem pitcher gave up two walks and a double before regaining his control and striking out two.

No matter. The Sachems had three insurance runs anyway, and then got three more in the fifth and two more in the sixth.

Kenton got the three in the fifth, as he pounded a home run with Brian Carroll and Scott Binding on base.

Baserunning got the two in the sixth. Ford and Binding reached base, then pulled a double steal to get to second and third.

Diving

ALL-SCHOLASTIC — Winchester High School diver Michele Bowen, the daughter of Reginald and Lorraine Bowen of Thornberry rd., was recently honored as a Boston Globe All-Scholastic. Bowen, a senior who missed most of her junior year as a diver due to jaw surgery, came back this season to go undefeated and win both the sectional and the state championships. She trains at Harvard College with John Walker and will be going on to Salem State next spring.

Babe Ruth All-Star Teams Are Chosen

The Winchester Babe Ruth All-Star teams, those perennial post-season contenders, have been chosen for the summer tournament season.

The 14-and-15-year-old squad will start playing on July 7 at Manchester field. They'll be taking on Melrose at 1 p.m.

The 13-year-old team will begin tomorrow at 5:30 at Manchester Field, also against Melrose.

On the 13-year-old squad are David Romboli, Shane Wyse, Jack O'Callaghan, David Ducharme, Neil Harrington, Tony Pascione, Vandy French, Gino Giangrande, James Touhy, Alan Macdonald, Scott Garvey, Mike Haddad, Mark Russo, Dan O'Connell and Chris Lee.

Coaches are Russ Wyse and Dan O'Connell.

B Team Wins Title

After being informed that they had won the division title, the Winchester Tennis Assn. men's B team in the Central Division of the Spring League was notified that they needed to play the Wellesley Tennis Assn. team to break a tie for first place.

Though disappointed that they had to play again, the team was determined that they would prove to Wellesley that Winchester had the most outstanding team in the division.

Thursday evening Ralph Bates and Bill Wolfe overpowered their opponents 6-2, 6-1, as they continued their unbeaten record.

Don Ellis and Hank Skehan won their sets 6-4, 7-5, as they reversed an earlier match against a highly aggressive pair.

Though it was a long ride to Wellesley, the Winchester team was as gracious as possible to a team that wanted to take away their prize.

For the second and final time, the Division coordinator notified Winchester that the Winchester Tennis Assn.'s B team was the champion.

Lacrosse Action Today

Fast break into summer '84 with the Recreation Dept. The action takes place every Thursday evening starting tonight, from 5 to 8 p.m. at Manchester Field.

All interested candidates should register at the Recreation Dept. The league will start Thursday, June 28th, and continue for 10 weeks.

Participants are required to bring their own stick. Helmets and goalie equipment will be provided by the Recreation Dept.

To develop and improve lax skills, get out and have fun with friends, and work on weak and strong points, come down tonight and join the many who'll be playing "the fastest game on foot" here in town.

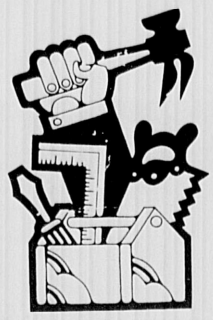

Excellence

ALL-STAR — Winchester's George Stewart is one of the Northeast Regional Vocational School's leading pitchers this season, as the junior compiled a 1.27 ERA and a 5-1 record with three saves. Stewart, a CAC All-Star, helped Northeast Voke to a 14-2 record, which made them league co-champs and will send them to the state tournament.

Scholarship Money

KIDS' CORNER GIFT — Kids' Corner Director Betty Wolsky (l) accepts a $1,650 check from Gerry DeGeorge, social service chairman of the EnKa Society. This is the second year EnKa has given a full tuition scholarship to Winchester Child Care Inc., known as Kids' Corner, for its general scholarship fund.

★Summer

has to plan her time a little more than most kids because she's going to summer school.

Summer school is boring, she said, but not as much as regular school which is "real, real boring."

But there is one summer school program that kids don't ever think is boring.

"Kids enjoy going to school during the summer with the College Gate program," said College Gate coordinator Rita Macadino.

College Gate, for kindergarten through third graders who have been judged gifted or talented, features 55-minute sessions each day on anything from art to oceanography. College Gate, a private program, has five or six campuses throughout the state and one of these is located at the Lynch School.

But even though the students at College Gate are extremely curious, learn rapidly and are highly motivated, said Macadino, they can still get bored with school. "We try to make things a little summerish," said Macadino.

For children who love to play outdoors, the Recreation Dept. has several programs for different age groups.

For young children, Tricia Intravia runs Camp Sunshine and Camp Superfriends with trips to Benson's Wild Animal Farm, to see a magician show, and to the North Shore Music Theater to see Jack and the Beanstalk, in addition to the regular weekly activities of games and fun.

Kids ages 9 through 12 can participate in the Recreation Dept.'s mini-camps. Each of these camps are a week long, with each week following a different theme, such as Sports Week, Arts in the Parks, and Adventure Week. And once each week, the mini-campers go on a field trip that fits in with that week's theme.

For older kids, grades 7 through 12, the Adventure Connection offers activities that would add excitement to any summer. A canoe trip on the Saco River, a hiking trip to Mt. Washington, a whale watch, and trips to the beach are only some of the activities planned.

Like the mini-camps, the Adventure Connection has a different theme each week and activities such as competitive games during Olympic Week, lacrosse techniques and scrimmages during the Lacrosse Clinic Week and video skits during Recreation TV week.

The Recreation Dept. staff sees no difficulty in filling up all the mini-camp sessions but say it is harder to reach the older age group the Adventure Connection is aimed at.

"With that age group, they're not sure what they're going to do the next second, never mind planning a week in advance," said Jil Gediman, director of the mini-camps and the Adventure Connection.

The Youth Center is also open this summer for kids in seventh grade and older. Kids can drop into this room in McCall Junior High to play pool and ping pong or just to socialize.

Kids looking to improve their tennis or boating skills can look to private organizations for help. Winchester Indoor Tennis offers clinics in the morning for children ages 8 to 18. A tennis pro will be there to teach the children, stressing conditioning and training as well as strategy.

Kids can learn how to sail and then use their skills in races if their parents belong to the Winchester Boat Club. Sailing lessons are given in the morning and races are held in the afternoon and on weekends.

The Boat Club also offers swimming lessons and the kids can join the swim team there to participate in races. These races are not just against themselves but against other clubs.

Not all kids can play all summer long. Some need jobs and the Recreation Dept. runs a summer Job Bank to help out these kids. Both students in search of jobs and employers or private citizens who have jobs to offer fill out applications with the Job Bank and then Job Bank coordinator Karen Buckley matches the kids to the jobs based on interests or location.

No matter what the child likes to do in the summer, it seems that somewhere in town, the opportunity is there to do it. With so many chances for reading, learning, playing and working available to children those long summer months get shorter all the time.

★Election

Evelyn. "I voted no. I'm paying enough in taxes."

The sewer use fee was passed at the spring Town Meeting and is expected to bring in $490,000 next year. The 65-cents-per-100-cubic-foot sewer fee will be based on water consumption, with 90 percent of the water used figured as sewage.

Those pushing for the fee at Town Meeting argued that the fee, along with a 35-cent increase in the water rate, would make the $1.6 million Water and Sewer Dept. self-supporting.

They also noted that with a sewer fee, property-tax-exempt organizations — most notably Winchester Hospital — would have to pay for the sewer system they used.

On the opposite side, there were arguments with the $1.6 million figure, since it includes pensions, benefits, even the cost of a cop patrolling the reservoir.

And most vocally, opponents argued that a sewer fee was just another way to raise taxes, a way around Proposition 2½'s limits on increasing property taxes.

The comments most often heard from the few who attended the polls was an echo of the voice that passed the Prop. 2½.

"They should lower the property tax by the amount of the sewer tax," said one voter who asked not to be identified. "I haven't heard anybody say they're going to do that yet."

Of course, any comments at the polls were few and far between. Most of the poll workers simply talked among themselves.

"We've had about seven people an hour," said Margaret Govostes, working the table at Precinct 3. "It's been a lo-o-o-o-ng day."

It was also a fairly expensive day, as far as elections go. Although Town Clerk Carolyn Ward hasn't come up with the final cost yet — she still has to add up the bills for police details, school custodians, ballot-box mechanics and poll workers — she estimated the election would cost at least $3,000. That's at least $2.25 a vote.

All of which came out of residents' pockets, just as the sewer use tax will.

But if the residents didn't vote, they shouldn't grumble about paying the sewer use tax, commented one voter.

"It's important to come down here," said Diana Annese of Swanton st., who come down to the polls because "I have a neighbor who was so strongly 'No' that he kept reminding me.

"People will complain about paying," she said, "but if they didn't come down, they shouldn't say anything."

★Intersection

two to three feet of private property on Wildwood st. to allow for the middle turning lane, and would be funded by both state and federal money.

Selectman Alan Macdonald suggested the possibility of appealing to the state to have red arrows in both directions at the same time. Groux explained that it had been tried.

"For a short time, the state did have the red light in both directions, but it was only for two seconds long," he said. "There was some trouble with it, though, because the equipment was old and there was a problem with compliance with federal rules for highway funds."

Groux said that the state is "willing to consider changes" but wanted permission first from the neighbors whose property will be effected.

Selectman Edward O'Connell said "we have an obligation to bring this matter to the attention of the abutters," and suggested that selectmen defer any decisions until those neighbors were present.

But until that hearing, residents are going to have to live with the dangerous intersection.

"If we can cut the significant number of accidents in half with the new plan, then we will accomplish something," concluded Ciarcia. "We're talking about the busiest street in Winchester, and it is way below design standards. The idea is to put together a safer and more effective idea. Traffic lights are for a smooth flow of traffic, not to stop traffic."

Selectmen Chairman Mark Lombardi promised the residents that action would be taken soon on the intersection, and that another hearing, with Wildwood abutters present, would be rescheduled.

Citizens Will Be Delegates To Freeze Voter '84 Convention

The Winchester Citizens for a Mutual Nuclear Weapons Freeze will send five delegates to the Freeze Voter '84 Endorsement Convention to be held this Saturday in Newton.

The five local citizens selected to attend are Agnes Connolly, Barbara Cunningham, Rhonda Rios Kravitz, Ruth Terzaghi, and Steve Wirtz. They will join 600 delegates selected from local Freeze groups throughout the state and 300 other disarmament activists at Aquinas Junior College on June 30 to hear from the candidates for the Senate and the House of Representatives, and to flex their political muscle through their endorsements.

Wirtz, a local Freeze coordinator, explained that "By having this endorsing convention, we are striving to make the Freeze movement a political force to be reckoned with by our elected politicians."

At Mass. Jr. Classical League Competition

High School Latin Club Takes Third

Winchester High School Latin students recently captured third place at the 1984 Massachusetts Junior Classical League Convention in Wakefield. Twenty-two Latin students from all four levels of Latin competed in an array of academic, artistic and athletic contests. Students were accompanied by Latin teachers Linda Ciccariello and Linda Lacey.

In order to determine the place finishers, schools competing are placed into two groups: those schools which have 20 or fewer students participating and those schools which have more than 20 participating.

From 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. students ardently compete in contests. For most contests, points are awarded for first through fourth place.

The number of points vary according to the contest. For instance, a first place finish in an oral academic contest earns 20 points; first place for creative writing earns 10 points; first place for handicrafts earns 7 points and first place for athletic earns 5 points.

Winchester won places in the following categories:

Oral Academic:
Level I - Robert Gaeta - 1st
Level II - Linda Guild - 3rd
Level III - Elizabeth Doherty - 2nd

The Executive Board of the Massachusetts Junior Classical League welcomes Sheila Mawn, Latin II student at Winchester High School, as the new 1984-85 president of the league. Mawn was elected the day of the convention. Her election means that the state convention will be held at Winchester next spring.

Mawn was asked how she feels about hosting a convention for more than 500 Latin students. "Although it will be a lot of work, I think it will be a worthwhile experience," she confidently said.

OUTSTANDING — Elizabeth Doherty was awarded a plaque for her outstanding scholarship and service in Latin and Winchester High School. Doherty is an A student in Latin III, is publications editor of the Massachusetts Jr. Classical League newsletter and is treasurer of the WHS Latin Club.

Statistician Finds Way To Predict Heart Attacks

By Karen Bradbury

Doctors in the emergency room faced with the critical decision of whether or not to place a patient in the coronary care unit can now use a mathematical formula developed by Winchester resident Ralph D'Agostino to determine if the patient is in immediate danger of a heart attack.

The formula makes possible more accurate judgment about whether a patient is suffering acute coronary heart disease or not, avoiding inappropriate admissions, higher medical costs and an unnecessarily frightened patient.

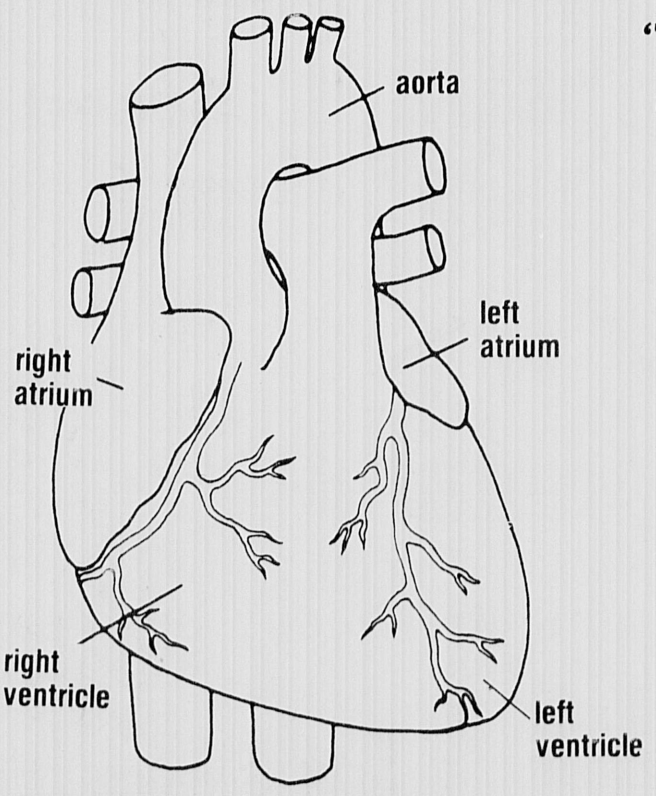

"For every two individuals that are admitted to the coronary care unit, only one turns out to have acute coronary heart disease," said D'Agostino, a professor of mathematics and statistics as well as public health at Boston University, where he did his undergraduate and masters work.

"Think of each admission (into the coronary care unit) as a $4,000 price tag," said D'Agostino. "There are approximately one quarter of a million inappropriate admissions across the country. Suddenly we're looking at billions of dollars in cost.

"If this procedure is used there are potentially millions of dollars to be saved," said D'Agostino.

In a five-year study that began at Boston City Hospital and later included six hospitals around New England, the overadmissions into the coronary care unit were reduced by 30 percent by using D'Agostino's formula.

The formula also helps avoid the trauma faced by individuals and families of individuals inappropriately admitted to the coronary care unit.

'There are approximately one quarter of a million inappropriate admissions (to coronary care units) across the country.'

—Dr. Ralph D'Agostino

D'Agostino, who received his PhD in statistics from Harvard, published his results in an article in the May 17 issue of the New England Journal of Medicine. D'Agostino's was the lead article, which represents the major medical contribution of that time period.

D'Agostino's formula is used in addition to normal procedures a doctor would go through when a patient arrives at the hospital with symptoms of a heart attack.

In developing the formula, D'Agostino considered all the questions doctors normally ask of heart attack patients and then picked seven pieces of information he felt were most necessary to calculate if a person should be admitted to the coronary care unit.

In an interview, the doctor asks the patient what the most important symptom is. If the answer is chest pain, the most important symptom of acute cardiac heart disease, the doctor assigns that answer a value of two. If the patient names some other symptom, the answer is given a value of one.

The location of the pain is another of the seven parameters, with the chest and left arm earning a two and elsewhere receiving

Freeman Awarded

The Maine Audubon Society presented a special award to Ruth Moulton Freeman honoring the tenth anniversary of her family's gift of Gilsland Farm to the people of Maine. The award was presented on June 19 at Maine Audubon's main office building.

Gilsland Farm is a 75 acre sanctuary of woods, fields and saltmarsh alongside the Presumpscot River in Falmouth. Situated within sight of Portland's skyline, the property provides important open space for recreation to thousands of area residents annually. Also the headquarters of the Maine Audubon Society, Gilsland Farm is open free of charge every day of the year.

Ruth Moulton Freeman, now of Winchester, is the daughter of the late David Edward Moulton of Falmouth. Mr. Moulton was an avid, amateur horticulturist who planted a wide variety of ornamental trees, shrubs and flowers around Gilsland Farm. These plantings - especially the peonies, which bloom at the end of June - are of special interest to Gilsland Farm visitors. They are easily enjoyed from the 2.5 miles of footpaths that lead through the property.

Cooperative Theatre For Children Makes Every Kid A Star

By Malcolm Campbell

At one time or another, nearly everyone dreams of stardom, of the silver screen and footlights. But Tinsel-town and Broadway haven't got a thing on Winchester; the Cooperative Theater for Children gives Winchester's children the opportunity to shine as stars.

The Cooperative Theater has, through its five-year history, become an educational and cultural institution in Winchester. The theater's director, Catherine Alexander, believes that the children's theater is a big selling point for the town. She says she has heard of people moving to Winchester because of the theater as well as because of other amenities.

"I think that there are a tremendous number of people who boast about the fact that we in Winchester have a children's theater," Alexander says with pride.

"To have a children's theater as successful as ours, is something good for the town."

Town residents also have the additional benefit of being able to see quality theater year after year as many more people than just the parents of the children involved attend each sell-out performance.

The company is privately run and is unaffiliated with the public schools. A modest tuition charge of the $75 along with the proceeds from ticket sales covers the entire cost of each season. Alexander feels that the cost of the program to parents is very small considering the quality and extent of instruction provided.

Each spring the company puts on a full-scale theatrical production and, in the process, the students are taught virtually every aspect of dance, music, and drama by the professionally trained staff.

Alexander, who adapts and directs all productions, insists that each child learn every song and every line of each play. In this way, Alexander says, one or two children aren't singled out as stars. She says that when she puts on a play she makes sure it contains 60 stars. She actively encourages each character to reach his or her own potential.

In addition to the thorough technical instruction the children receive, they learn skills rarely taught in elementary school which will stay with them throughout their lives.

Self-discipline is one such skill which the children must develop if they are to succeed in the company.

Alexander demands a lot from her students and they have to make some hard choices. Each child must be willing to make a commitment of three afternoons a week for three months; Alexander does not tolerate absences.

The live performances also instill poise and self-confidence in the children, according to Alexander. "I can't tell you how many parents have told me that their children's performance in school has greatly improved," she says.

I definitely feel that this experience is something I wish every single child in every single town could have," says Alexander. "I think it should be part of their educational process and I think that what we are giving the children of Winchester is something that they will have for the rest of their lives."

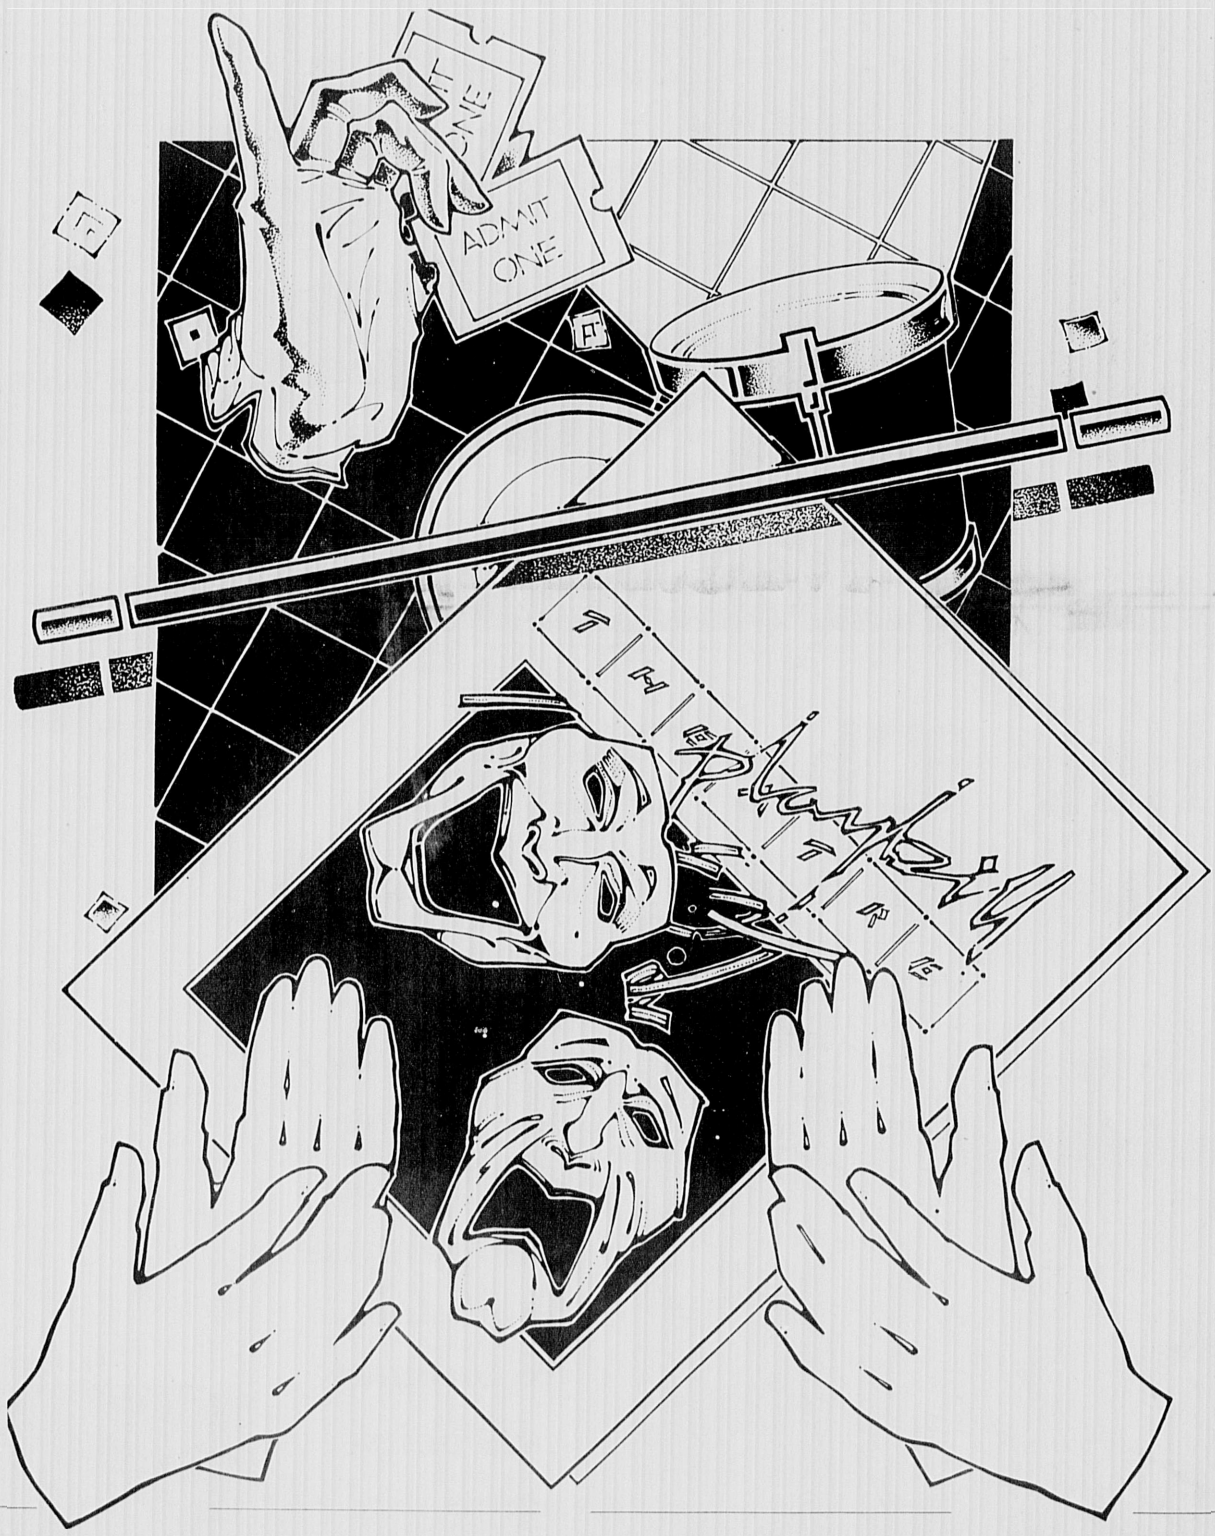

The Cooperative Theater came to Winchester in 1979, due largely to the effort of Cathy Alexander. A former Winchester school teacher and current vice chairperson of the School Committee, Alexander's interest in children and education runs long and deep.

Alexander had been thinking of opening a children's theater for several years when finally in 1979 she decided to make a go of it. She brought together a group of skilled theatrical professionals, located some space in the First Congregational Church, placed a few ads, and hoped for the best.

Not knowing what to expect, Cathy likens the opening of the company to throwing a party and having no idea how many people will show up. But the town's response was swift and eager.

Even though enrollment is limited to grades 4 through 6, 45 students applied the first season, an indication of Winchester's desire for a children's theater. The three scheduled performances of the play, "Charlotte's Web," sold out so quickly that a fourth performance was put on.

Virtually all of the company's students continue with drama once they reach junior and senior high school. Since the first sixth graders who enrolled are now entering their senior year in high school, no one knows how many will choose theater as a profession. Nevertheless, New York and Hollywood might be advised to prepare to receive some new talent . . .home-grown in Winchester.

Star Extra!!!

Alidar, a Shih Tzu, started her master, David Stenberg, off with simple tricks — walking away slowly when she sat down.

Teaching a master how to give obedience commands properly is a tough job, as Kathy Cullen's pooch will tell you. He trained his mistress so well, she now teaches the Recreation Dept.'s Dog Obedience Class.

Making Perfect Masters

After eight weeks of training, Cupid, a Norfolk terrier, could get mistress Denise Finneran to put her hand out when she wanted him to stand up.

PHOTOS and STORY
By AMY SWEENEY

As the folks who raised them, fed them and cared for them stood by watching proudly, a group of spring graduates received their diplomas last week.

And thanks to their schooling, the new graduates could even "shake" after getting their diplomas.

Of course, they were shaking paws, not hands. For last week's grads were the first graduating class from the Winchester Recreation Dept.'s Dog Obedience School.

For eight weeks, these new canine graduates had learned the skills necessary to get along with those most difficult of animals, humans.

Patiently and relentlessly, the pupils drilled up and down the high school field so their humans would have the chance to practice calling out commands such as "Walk," "Heel," "Set," and "Stay."

The fluffy, furry, floppy-eared "students," did make sure their humans gave them a chance to get ready for class — after a day of play, it's tiring to keep an owner busy with an hour of commanding.

Each class began by "waking" — having the pet owners call out some easy commands while the canine pupils got limbered up.

After the tail-wagging pupils stretched and the owner's vocal chords were ready, the real training started in earnest.

According to class instructor Kathy Cullen, the eight-week class gave the dog owners "better behaved and more enjoyable pets" — a typically self-centered human remark, according to one pet graduate.

New classes will begin Wednesday, July 11, with a beginner class at 6 p.m. and an advanced beginner class at 7.

To register by mail, send name (the owner's, not the dog's), address and telephone number, along with a check for $18, to the Rec. Dept., 458 Main st., McCall Jr. High School.

EnKa Society Elects Officers At Meeting

The EnKa Society of Winchester recently held its Annual Meeting at the Church of Epiphany. Preceding the luncheon, a reception was held to welcome the new provisional members to their first meeting. Mary Knox and her committee prepared and served a lovely molded chicken salad luncheon to the more than 150 members in attendance.

Marcia Saltmarsh, presiding over her final membership meeting as president, brought the annual meeting to order and called upon the committee chairmen for their reports. The highlights of the year's activities included a thorough report by Marylou Eugley, Rainbox-Gold Fair chairman, acknowledging the fiscal and social success of this year's fair. All proceeds from the fair are used to support Winchester activities.

Nancy Mills, co-chairman of the EnKa Exchange, presented the society with a check representing the profits from the business — which, too, is returned to the community. Then she, along with Jean Donahue and Lorna Tseckares, unveiled the newly commissioned sign that will be hung on the store front. The membership applauded their appreciation and approval of the skillfully crafted carved wooden sign, which should assist in the upgrading of the shopping area.

Phyllis Johansen, membership chairman announced that there is an active membership of 142 women, including the eight members just completing their provisional year and accepting full membership.

After questioning the patient, the doctor conducts an electrocardiogram and takes three readings which are assigned ones or twos.

After collecting these seven pieces of information and assigning values to each, the doctor can calculate the formula within 20 seconds using a hand calculator.

This process takes no longer than the normal procedure for admitting a possible heart attack victim into the hospital.

Of the 2,320 patients in the study, not a single person was sent home that should have been kept in the hospital and the misdiagnosis rate was no different than without the formula, said D'Agostino.

"This function is useful in sorting out the patients that don't have acute coronary heart disease," said D'Agostino.

The formula is less useful in cases where the patient obviously has acute coronary heart disease. Then, the doctor relies on his own judgment.

The formula can make a difference in marginal cases where it's unclear if the patient is in danger of a heart attack. Before D'Agostino came up with the formula, doctors usually admitted the patient to the coronary care unit just to be on the safe side.

With the more accurate judgment provided by using the formula, the doctor might decide to put the patient in the ward instead, where care is less expensive.

The formula gives that "extra piece of evidence to make the doctor feel comfortable about sending the patient either to the ward or home," said D'Agostino.

When cardiologist Michael Pozen got the idea for this study, he asked D'Agostino to join him and the two wrote a proposal and then got the project funded. D'Agostino took over as principal investigator when Pozen died toward the end of the study.

D'Agostino has had over 50 articles published as well as a book on factor analysis, a statistical technique to sort out information

Blackpowder Shooters

IF YOU think putting holes in paper is about as exciting as watching the traffic lights change, consider team shooting at breakable targets against a stopwatch. The 10th Massachusetts Battery is looking for more people. We are part of the North-South Skirmish Association, a 4,000 member competitive shooting organization where the shortest elapsed time wins. Units take their names in honor of actual Civil War regiments and members shoot original or reproduction weapons of the 1861-65 period. The 10th Battery competes with .58 cal. rifled muskets, caplock breechloading carbines, and an 1,800 lb. full size 3-inch rifled muzzleloading cannon. Yes, there's some paper punching too for those interested, but the real excitement is in the rapid fire team events where you shoot at flower pots, hanging water-filled coffee cups, ceramic tiles and 32 clay pigeons on a 4x8 cardboard backer at 50 yds. We welcome all shooters regardless of experience. Our team members live all over — from Maine to Rhode Island to New York — but more are from eastern Massachusetts. Call Ron Borjeson at 1-835-3102 for further information.

HOUSE STYLE VS. PRICE

Unless you have a very definite idea about the kind of house you want, the style may be less important than location and price. Many people are attracted to the traditional two-story colonial, while others prefer more contemporary designs, such as split-levels or ranch-style houses. The style, however, will probably make a difference in the price.

According to building experts, the two-story house is the least expensive to build per square foot when measured as the cost of living area. It gives double the space of a ranch unit, for example, for the same amount of land. It is also less expensive to add a second story than to build a floor and foundation to extend the living area. The same amount of space that costs $100 per square foot in a two-story house would cost about $125 in a ranch or $120 in a split level.

Whatever your preference in style or price, let your Realtor help you make the most satisfying buy for the money.

Starting this week you'll find us in a whole new place, One Kendall Square, modern offices with more room to grow. You can grow with us in the young, enthusiastic atmosphere of a fast-track telecommunications company. These new jobs will give you real responsibility, along with good pay, complete benefits including a profit bonus plan, and a great opportunity to show what you can do. The next move is yours.

Secretaries

Several of our departments have immediate openings for versatile secretarial assistants with at least 3 years' experience, preferably in a corporate environment. Responsibilities range from receiving telephone calls, handling departmental mail and travel/meeting arrangements to a variety of typing, telexing and file maintenance. A year or more of word-processing background is also needed, ideally on a DECmate™, along with good communication skills.

Floor Receptionist

You'll greet and announce visitors, take phone messages, perform back-up typing for nearby departments as needed, and handle some general clerical duties. 40+ wpm typing and a high school diploma required.

Clerk Typists

In addition to normal typing and clerical responsibilities, you'll be setting up and maintaining our Quality Assurance documentation, entering/retrieving computer data, and preparing then distributing reports. Your qualifications must include 40+ wpm typing, word-processor experience, the ability to do simple math on a calculator, and good self-organizing talent. Secretarial training and/or some college is preferred.

Word-Processing Operator

You will primarily be asked to word-process large departmental production projects, such as sales reports and marketing proposals. We require 2 years' DECmate™ experience, good language skills (spelling, grammar, etc.) and a degree or business school education.

To apply for your place at Telelogic, send a resume, or letter detailing your background, stating the position you want, to: Personnel, TELELOGIC INC., Dept. A628, One Kendall Square, Cambridge, MA 02139. An Equal Opportunity Employer.

Pupils Recall International Day At Lynch

(Editor's Note: This article was written by a group of sixth grade students at the Lynch Elemtary School who are currently studying the newspaper in their language arts program. The authors of this article include Catherine Sheridan, Grade 6 reading language teacher, Faranak Asetzadeh, Jason Barnes, Christine Braga, Laurie Carvalho, Sarah Conrad, Jori Cutler, Noelle Duffy, Karen Jochimsen, Loren Kullman, Jenna Maconochie, Harry McCaul, Kara McLucas, Colleen Raymond, Ernie Sheets and Billy Vaccari.)

Walking through Lynch Elementary School is a little like visiting the United Nations in New York City. Children who sit in classrooms there may appear to be the "all American" girl or boy but many look, and indeed are, newly arrived from countries all over the world. Japanese is a language heard on the ballfields as well as in the classroom. Iranian, Danish, German, Czechlovakian are just a few of the many other languages spoken in the homes of the Lynch community.

Four years ago, when the school was opened and the staff assembled from all over the Winchester area under the principalship of Andrew Allan, the teachers were struck by the cultural uniqueness of this community. At that time, the staff promised to focus on this wonderful quality.

After a settling-in period, it was determined that the Lynch community would celebrate our International flavor. Planning for this event began early in the 1982-1983 school year when Allan surveyed the community and staff and found an overwhelming support for the concept. Goals and plans were set and it became apparent that at least a year of planning and preparation would result in something truly special.

A May date was set. Meetings were scheduled throughout the year to monitor the progress of this event and finally when International Day arrived, the excitement, pride and level of enjoyment made the wait so very worthwhile. A day that was action packed was followed by an evening of sharing, dancing, learning and warmth that will last forever in the memories of the Lynch community.

The idea of an International Day was first presented by Allan. He thought of this idea because the school has so many different nationalities. The National Association of Elementary School Principals awarded the Lynch School a grant of $500 to be used for a presentation of the different countries represented by the Lynch community. So on Thursday, May 31, the school had an International Day. All students, teachers and even some parents participated in this major event of the school year.

Included in this special day were display tables set up in the auditorium. These displays showed objects from different countries. These objects included musical instruments, food, clothing, posters, flags, jewelry, and books. Some of the countries represented included Portugal, Haiti, Italy, Japan, Germany, Ireland, Denmark, Greece, Turkey, Puerto Rico and Israel. All day long the auditorium was filled with happy faces. People were playing musical instruments, laughing, talking and eating some very unusual foods. These booths made the day extra special.

All of the teachers and students worked worked on a performance which was to be presented on a rotating schedule all day long. The kindergarten children, who are quite experienced at performing plays because they have been working with sixth graders this year, continued their theater project. Mrs. Johnson, the kindergarten teacher, selected five stories representing Sweden, France, China, Russia and Germany.

The sixth grade converted the stories of "Pell's New Suit," "Madelaine," "Ping, The Bun," and "Hanzel and Gretal," and Saint Patrick's Day In The Morning," into plays. Costumes, scenery and rehearsals were completed and on International Day, in a theater in the round, the plays were presented.

Everyone enjoyed the experience, especially Joshua Millman, Kelly Ferrone and Ralph Linnell who stated that they "liked International Year because everyone clapped" and because their parents could see the plays. Melanie Gentile, Ben De Hoyos and Leah McDowell stated that they liked the tables where the food was, too.

The first grade, under Ms. White, who taught for a few years in Japan, taught the school about this country. They practiced origami, the Japanese art of paper folding, and other games which they taught to all visitors.

Heather Murphy, Cheryl Foley and Paul Fahlbeck stated that they learned many new things about Japan and they really liked watching Ms. White's slides on Japan which were shown to all visitors. Cheryl Casserly, Mary Keefe and Paul Wilde enjoyed teaching others.

The second grade and some third graders under the leadership of Mrs. Tynan and Ms. Pickett and Mrs. Brooks studied Mexico. They made pinatas and learned how to play Spanish instruments. On International Day, in full costume, they treated visitors to a lively Mexican Hat Dance performance in the gymnasium. Grade two stated that they'd like to have International Year every year. Some third graders from Mrs. Brooks class also played a game called "Muk from Alaska."

During this year, the Caravan Society for International Culture visited the classes of Ms. Clark and Ms. Finkbeiner. The children learned to count in French so they could play the French game "The Prince of Paris Has Lost His Hat." During International Day they shared this game with all visitors. They also sang a French Song "Bon Soir Mes Ami" and a Hungarian folk song called "Rarakatom" as their teachers played the piano.

Jacob Cutler sang a solo of the Nine Penny Fiddle and Karen Hallisey performed some Irish step dancing.

The visitor truly enjoyed the third and fourth grade performances which ended with a dance and song that was coordinated by Ms. Canny, the Lynch School Physical Education Teacher.

Since January, the fifth and sixth graders have been working in Miss Sheridan's Social Studies class on a unit on the Immigrant Experience. They studied about Ellis Island and the problems of coming to America from another country. All classes, therefore, presented plays that focused on this theme.

One group of students made and proudly wore shirts that advertised their cultural heritage. Flags and designs were coordinated by Mr. Marino and Ms. Maserian, the Lynch Art Teacher.

One group, under the leadership of Ms. Albert, wrote and produced an outstanding play on the Statue of Liberty, a wonderful symbol of our country's welcome to Immigrants, Lorette McWilliams, who played the statue, had a superb cast to support her. The visitors learned about this French gift to America. The designer, the architect and the history of the statue was included and the audience for both performances completely filled the library.

Julie Morse, who played Emma Lazzarus, led the class and the audience in the recitation of her poem, which is located on the pedestal of the statue.

"Give Me Your Tired, Your poor,
Your Huddled Masses Yearning to Breath Free,
The Wretched Refuse Of Your Teeming Shore.
Send these, the homeless tempest-tost, to me,
I lift my lamp beside the Golden Door."

Ms. Sheridan's sixth grade assembled into groups and each group picked a country that sent many immigrants to America. They have been working on research reports, and they created skits to perform about their chosen country.

On International Day, the costumes, scenery and plays were polished and proudly presented. The appreciative audience learned about Japanese picture brides who joined the trans-continental railroad workers.

The sixth graders taught Greek mythology. They demonstrated that the holidays of Christmas and Halloween were imported from Germany and the British Isles. The Norweigan and Jewish immigration experiences were highlighted as well.

Two other teachers made a major contribution to International Day. Ms. Canny, the physical education teacher, taught the fifth and sixth graders a dance from the Phillipines called tinikling. Students who were selected to participate practiced during recess periods for two weeks to learn how to move bamboo sticks which are clapped together and against the floor to a rythmic beat to the music. While two students clapped the sticks, two to four other children were dancing and hopping between the bamboo. It took lots of energy and talent to do this but it was fun to perform this dance in front of such a big audience.

Ms. Maserian, the Lynch Art Teacher, contributed a lot to our fun filled day and evening. She helped the children create extraordinary displays that hung throughout the school. These displays were pleasing to the eye but also educational. Soft dolls, almost like Cabbage Patch Kids, were sewn and dressed in creative costumes of the countries of heritage of the fifth and sixth graders. There was always a crowd around the display which was located at the main entrance. Ms. Maserian also helped with the scenery for the kindergarten plays and the sixth grade skits.

Finally, the work of the Girl Scouts must be mentioned. Mrs. Peg Keefe gathered the scouts together and organized a flag ceremony. But at 5:30 on International Day it was pouring so the ceremony was moved indoors where the American Flag and flags from different countries were paraded through the halls and International Evening officially opened when they placed the flags on the stage.

The memories are all we have left now that the celebration is history but we, the members of the Lynch Community, will never forget International Day, May 31.

Savings Bank Officers Attend Conference

Trustees and Officers of the Winchester Savings Bank heard a variety of banking issues discussed in depth at a regional conference sponsored by the Savings Bank Assn. of Massachusetts.

Held at the Colonial Hilton, Lynnfield, the conference focused on the political process as it relates to savings banking and on the many options for banks in the new era of deregulation.

Panelists agreed that politics is as important as finance for contemporary bankers. According to Robert K. Sheridan, president of the Assn., "We live in a political environment, like it or not. If we hope to see enlightened public policy decisions, we have to be sensitive to how those decisions are made."

Among the strategic options discussed were new forms of charter, broadened authority to meet community credit needs, the possibility of stock conversion and acquisition of other banking institutions.

Robert B. Nickerson, president of Winchester Savings Bank, noted that new banking options are just that — opportunities which may or may not be taken, depending on an individual bank's analysis of what will be in the best interest of its depositors and its community.

"The value of these meetings," Nickerson said, "is they give trustees and bank officers help in planning for the future. Responsible changes is the principle we are operating by today."

Free Screening On June 29

The Winchester Board of Health offered free, voluntary screening at the town's nursery schools and kindergartens during the months of April and May.

In addition, a screening will be held at the Board of Health Clinic room on Friday, June 29th from 2 to 3 p.m. for those children not attending school.

Children under 6 years old should be tested for lead poisoning once a year. Children under 3 should be tested twice a year. Although Massachusetts children are no longer dying from lead poisoning, an elevated level of lead in a child's blood may effect his or her mental development.

Lead poisoning is found in children of all races, income levels and environments. The chief indicator is the age of the house in which the child lives. Before 1960 lead paint was commonly used on the interior and exterior of homes. That means there are approximately 4,000 homes in Winchester that are potentially hazardous.

Choir Will Be Assembled

During the two Union Services to be held at the First Congregational Church on July 8 and 15, a choir will be assembled in order to provide music for those services.

The presence of a choir for Union Services has not occurred in recent times and it is hoped that singers will respond

Dorothea FLORIST

If you've never dried roses before, you'll find that not only is it easy to do but in addition, it's highly rewarding because of the lasting pleasure the flowers provide. You can dry one or two roses or many of them for bouquets or arrangements. And the relatively low cost also will add to your enjoyment.

One easy way is simply to tie the rose stem together and hang them upside down in a warm dry place. If there's a lot of dust wrap them gently in cheesecloth. Unfortunately, most of the color is lost with this method.

You can get better results by completely immersing the flowers in a desiccant which gradually withdraws all the moisture from them. Small rosebuds or blooms with only a few petals dry most successfully. The flowers will last indefinitely. You can use them in winter bouquets and holiday decorations over and over again.

Reds and other deep colors will darken; pinks & yellows will fade slightly although some light-colored blooms will retain much of their natural color for several seasons.
